Spaceship Splashes Down Safely

Times News Services

ABOARD USS TICONDEROGA — The last men of Apollo landed safely in the South Pacific today with the moon prize they sought and a treasure of souvenirs marking the end of an era in which man conquered the moon.

The aircraft carrier Ticonderoga stood by to retrieve the astronauts and start them on the way home to Houston Thursday to join their families and friends for the Christmas holidays.

The moon explorers slashed into upper fringes of earth's atmosphere travelling 6.8 miles a second and decelerated quickly to a gentle parachute landing in just 13 minutes. It may be decades before men fly that fast again.

Only two minor problems troubled the mission's last phases before splashdown. A big pair of scissors, lost in the spacecraft a few days ago, could not be found and Evans' headset — which he uses to communicate with ground control — was faulty.

Evans, who has been taking nose drops for congestion, was advised by mission control doctors to take a decongestant pill before he retired and another after breakfast.

"It might clear your ears before final descent," he was told.

On their last night in space the astronauts held a televised news conference, answering 13 questions relayed from reporters by Mission Control.

During the program, geologist Schmitt said that while on the moon he and Cernan sampled "a broad spectrum of lunar history" and "increased the perspective for the future of mankind in the solar system."

For the rest of the evening, the astronauts did little talking though Cernan before retiring took note of earth growing closer before them.

"The earth is sure starting to get big," said Cernan.

Apollo 17 was then 92,000 miles from earth and rapidly gaining speed.

We Won't Bow Hanoi Vows

Times News Services

The Communist world reacted angrily today to U.S. President Nixon's resumed bombing of heavily-populated areas of North Vietnam, with some Eastern-bloc diplomats in London also predicting that the action could lead to a slow-down of the thaw in relations between Washington, Moscow and Peking.

But they said they did not anticipate a freeze in this process of improving relations.

One direct result of the latest developments in the Vietnam conflict might be a delay in the projected Washington visit of Soviet Communist Party chairman Leonid Brezhnev, they said.

In Moscow the Soviet Union condemned the renewed air strikes as a move to pressure Hanoi into a peace settlement and warned that Kremlin leaders are "giving the most serious consideration" to the situation.

"This particular decision of Washington flagrantly disagrees with numerous protestations made by the U.S. leaders about their wish to seek mutually acceptable solutions for the remaining unco-ordinated problems.

"No pretexts, invented in a bid to justify the brutal bombing, can hide the fact that we are faced with new aggressive actions which the U.S.A. is taking against a sovereign state."

North Vietnam's permanent peace negotiator accused Henry Kissinger today of "deliberately distorting the truth" in his report on the stalled peace talks.

The Hanoi negotiator, Xuan Thuy, told a news conference it was not North Vietnam but the United States that blocked agreement by demanding no fewer than 126 changes in the accord drafted in October.

Thuy said Hanoi is considering boycotting future peace negotiations because of the "shameless acts of war escalation."

"Every Christmas Mr. Nixon voices concern for prisoners, but every Christmas he bombs North Vietnam and for this reason the prisoners are not liberated," Thuy said.

Meanwhile, hundreds of U.S. planes including B-52 bombers pounded the Hanoi-Haiphong region of North Vietnam with the heaviest raids of the war Monday night and again today.

The North Vietnamese government, however, said President Nixon's attempt to bomb it into submission would not force it to accept Washington's peace terms.

Hanoi said six U.S. planes were shot down, incluling three B-52s and a number of pilots captured.

It charged that nearly 100 civilians were killed at attacks on Hanoi and its su-

IT DOESN'T MATTER AFTER YOU'RE 65

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — A Harvard University health expert said today that cigarette smokers who have reached age 65 might as well keep on smoking — they will not prolong their lives by stopping.

Dr. Carl C. Seltzer, senior research associate at the Harvard school of public health in Boston, said persons who stop smoking after 65 appear to gain no additional living time.

Seltzer based his conclusions on an analysis of the death rates of elderly British doctors over a 12-year period from 1953 to 1965.

B.C. May Lose Auto Plants

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Nissan Motors has called a news conference for noon Wednesday in Vancouver to officially announce an indefinite delay in plans to open a Datsun car assembly plant in British Columbia.

Earlier Hiraki Miki, president of Nissan Motors Canada Ltd., had said the assembly plant would be constructed in B.C. during 1973.

However, a company spokesman in Vancouver said it would not happen in 1973 and possibly not at all.

The company statement followed an announcement from Tokyo that the company is considering plants in Alberta and Ontario ahead of B.C.

The Vancouver spokesman said a news conference had been called for Wednesday to outline the company's position but the gist of the announcement would be "an indefinite delay, a long delay."

The decision is a severe blow for the provincial government which has counted heavily on new Japanese manufacturing plants as a showcase to attract other investment to the province.

After becoming premier he had talks with Miki of Nissan (Datsun) on the same topic.

There has been no action from Toyota and now the Datsun project seems to have been abandoned.

In Tokyo, Seishi Kato, executive vice-president of Toyota, said revaluation of the yen had hurt sales in North America in 1972 and a further upward revaluation could increase car prices and cut sales even further.

The company hopes to increase sales in Canada, Indonesia and Latin America in 1973 and will hold the price to its present level in hopes of retaining the 280,000 sales it made in the U.S. in 1972. Sales in 1971 had been 390,000 vehicles.

Barrett said Monday he wants to speak to representatives of Nissan before he comments on the reports that the firm has no definite plans for establishing an assembly plant in B.C.

CHILD-BEATING BIG PROBLEM

VANCOUVER (CP) — A report on the incidence of child-beating in the province and recommendations on how to reduce the numbers will be made public in the new year, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Monday.

"Child-beating has become one hell of a problem," he said. "One has to be careful that the solutions to prevent it are not worse than the actions."

Duty-Free Liquor For Airport

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced today the government has approved establishment of a duty-free liquor store at the Vancouver International Airport.

He said the store should be operative early in the New Year.

FRANTIC FOR MEAT

SEATTLE (AP) — Stripped bare by frantic weekend shoppers, many meat counters remained empty Monday as beef prices increased as much as 30 cents a pound in Seattle and Spokane.

"They were taking it as quick as we put it up," one Seattle meatcutter said, "and some got a little hostile when they couldn't get what they wanted."

In Spokane, one store warned customers over a loudspeaker to keep an eye on their shopping carts because some people were snatching meat packages before others got to the checkout stands.

Many meat counters unable to replenish beef supplies by Monday were filling in with pork and poultry, prices of which have not gone up.

"They'll probably be next," said one disgruntled shopper.

Meat industry spokesmen attributed the boost at the retail level to higher auction prices paid by packers, higher feed costs, a scarcity of cattle, and general inflation.

In Seattle Monday, rib steak was priced at $1.59 a pound, up from $1.45; ground beef at 75 cents a pound from 69 cents, and New York cut steak up from $2.49 to $2.79.

Today at one major Victoria meat market, equivalent prices are $1.29 for rib steak, 69 cents for ground beef and $2.50 for New York cut steak.

Scotch: Booze or Barley?

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Britain and France clashed today over scotch whisky and its role in the enlarged European Common Market.

France said whisky is alcohol; Britain said it is "processed agricultural goods." Millions of dollars rides on the outcome.

Canada, which will be affected by the outcome, kept watch from the sidelines.

The terms of entry obligate Britain's whisky distillers to replace much of the 750,000 tons of grain they buy now from the United States and Canada with Common Market grain — mostly from France.

Britain argued today that the Common Market grain is more expensive. France objected. The French have long urged the market to form an "alcohol policy," which would enable France to dispose of surplus wine. Britain said the matter could be handled perfectly well by treating whisky as "processed agricultural goods," under the existing farm policy.

NEWS BRIEFS

Car Plants Struck

LONDON (Reuter) — Scattered one-day strikes hit Britain's motor car industry Monday in new protests over financial penalties imposed by an industrial tribunal on a big engineering union. A similar 24-hour protest by engineers in the printing industry stopped publication in London of national dailies and evening newspapers.

Truman Unchanged

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry Truman's kidneys virtually have stopped working and his weakened heart remained erratic today. He was still in serious condition. Although semi-conscious, the former president was alert enough Monday to utter a few words, he was in no pain and his condition has not changed in several days.

Pollution Bill High

TOKYO (AP) — Japanese industries and the government will spend at least $34.7 billion in the next 10 years to combat pollution in Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya and nine other major cities, government officials reported today.

Report Due Dec. 31

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mr. Justice Nathan Nemetz said Monday he hopes to make a report by Dec. 31 on the long-running British Columbia longshoremen's contract dispute.

Ad Controls Urged

PARIS (UPI) — Drug experts called today for strict controls on advertising of tranquillizers, headache tablets and energy pills to reduce their attraction to youths tempted by narcotics. The call was part of an international effort to combat drug problems.

Post Workers To Vote Jan. 3

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers will vote Jan. 3 on contract recommendations of a conciliation board set up to settle their dispute with the post office, leaders of the Council of Postal Unions said today.

The workers are being urged by their national leaders to reject the conciliation proposals, despite a recommendation for acceptance by the union nominee on the board that prepared the study.

Union nominee William Walsh and the chairman of the three-man board, Owen Shime, signed a majority report which recommended an increase in wages to the 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions of about 65 cents an hour, spread over a contract ending Dec. 31, 1974.

The report, along with a dissenting opinion by government nominee Bruce Stewart, was made public Monday.

National union leaders said they were recommending that the workers turn down the report.

Local union reaction to the recommendations was mixed.

A spokesman for the Vancouver council of Postal unions said there was little in the report outside of the monetary offer and that Vancouver members are interested in safeguards against automation and a shorter work week.

The Vancouver postal unions represent 1,200 clerks and 900 letter carriers. A mass meeting will be called once copies of the report are received.

The union spokesman said there is no immediate prospect of a strike on the West Coast, although the unions have the legal right to leave their jobs Thursday. A strike vote has yet to be held.

Montreal leaders opposed acceptance of the recommendations, and Guy Morisette, local letter carrier president, calling the report stupid.

Canada Telescope . . . In Hawaii!

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — It now seems almost certain that Canadian astronomers will get their first federally-financed optical telescope in more than half a century. But the telescope will be located in Hawaii, not in Canada.

The federal government has informed the National Research Council that it can begin negotiations with French officials on a proposed joint Canadian-French telescope to be built by 1977 on the main island of Hawaii.

Under the proposal, Canada would pay half of the cost of the $16.8 million, 150-inch telescope, France the other half. The two countries would also share 50-50 the estimated $1-million-a-year operating costs.

The telescope would be located on the top of Mauna Kea, at an elevation of 13,800 feet. The site is considered to be one of the best in the world, especially for infra-red observations. Canadian and French astronomers would be able to see most of the less-explored and therefore more exciting southern sky.

An official of the NRC, in confirming the government decision made late last week, said that negotiations between officials of NRC and the Centre National de Recherche Scientifique, CNRS, of France would begin "as soon as possible in the New Year," most likely in January.

Meanwhile, an earlier proposal by Canadian astronomers for an all-Canadian, $18 million telescope, to be located somewhere at a prime observing site in the southern hemisphere, has been effectively struck dead by the latest government decision.

Earlier this year, the government had rejected the all-Canadian proposal, for the time being, and indicated that it preferred the joint Canada-France proposal.

The main drawback of the Hawaii site is that it is located north of the equator, therefore preventing astronomers from seeing the lower 30 degrees of the southern sky. The proposed all-Canadian telescope would have been located in the southern hemisphere, perhaps in Chile or South Africa, providing a view of the total southern sky, with all of its still-undiscovered astronomical "goodies."

On the other hand, the France-Canada project effectively gives Canadian astronomers as much viewing time as they would have obtained with the ill-fated Queen Elizabeth II telescope, at half the cost. The QE II was supposed to be located on Mt. Kobeau in B.C. and was cancelled by the federal government in 1968, in part as a result of controversy within the scientific community about the merits of the Canadian site.

CANADIANS TRIP ON AUSSIE LAWS

SYDNEY (UPI) — Canadian and New Zealand migrants commit crimes at twice the rate of native-born Australians, according to a survey released today.

British immigrants are about as law abiding as the local population, while Asian and African migrants have the lowest crime rate.

The survey carried out by Ronald Francis, senior tutor in criminology at Macquarie University Sydney, is published in the latest issue of the Australian and New Zealand Journal of Criminology.

It analyses the crime rate and prison admission in the states of New South Wales and the Australian capital territory.

Prison admission rates in 1966 were: 217.9 in 100,000 for people born in New South Wales, but 512 for New Zealanders, 429.7 for Canadians, 345.2 for Europeans and 89.6 for Africans and Asians.

Francis said today he could not explain why the crime rate was so high among New Zealanders and Canadians.

"I would like to find out if the crime rate among Australians who go to New Zealand or Canada is as high," Francis said.

"If so, this would support the theory that many criminals drift from one country to another."

MLA Urges Legal Heroin to Cut Crime

Government clinics supplying heroin legally could smash the "totally pointless, viscious" heroin-crime-jail circle that traps drug addicts, Oak Bay MLA Dr. Scott Wallace said today.

The government task force on correctional facilities announced Monday by Attorney-General Alex Macdonald gives an ideal opportunity for establishing such heroin clinics on an experimental basis, Wallace said.

"I'm in no way saying that heroin clinics are THE answer," he said. "It is one small step towards a more rational understanding of the whole heroin problem."

The pilot project should be set up for addicts in Victoria and Vancouver, he said, with a rehabilitation facility in some non-urban area away from heroin sources.

Addicts sincerely wanting to kick the habit would receive decreasing doses of heroin, which would be accompanied by an expanded program of counselling and rehabilitation, said Wallace.

"It is likely that heroin clinics would greatly reduce the criminal involvement" of addicts who commit crimes to support their habit, he said.

"And these clinics themselves would be centres of research" into the whole drug problem, he added.

Wallace emphasized that he in no way condones the non-medical use of drugs, and that he spoke only for himself, not for the Conservative Party.

The recognition of drug addiction as a medical and not a criminal problem, he said, would give many young addicts wanting to quit a better chance.

Dr. Bernard Schwarz of Vancouver, chairman of the B.C. Medical Association's drugs habituation committee, said today the association has considered heroin clinics and rejected them.

"We felt there were just too many negative features to them," he said. A heroin addict needs several injections a day, so probably wouldn't be able to hold a job, Schwarz said.

He said there is less chance of rehabilitation of addicts using heroin because they are always high.

"What we would much rather see is drug addict clinics, not just heroin clinics," he said. The emphasis would be more on the total person, he said, although methadone (a heroin substitute) would be a small, necessary part of the program.

DRUNK DRIVING FIGURES LEAP

Offences involving drinking and driving in Victoria have increased by almost 70 per cent this year, according to Victoria city police figures.

All four municipal police say roadblocks are already operating for the Christmas holiday and will continue nightly in most areas, providing bad weather does not make operations too dangerous.

Roving road blocks and spot checks will continue throughout the city until the new year and Saanich police say they hope to continue the practice as a year-round deterent to drinking drivers.

Victoria police say they plan two major blocks over the holidays as well as nightly spot checks.

To date, there have been 374 charges involving drinking and driving in 1972. In 1971, the first full year of operation for Canada's new laws regarding blood-alcohol tests, the figure was 218.

Drinking and driving offences include driving with a blood-alcohol level over .08 and refusing to submit to a breathalyzer test.

Inspector Richard Berry, of Victoria's traffic division, described the jump in offences as "astonishing" but is at a loss to account for the big increase.

A $350 fine has become common practice on a first impaired driving offence. A second offence carries a mandatory prison sentence.

THE BETTER HALF By Barnes

"You popular people make my December miserable! It'll be a positive pleasure to bring you your January bills!"

NEW HOSPITAL

The president of the Saanich Peninsula Hospital Society said today he expects the long-awaited 75-bed hospital on Mount Newton Crossroad will be built and in operation a year from now.

Louis Lindholm said working drawings are now in the hands of the provincial government and authority to call tenders is anticipated next month or in February.

Construction time for the $1 million project will be eight months, which means the hospital in Central Saanich should be open and likely filled by the end of 1973.

About a year ago there was a prediction tenders would be called last spring and the hospital open now.

In its first phase the hospital will have 75 beds for extended care patients, which means the chronically ill, bedridden and mostly elderly. A second phase is to provide 75 more beds for acute care patients and the service areas in the current plans are designed to handle both phases.

The hospital will be built on a 22-acre site, bought by the Capital regional hospital board for $128,000 in 1970.

'Ottawa Doublecross'

Government delay in approving local initiative grants for municipal projects today was called an "Ottawa doublecross" and a "sick joke" by Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

He pointed out a Saanich program covering $809,429 in public works projects, parks and beach improvement had been submitted to the provincial government Nov. 3 and was received by Canada Manpower Nov. 10 in Vancouver. Since then there has been silence.

"It is absolutely ludicrous. We moved very quickly (when the 1972 local initiatives program was announced). I'm not aware of any municipal grants being approved in this part of the country," Curtis said.

It had been hoped to start the Saanich program Dec. 1 "and get some money in workmen's pockets before Christmas," he said.

The mayor called it "a classic Ottawa doublecross. They appear to be approving the odd-ball fun and games grants, which may attract more attention.

"But if this is assistance for winter employment, then it's a very sick joke. If it wasn't withholding employment from people who could and should be working, it would be funny," Curtis said.

The Saanich program would involve spending $562,417 of the total cost out of local revenue, with the senior governments paying the balance.

Most of the projects would relate to traffic and sidewalks, sewer cleaning, storm drain and watercourse improvements and replacement of two-inch water mains.

About $136,000 would be spent on park and beach projects.

In the second week of November, Victoria Manpower manager George Bevis pointed out the intent of the 1972-73 program is to encourage social or community betterment projects rather than large capital construction projects.

A park project likely would be preferred over a public works undertaking such as sidewalks and sewer extension, Bevis indicated.

LAST CHANCE FOR BLOOD

The Red Cross today urged blood donors to turn out this evening for the last clinic before Christmas so there will be an adequate blood bank to meet emergencies over the holiday.

There were only 101 donors at Red Cross House Monday. Objective for that clinic and the one today is 125.

The clinic is at 1046 Fort and hours today are 1.30 to 4.30 p.m. and 6.30 to 9 this evening.

Post Office Snags Street Name Bid

Former Esquimalt mayor Ray Bryant will have his name immortalized in the municipality he served — but not yet.

It's been the custom of council for many years to remember former reeves and mayors by naming a new street after them, Mayor Art Young explained today.

The municipality is right up to date except for Bryant.

An opportunity to solve the problem appeared recently with proposed renaming of a small cul-de-sac off Esquimalt Road. With an apartment building added to the corner which partially hid the cul-de-sac, there was a need to establish its identity.

Residents suggested the name Esquimalt Place while a council committee favored Bryant Place, explained Young.

Names have to be cleared through the post office to avoid address confusion and the post office didn't favor either — because there is already a Briar and a Brian Place in Greater Victoria and Esquimalt Place could generate confusion with Esquimalt Road.

So council at its meeting Monday night took no action. The cul-de-sac, in the 1300-block Esquimalt Road, will remain part of that road for address purposes.

. . . AUTOMOBILES

wage costs. As well it stands to gain by playing one province off against another in terms of gaining incentive grants or other concessions.

High Canadian labor costs worry both Japanese companies and Datsun has already announced that any of its cars assembled in Canada would have a higher selling price than those put together in Japan for shipment to Canada.

The advantage to Canada would be only the new jobs created by having the cars assembled here. Nissan has said that most of the jobs in the assembly plant (wherever it is constructed) would be held by Canadians and 100 per cent of jobs created by the construction of such plants would be held by Canadians.

DOLLAR CRISIS

As a result of the dollar crisis of earlier this year, the Japanese car makers are being forced to construct assembly plants outside Japan.

One of the concessions made to the U.S. is that Japanese exports would be held to 1971 levels and the only way this can be beaten is to export parts, not covered in the agreement and assemble the cars outside of Japan.

It seems unlikely Nissan will find lower wage costs in Alberta and Ontario but it might find more generous start-up terms from the Tory governments of those two provinces than from the New Democrats of B.C. who have ruled out cash grants of any kind unless equity is offered by the company in exchange.

Miki had said the first plant would be constructed in B.C. with subsequent plants being considered for Ontario and Alberta.

Now it looks like it will be the other way around, with B.C. being put low on the priority list.

Hanoi: We Won't Bow to Bombing

burbs, and hundreds of homes destroyed.

The U.S. command here admitted that two B-52s and an F-111 swing-wing fighter-bomber were lost during the night. Eight U.S. airmen are missing and seven others were rescued, the command said.

It was the heaviest loss in a single day for the U.S. since resumption of bombing of the North last April.

U.S. spokesmen said the two B-52s probably were hit by surface-to-air missiles.

One went down 30 miles northwest of Hanoi; the other crashed in Thailand.

Its seven crew members bailed out and were rescued.

The magnitude of the attack with which the United States resumed the air war north of the 20th parallel was underscored by indications that more than 100 B-52s were used in the raids.

Scores of smaller fighter-bombers from half a dozen bases in Thailand and several 7th Fleet carriers in the Tonkin Gulf also took part.

Hanoi radio said U.S. ships sailed close to the North Vietnamese coast and fired missiles into Haiphong and islands ringing the port.

One broadcast monitored in Saigon said one bomb hit a crowded movie theatre in Hanoi's Hai Bia Trung Street, killing nine people and wounding another 60.

A high-ranking South Vietnamese official said the renewal of air attacks on Hanoi and Haiphong after a two-month suspension "is an effort to show the U.S. determination to negotiate from a position of strength and also to persuade us that they will never let us down and we can trust them and join in signing a peace agreement."

The White House said the bombing was ordered by Nixon by "cope with another enemy buildup" and forestall a possible Communist offensive in South Vietnam.

But some senior U.S. officials in Saigon said there were no indications that North Vietnam was preparing for a large-scale offensive, although it has begun its traditional dry season supply buildup to stockpile forces in the south for next year.

The North Vietnamese foreign ministry said the resumption of bombing "is an extremely serious step of war escalation, posing an extremely insolent challenge to the peace and justice-loving people of the world, including the U.S. people.

The statement, broadcast over Radio Hanoi, said sheer force would not compel North Vietnam to accept an agreement under U.S. terms.

"That is only an illusion," it said, adding North Vietnam would retaliate for the attacks.

In Washington Senator George McGovern said Monday the renewed bombing reaffirms that the Nixon administration "is chained to a government in South Vietnam that is determined to sabotage any chance for peace."

The South Dakota Democrat renewed pleas made during his unsuccessful presidential campaign for an end to further military aid to South Vietnam, for an immediate end to the bombing and for a firm date for the withdrawal of all remaining U.S. forces.

"Over the past several days, the Nixon administration has formally crushed the hopes for peace that were so artfully constructed during the months leading up to election day," McGovern said in a statement.

But in contrast to McGovern's view, the chairman of the House of Representatives armed services, Edward Hebert, a Democrat, approved resumption of the bombing.

"Mine Haiphong harbor, bomb Hanoi, bomb them all," Hebert said in a telephone interview.

"We would never have got them to the peace table in the first place if we hadn't bombed them."

Senate Majority leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he was disturbed by the bombing.

"I do not think mining Haiphong and stepping up the bombing will bring Hanoi to its knees," he said.

"It looks like we are back in the same old tunnel."

Mansfield said he believes the failure of the Paris talks would make it more likely that anti-war amendments would surface in the Senate, aimed at bringing an end to U.S. participation through a cut-off of war funding or through a binding policy declaration.

Sen. Stuart Symington, a member of the Senate foreign relations and armed services committees, said Monday he wanted Kissinger summoned to explain what happened to the peace talks.

Report Boosts Prince Rupert Port

OTTAWA (CP) — Port facilities at Prince Rupert and extension of rail lines into northern British Columbia are among the modes of transportation needed to develop the resources of the Northwest, says a study released Monday by the transport department.

The study was designed to identify the types of transportation facilities needed to develop northern B.C., the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Over the next 15 years, said Transport Minister Jean Marchand in an accompanying statement, both public and private sectors must invest in transportation to support and simulate growth in these areas.

Other recommendations of the study are for the paving of the Alaska Highway between Fort St. John and Fort Nelson, and establishing a plan for railway development in the Yukon.

The governments of B.C., Alberta, the N.W.T. and the Yukon have been informed of the contents of the study, sail the transport department.

LIST RECOMMENDATIONS

Key recommendations:

—That the federal government, through the National Harbor's Board, proceed with initial development of both a forests products and bulk facility at Prince Rupert if there are reasonable assurances that export traffic would originate there when it becomes economically feasible.

—That definite agreements be reached with B.C. on northern railways development. Such a plan would use the line now under construction to Dease Lake by British Columbia Railways.

Subject to agreement, construction should start on connecting this line with the CNR's line to Prince Rupert.

—That northern rail links stop at Dease Lake "for a suitable period" to allow mineral exploration to concentrate in this area.

—That paving of the Alaska Highway between Fort St. John and Fort Nelson be completed in a five-year period.

—That detailed hydrographic work on the Mackenzie River and detailed aerial photography on the highway route down the Mackenzie basin be proceeded with.

YOUTHS' ARSENAL is examined by chief probation officer John Gillis in Vancouver city hall. The weapons, which include bayonets, homemade guns, brass knuckles, straight razors and truncheons, were all seized from young people in different parts of Vancouver during the past year. They had been put on display for city council's health and welfare committee when it discussed hard-core delinquency. The committee reached no decisions during its meeting. Gillis urged more probation officers should be provided as a short-term solution.

IRA Death Squad Kidnaps, Kills Police Official

BELFAST (CP) — Three men kidnapped a Protestant member of the Northern Ireland police administration during the night and killed him with two shots in the head.

The hooded body of William Johnston, a member of the province's police authority and a prominent businessman, was found in the back of a car late Monday night near the border with the Irish republic. Police said they presumed the assassins fled into the republic.

Johnston, a former member of the Armagh city council, was in his late 40s and married with two children.

Friends said Johnston, the owner of a drapery store in Armagh, visited a house in a Catholic sector with an employee, William Bratty, to discuss some new carpets. Three armed men forced their way into the house and ordered Johnston and Bratty into their car. Bratty was badly beaten and told reporters he had been "kicked out of the car" while Johnston was shot.

Johnston was the 109th victim this year of the murder squads which have been settling grudges amid the Protestant-Catholic warfare over Northern Ireland's future. He was the 668th confirmed fatality in more than three years of the communal violence.

It was reported that the death toll in the current violence in the British-ruled province now exceeded that for the bloody Irish civil war of 1921-22 when 665 people died.

In Belfast, a six-year-old girl and a policeman were each shot in the leg Monday night, but neither was seriously hurt. The girl was standing near guerrillas who shot at a car in the Catholic Falls Road area. The policeman was hit by two gunmen who fired into his car.

Retaliation for Retaliation

It's back to Square One, apparently, in the Vietnam peace talks and the prospects of an early cessation of the conflict are as dubious as ever. President Nixon's appearance of having a ceasefire ready before his re-election proved false. Now, the hope of an announcement before his inauguration speech on January 20 is also going glimmering.

As the pre-election halt in the bombing of North Vietnam was said to be based on an attempt to improve the climate for negotiation, so its resumption this week with some of the heaviest raids of the war must be taken as a sign that that encouragement is being withdrawn.

The public finds it difficult to quash its doubts about the motives of the latest resumption. Earlier, it was argued that the heavy bombing of the North had been a powerful factor in getting Hanoi to negotiate more closely and seriously. The present action could be interpreted as a return to the tactic, the previous favorable reaction to the easement having worn off.

It can hardly be thought that Mr. Nixon really wants to prolong the war at this stage. He has everything to gain by a ceasefire that comes within reasonable distance of saving American face, returning the prisoners and permitting a final exit of troops.

The bombing cannot be ascribed to mere whim. The official Washington charge is that the North has been building up forces and dispatching them south, with large supplies, during the bombing halt. The obvious conclusion is that a large-scale offensive is in prospect. If it is, should the United States permit it to proceed with the almost inevitable result? Mr. Nixon says no, and has taken retaliatory steps.

Unfortunately those steps represent death and destruction to ground targets and non-targets that have shocked the world and sparked universal protests — not the least from the United States itself. Will bombing that did not break Hanoi before, succeed now? Will added hatred make negotiation easier?

The key to these questions lies in the state to which the North had earlier been reduced. Was the population on the verge of rebellion against the government in protest against the war? Had organized living broken down so that the country was about to collapse? The U.S. public cannot know this and the suspicion is that Mr. Nixon does not either. The bombing appears as a blind reversion to a formerly unsuccessful tactic for want of any better plan.

At least as a sign of frustration it is understandable, since Hanoi has shown little indication of conceding anything important. Its army will remain in the South after the ceasefire, under present proposals. And it is difficult to see that as anything short of defeat for Saigon and Washington. The war is not a black-and-white matter, but two very dirty greys spattered with blood red.

Downhill All the Way

It is reassuring to learn that the Greater Victoria Water Board has now publicly recognized the need to ensure that water supplies for Goldstream will remain sufficient to support the salmon life at all times of the year. Spawning time, of course, is the main consideration, but control of the river flow to keep the spawning beds under sufficient water, or protected from destructive flood waters, is also necessary.

It appears from the statements of the Water Commissioner, Mr. Upward, that the Sooke Lake system, which was popularly understood to be able to cater to the needs of the growing community for years to come, is not, in fact, quite so bountiful. But an additional billion gallons a year could be diverted into the system from Council Creek, he says, and so provide adequate supplies for man and salmon.

If this proposal is engineringly and ecologically sound, it should provide an answer to the problem. Certainly it is rather silly to have a water crisis, large or small, every fall when the salmon are coming up-river, even though we are supposed to be abundantly supplied.

It should be ascertained, however, that diverting Council Creek into the Sooke Lake system as an alternative to its present entry below the dam will not create new problems for Sooke River or the adjacent territory. It is often difficult to move one of Nature's building blocks without disturbing others. There should be a clear understanding of what is entailed before we go ahead.

Calmer Seas in the Caribbean

The indirect conversations between the United States and Cuba — officials of each country talk to the Swiss ambassador to Havana and he relays the messages — are focussed on the control of airline hijacking, and the talks are reportedly going very well. Of significance, also, is the talk about the talks. They encourage the hope that the decade-long break in relations between the two nations may be on the verge of healing.

Neither country goes to the point of suggesting restoration of earlier relationships, but it is a matter of interest that discussions through the intermediary are edging beyond the narrow limits of skyjacking. Cuba, for example, is also anxious to find some working agreement with the United States to check sea piracy, which is costing the country too much in boats lost to fleeing Cubans.

Moreover, the isolation of Cuba by various members of the Organization of American States is crumbling, with a number of them renewing formal relations and more reportedly ready to take the same course.

In an era of East-West visits between ideological rivals, a more direct interchange in the Caribbean seems a natural step for a world suffering from too many tensions.

The Disintegrating Alliances

PARIS — The world has now spun into a curiously intricate era of multipolarity. Some Western alliances are being buried, just as the Sino-Soviet pact was long ago interred, and others face alteration. Various power coalitions suddenly find themselves pitted against each other in differing patterns on differing issues and on differing occasions.

One alliance which seems dead, even if not yet officially embalmed, is SEATO. Never a valid organization, it was originally devised by Secretary of State Dulles to give him authority through special treaty protocols to get the United States mixed up in the Indochina war.

France hasn't participated in SEATO for years. Pakistan had become a nonparticipant and this year formally opted out. Now the new labor governments of Australia and New Zealand intend to quit the pact. This leaves only the U.S., Britain, Thailand and the Philippines as theoretically active members.

Australia, withdrawing commitments abroad and paring its armed forces, is likewise getting out of ANZUS, a little known pact with New Zealand and the U.S., and ANZAM, a still less familiar arrangement with Britain, Singapore and Malaysia.

Ending Conscription

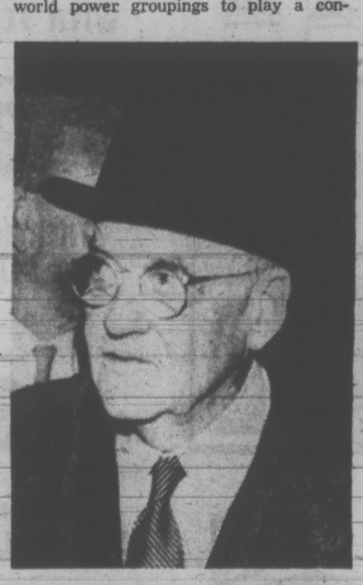
Both Australia and New Zealand are ending even vestigial conscription. The same trend is far more important in the number one Western alliance, NATO. The U.S. terminated the draft and switches to volunteer forces by July 1.

This cannot help but be reflected in the extent and size of America's European garrison. West Germany seems headed in the same direction. The end result will necessitate revision of NATO defence plans and probably heavier reliance on tactical nuclear weapons.

Communist alliances are not at this moment subject to similar shifts. The big initial changes had already occurred when, years ago, Yugoslavia and Albania successively quit the Moscow treaty network which became formalized in the Warsaw Pact, and when Peking broke with Moscow.

Rumanian membership in the pact continues, despite Bucharest's resentment of Soviet interference in Czechoslovakia. There doesn't seem to be any thought that Ceasescu contemplates abandoning his alliance.

Today one sees a new tendency of world power groupings to play a con-



JOHN FOSTER DULLES
. . . devious devising

finually shifting game of musical chairs. One has but to examine the list of trouble spots to see how impossible it is to catalogue diplomatic positions as was done in simplified cold war days.

The question of a united Germany used to be the first preoccupation of both Europe and America. But now, although no European capital officially admits it, almost all of them, regardless of ideology, are content with the prospect that two separate Germanys will exist for an indeterminate future. On this issue Moscow clearly opposes German unification but Washington and Peking favor it.

The U.S. and China both support Pakistan in its arguments with India although the degree of American backing has lessened since the creation of Bangladesh and Pakistani withdrawal from SEATO. Moscow remains solidly behind India on just about every issue.

Although neither talks about it in public, it is clear the Americans and Russians secretly support the Khamba guerrillas fighting against the Chinese administration in Tibet. Likewise, Washington and Moscow are more sympathetic to Taiwan than Peking likes.

In Vietnam, both Moscow and Peking back Hanoi in its efforts to gain Indochinese ascendency and both have sent massive aid. China wants to establish its strong influence in the area while Russia hopes to sponsor a neutral, anti-Peking, anti-Washington belt of states there.

Middle East Free-for-All

Finally, in the Middle East, a diplomatic free-for-all prevails. The U.S. backs Israel although it earnestly wishes it could produce a compromise peace that would enable American relationships with the Arabs to improve. Russia has been badly kicked in its pride by Egypt and is on the outs with Libya but still has a strong pro-Arab position in the U.N. and power bases in Syria and Iraq.

China, less immediately concerned, has been a steadfast supporter of the more extreme factions among the Palestine Arab guerrillas. Peking hopes to whittle down the American and Soviet positions by such a manoeuvre which costs more in words than in money or material.

From this cursory survey it becomes obvious that what we are now entering is an age of movement and constant change in the diplomatic stream. The cold war ice has thawed and now breaks into crazily shifting kaleidoscopic patterns. Nobody knows in what direction the floes are headed.

Santa Clauses Without Xmas

TORONTO — It was only a few weeks ago that Premier William Davis was fending off questions about party bagmen, political fund-raising and similar unpleasantries. Sure, Mr. Davis was saying, the system was bad but he didn't have the answer to it and, judging from what had been tried elsewhere, nobody else did either.

Suddenly Mr. Davis has the answer. There is to be legislation introduced, probably in the late spring, requiring political parties to reveal what they get from the corporations and "other institutions" — a nice euphuism for such unincorporated things as trade unions, manufacturers' associations, medical societies and so on.

There is also to be a study of such related questions as the use of tax revenues for political campaigns and the advisability of ceilings on campaign spending, which study will be conducted by a Commission now looking at the role and function of the Legislature. Perhaps the Commission will have recommendations which can be incorporated in the legislation of next spring.

Surprise

Marvellous conversion! So sudden that the Conservative caucus had not heard of it. So unexpected that even some cabinet ministers could not mask their surprise when Mr. Davis announced it in the Legislature.

What had happened? According to Mr. Davis' statement, nothing much. The question of political party financing was simply "a subject of increasing public interest and concern" and the public needed to be assured everything was above board. The government was simply taking steps to maintain a political system where the parties could function, in the Premier's felicitous phrase, "in an atmosphere above and beyond public doubt, suspicions or cynicism."

But of course Fidinam had happened. Fidinam (Ontario) Ltd., a Swiss-controlled development company, had been discovered giving $50,000 to William Kelly, dear friend and flying companion (in government aircraft) of William Davis, and senior bagman of the Ontario Progressive Conservative Party. Fidinam had been discovered explaining to its head office that the fifty thou' was — tch, tch — "related to UCP-WCB", which meant to those in the know a contract with the Workmen's Compensation Board, a government agency, to put up a $50,000,000 commercial complex at Bloor and Yonge in Toronto in which the WCB would be a major investor and a prime tenant.

Fidinam had also been heard saying that this explanation had all been a terrible mistake and what it should have told its head office was that it had given the $50,000, one month after the cabinet had approved the deal, just to promote "good and stable government."

So few people believed this expurgated version, or the government's no-more-convincing attempts to look the other way, that there developed an atmosphere which was not, to put it mildly, "above and beyond public doubt, suspicion or cynicism." Some might even call it a scandal. Rascals that they are, the NDP put down a motion of no confidence to force a debate which would have required yet another embarrassing defence from the government side. One hour before this debate was to begin, Mr. Davis announced his tour de force.

DALTON CAMP

Does he mean it? Despite the circumstances of conception, there is considerable evidence that he does. The Ontario legislation, for example, will require identification of corporate donors — something the abortive federal bill of early this year shied away from. It will require incorporation of political parties as legal entities, a necessary step to the production of audited financial statements on revenues and expenses. Most important, it will require the parties rather than the donors to disclose, which is essential to realistic enforcement.

On the other hand, there is considerable evidence the whole thing is a charade, something to play while the Fidinam heat is on.

Thus there is no reference whatever in Mr. Davis' statement to financial donations to political candidates — only to political parties. Mr. Davis later contended during debate in the Legislature that by parties he includes candidates, but constructing a law to that effect will be no easy matter. There is a law now which requires candidates to disclose campaign expenses and it is a farce.

Similarly Mr. Davis was vague about whether the amounts donated would have to be disclosed or just the identity of the donors. He was undecided as to whether "nominal" donations, not otherwise defined, would have to be disclosed. He was uncertain as to whether there should be a ceiling on the amount that could be donated.

The whole question of disclosing donations from private individuals was left up in the air, something to be studied by the Commission on the Legislature. It hardly needs to be pointed out that a law requiring corporate but not individual disclosure would be worthless: the corporations would simply continue to give to bagmen like Mr. Kelly (who is not a Conservative party official) for relay to the party.

The Camp Attitude

That this issue, and related issues like the use of public funds for political campaigns, should be referred to the Commission on the Legislature is curious indeed, since that Commission is chaired by one Dalton Camp, another dear friend of William Davis who has left no doubt where he stands on such matters.

Mr. Camp, a political scenario writer and erstwhile advertising executive, has pronounced himself on various occasions in his writings as being opposed to the use of tax revenues for campaign expenses, opposed to a ceiling on election expenditures, opposed to any requirement to disclose donations, and in favor of income tax credits up to a fixed amount for individuals and corporations who contribute money to political parties.

Mr. Davis was asked if he didn't think Mr. Camp might be just a bit biased from the outset and he replied he thought Mr. Camp was just as unbiased as the other two members of the Commission — Farquhar Oliver, a long-time Liberal MP, and Douglas Fisher, columnist and former NDP member of Parliament.

Ah well, if William Davis can change his mind, why can't Dalton Camp? Dalton probably wrote the whole scenario anyway.

Help Rendered

I would like to thank all who so kindly helped me on "Remembrance Day" and the person who phoned the police when I was forcefully grabbed by two youths endeavoring to get my handbag. In the shocking encounter I was thrown to the pavement (I am an arthritic on crutches and am unable to get up when I fall).

It was a grim experience and I am thankful to all those who were so helpful and kind. — Agnes Brown, 1126 Rockland Ave.

Sports Facilities

Many candidates in recent municipal elections have expressed the need for additional recreational facilities in their particular municipalities.

I wonder if any of these candidates have had a tour of an exceptionally fine recreational facility, The Racquet Club, which is situated in Saanich near the university. This is a sports complex offering the community the best in curling, skating, hockey, figure skating, badminton, squash, tennis and swimming. Families living in or out of the area in which it is located may join for an initial amount plus monthly dues which only cover the expenses incurred in running such a complex. Yet that facility has still to reach its membership quota.

It would appear that certain families who could participate are sitting back waiting for a municipally operated sports centre so they and theirs may participate at a low cost while the taxpayer pays the balance. Aldermen and council would do well to investigate thoroughly the costs of constructing, maintaining and administering to what I suggest would be an excess in recreational facilities.

Oak Bay constructed a hall off Henderson Road for a cost of about $270,000 so that, among other things, a small group of citizens who had previously played badminton at Oak Bay Junior High could enjoy top rate facilities at a rate of about $15 per series. I question who pays the balance of the costs.

I question the need for another recreational facility when one serving the community now is not filled to capacity. Building costs are at an all-time high. Can the taxpayer pay the additional tax burden that such a sports centre would create?

I suggest that schools allot school time to such sports as swimming, hockey and skating so that maximum use may be made of existing facilities. As it is, children are forced to cram activities such as these into out-of-school hours 6-8:30 a.m. and 4-8:00 p.m. while there are many hours in a day when skating ice is available and unused.

There is an inexorable waste of available halls, gyms and other recreational areas in our present society. Must we constantly expect more?

Think about it taxpayers. — A Concerned Taxpayer.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of Dec. 19, 1912:

NEW WESTMINSTER — A quarter of a million dollar deal in property was put through this week when W. Finch-Page, of Victoria, sold 17 acres at the extreme upper end of Lulu Island and within the city limits to a Brandon capitalist. A substantial amount of cash changed hands in the deal. A peculiar feature of the sale is that of the 17 acres involved, only about two acres are above water. About 15 acres are under the waters of the Fraser, although not very deep.

INDIA:

'Don't Talk About Famine'

By HARFORD THOMAS
Manchester Guardian

Three drought years in a row threaten another calamitous famine

In a Bombay newspaper this month there was the story of a village farmer who took his bullock to market and sold it for a dozen bananas. He was hungry. In his drought-ravaged fields there was no fodder for his animals and he himself had neither money nor food.

In the Maharashtra state parliament the other day there was a fuss about the translation of a Hindi word as "famine." The proper translation should have used the word "scarcity." The chief minister explained that it was an official instruction from Delhi to refer to scarcity and not to famine — to talk of famine, it was held in Delhi, would demoralize people.

In the Delhi Parliament there was a row about whether or not a village family in a drought area had died of starvation or just died of natural causes. There was in some quarters an evident political preference for natural causes.

Outside Delhi you will find a widely held view that India is on the verge of another calamitous famine, possibly as bad as the Bihar famine of 1966-67.

Crops Shrivelled

It is exceedingly difficult to establish the facts, but there is no doubt that in many parts of India, notably in the arid states of Rajastan and Gujerat and in the dry upland areas of the Deccan, the monsoon summer rains failed or partially failed, and that in some places this is the third drought year in succession, and in the worst hit areas, the seventh or eighth bad year.

The Indian farmer expects to get at least two crops a year, one in the summer wet season, and another, planted at the tail-end of the monsoon, in the winter.

But since July there has been no rain in the drought areas. Where the winter crop has been sown it has shrivelled and died — even just outside Bombay, which normally can rely on generous rains, I saw patches of pathetic crops which had died when they were only a few inches high.

One estimate, for the Bombay region, is that as many as a million desperate migrants may arrive in Bombay looking for some way of keeping themselves alive. But Bombay already has uncounted thousands of workless, and a water shortage of its own.

Last week there were reports of migrating families arriving in some hundreds at Bombay railway stations, and settling down on the platforms, with their pitiful bundles of possessions, until they could find somewhere else — some better patch of pavement — to live.

There are relief operations already in hand in some of the drought stricken areas, but by all accounts they are singularly inadequate. In principle those on relief should be put to useful work — in theory, for example, on repairing the banks of the dried out reservoirs (tanks, they call them), or digging new irrigation channels, or sinking wells.

In practice, the simple resort all too often is to put these desperate people on to breaking stone for roadworks. The idea behind requiring some work for a relief dole is to preserve their self-respect, but one stone-breaking villager is reported to have complained that it was worse than prison — in prison you got better fed.

An Indian journalist, Miss Amrita Rangasami, of the Indian Express, has spent six weeks in the drought areas. One discovery she made is that the so-called scarcity relief rules are much the same as those operated in the Poona area by the British authorities in the 1870s.

This underlines the general inadequacy of India's response to its chronic problem of drought. It is not as though drought is an unexpected calamity. In one area near Poona there have been 22 drought years in the past 30. A drought may be unpredictable, but there, as in other places it is a two to one odds-on probability.

Irrigation is the only answer. Even in dry areas in this scorching year you may come upon green fields, and soil which is not baked hard and unplowable, where there is irrigation.

Water Is Near

A lot has been done (by Unicef, Oxfam, and other aid organizations) to introduce the tube-well drilling rig to India in the past five or six years.

In the Bihar famine six years ago relief teams found that in some places they could reach water in a few hours only 20 or 30 feet down. Unicef has shown that hammer drill rigs can reach water deep under hard rock in no more than a week. Yet in the Bombay paper last week I read of hopes for another 15 rigs in Maharashtra, population 40 million and bigger in area than the United Kingdom, as though that would do more than touch the barest fringes of the need.

Drilling rigs are now being manufactured in India, but so far as I could discover with nothing like the necessary order of urgent priority. And I was told that some of the tube wells that have been sunk are out of action for lack of pumping engines.

India is not unambitious in its technology. There is talk of launching an Indian satellite into stabilised orbit to relay television programs to the whole of India by 1980. India could develop its own nuclear weapons and their delivery systems. Could not its ambition extend, say, to a water grid tapping the mountain sources of its great rivers? On quite a large scale something of the sort has proved itself in the Punjab, now the centre of the green revolution.

Meanwhile water will remain the limiting factor to many of India's prospects and ambitions. To the outside observer it is obvious, but seemingly less so to the Indians themselves who have learned to endure all manner of calamities, perhaps with a fortitude too close to fatalism.

You may even hear the argument that some good can come of the drought if it kills off the useless cattle — the sacred cows — which eat but yield neither milk nor meat. (I heard one estimate in Rajastan, that 25 per cent of the cattle may die.)

It is, of course, all too easy (and perhaps unintentionally offensive) to criticize. What is desirable to do cannot easily be done in a country with almost half its huge population living below the poverty line. So much needs to be done at once. But water is crucial, and from what I have found out in visits to India last April and last month, the drought hazard gets worse.

Over the long run, deforestation has been turning former fertile areas into arid waste. More recently, over the last few years, the level of the water table has been falling in many places, and wells have dried up, including some which have been only recently sunk.

Nor is a drought such as this year's an event which will be put right by the next monsoon. The desperate villagers may sell up all they have then trek to the cities. How will they buy the bullocks and the seed to plow and sow their fields if they decide to go back to their villages after the next rains? Some will remain destitute in the cities, as if there were not enough destitute there already. Those who return to their villages may become the virtual serfs of the local moneylender.

Can Be Rescued

It is not good enough to talk of all this as "scarcity." For most people there is scarcity almost everywhere in India. For tens of millions there is endemic famine brought on by drought, if not last year or this year, then next year or the year after. Some areas may soon become uninhabitable because of persistent drought, but many others can be rescued if only water can be got to them. The world and its international agencies need to know of this. No one will gain by hiding it behind semantic doublethink.

A Quebecer Explains Her Vote for Trudeau

By SOLANGE CHAPUT-ROLLAND
Montreal Gazette

The defeat of a political party, the formation of a minority government is not unusual in Canada. We have lived through such times before and the country has not been destroyed. But this is the first time that such a deep cleavage has happened between nine Conservative Anglophone provinces and one French Liberal province.

Few French Canadians at this point are ready to accept the convenient conclusions of all those who now say that the Trudeau government was judged only on its poor administration, its poor legislation, its anti-inflation policy.

French Canadians, too, are awared of the many failures of the Liberal government, but our support for this imperfect government is indicative of our need to believe in the new and bold Canada the PM is trying to create.

How else can we explain why most of the country turned against him while most of us — who also bore the brunt of his arrogance, who witnessed the tensions between the Quebec government and his, who lived hour-by-hour the agony of the October, 1970 crisis, the proclamation of the War Measures Act, who realized the exasperation of some federal politicians with the abortion of the proposed Victoria Charter, who were at times furious with his reaction to Quebec's claims of speaking for La Francophonie who suffer from unemployment — yes, how else can we explain our loyalty to him if not because he was a member of the family, a man clinging to a dream?

No one in French Canada has yet spoken about a "racist vote," as the Globe and Mail puts it. Some of us are convinced that the Conservatives' clan is not a backlash against Premier Bourassa, or French-Canadians in general.

But there are many who feel within our souls that underneath the Liberal defeat, there is a repudiation of Pierre Elliott Trudeau's ideas of the French influence in Ottawa, and however loud and indignant are the protests of many English-speaking Canadians against such views, it is at present almost impossible for me not to believe them.

"It will be a long time before French-Canadians go back to work in Ottawa," said one of my colleagues. "I am 32, and I shall not probably see this day."

"How strange," said a young girl, "that Quebec has been perceived as not believing in Trudeau's Canada, yet we end by being the only province which does."

It seems that Trudeaumania has turned into Trudeauphobia. Trudeau was probably aware of this fact long before we were. I suspect that he went about his job of transforming Canada without protecting his image, without making any compromises in order to win his election.

CHAPUT-ROLLAND
... 'bonjour, sweet prince'

Of course he has not answered all the problems with all of the best solutions. Of course he was too arrogant.

But can we honestly pretend that the King government with a C. D. Howe in a position of great power, was not an arrogant government? Or that John Diefenbaker was a humble man, that Sir John A. Macdonald was a diplomat who never swore, never drank, never told people to mind their own business?

Let me be quite blunt. We French Canadians are quite used to arrogant manners in this country. For years we stood silent when we were told "put up or shut up; speak English or else."

These expressions have disappeared in Canada, probably out of respect for the PM, or out of fear of Quebec's nationalism. But I suspect that in less than three or four years under a Tory government bilingualism outside Quebec will be a vague souvenir for the bitter civil servants who now resent the obligation of learning a second language to work in Canada.

As a French Canadian I certainly do not suspect Robert Stanfield of hiding anti-French feelings; he will not tolerate such feelings if they are expressed in front of him. But how will he convince us to trust his party and forget the strong backlash which exists in Ontario and in Western Canada, not especially against Quebec, but against those "darn French Canadians in Ottawa."

Such expressions are conclusive. And however convenient are most of the explanations given to explain Trudeau's defeat, however difficult it is to understand the reasons for the anti-Trudeau vote, we are also aware that individually the voters have given their trust to Stanfield, David Lewis and Real Couette in almost all the provinces.

At the same time, to deny that an anti-Trudeau reaction must be disassociated from his cultural background, from his decision to appoint influential French Canadians in almost every sphere of our Canadian life, is to choose blindness to realism.

If Parliament rejects the new Trudeau government, if as it is already suggested John Turner takes over the destiny of the Liberals, I hope that one of us will have enough courage to say in our best Shakesperian manners: "Bonjour, sweet prince! Come back home; if Canadians have lost confidence in you, we — the strange combination of French and Engish speaking Quebecers — have not.

"Through you, sir, for once, the two Quebec solitudes have met; let's keep them that way."

The Orangemen of Africa

By TONY GRAY

One of the most bizarre sights this world has to offer is the annual march of the Orangemen of Ghana and Togoland through the sandy streets of Lome.

The marchers, who wear Orange collarettes and cuffs and sometimes even bowler hats, are all black, members of the Ewe and Avatime tribes. They march to celebrate the victory of a Dutch prince over an English king commanding a largely French army — in Ireland nearly 300 years ago and 3,000 miles away.

The West African Orangemen know that the movement spread into Togoland and Ghana from Nigeria, but they are not sure who started it there. They assume it must have been intoduced by an Ulster missionary long since departed.

At the moment they have about 500 members on their books including junior members and loyal ladies and the lodges have names like "Defenders of the Truth," "Palime Heroes," "Pride of Keta" and "Hope of Ghana."

The parent Orange Order which, if I may mix my metaphors, sired this exotic tropical offshoot, is a semi-secret society. It is organized in lodges on the Masonic pattern and sworn to uphold the Protestant ascendancy. It infiltrates every aspect of life in Ulster and is largely responsible for the very existence of Northern Ireland as a separate state — and for the way in which the Unionist Party has been managing that state for half a century.

The Order grew out of a faction fight between Protestant and Catholic gangs at a place called The Diamond in Country Antrim in 1795, and has since spread all over the world, wherever the Irish have emigrated. There are active lodges in Australia, New Zealand, America and Canada, where one lodge consists exclusively of men of Red Indian stock — Orange Indians, you might say.

The African Orangemen see themselves defending the Protestant faith against all comers. In Lome, I met an assembly of African Orange dignitaries.

I asked them what was the precise significance of King Billy's victory at the Battle of Boyne in 1690 in terms of life today along the banks of the Volta River. "The Battle of Boyne," they replied, "symbolizes the triumph of a man who accepted the open Bible as the word of God."

Were their aims and objects roughly the same as those of the Orange Order in Ulster? "No. We believe in adapting the Orange Order ideas to local conditions. Here the Order stands for feeedom to practise the Protestant religion and make it victorious over all other religions through education."

"They'll have an uphill battle there; at least three-quarters of the people in the area believe in animism — they believe that natural objects like trees possess spirits — and many of them practice voodoo.

There is a sacred forest in down-town Lome. While I was there the police arrested a goat and were holding it in jail until such time as it reassumed its human form, when it would be charged with kidnapping children; and the story was printed in all seriousness on the front page of the local paper, Togo-Presse.

What was the significance of the siege of Londonderry, and the slogan "No Surrender?" It meant "No surrender to any other religion." And King Billy? They directed my attention to a typed statement of their aims and objects. One of these read: "We are grateful to the Almighty God that we belong to this universal Christian Order which bears the name of the Prince of Orange whose immortal memory we hold in reverence as a patriot and a true Christian, hoping always to emulate his virtues."

How did they feel about events in Northern Ireland at the moment? If the British pulled out and the Catholics started to murder their fellow Orangemen in Ulster, would they — as certain Canadian and Scots Orangemen have promised to do — send a contingent of fighting African Orangemen to Northern Ireland?

No; they were all agreed on this. "We condemn violence in any shape or form. We should simply pray for them. We believe in the efficacy of prayer. Our only guns and bombs are our prayers. We believe this to be the true spirit of Orangeism. It's basically a religious institution. Only those in Ireland mix it up with politics over there."

Calling home for Christmas? Here are some suggestions to make it easier.

There is great joy in exchanging Christmas greetings by telephone. So much so, in fact, that thousands and thousands of Canadians do so each year.

It isn't possible to reserve specific times for long distance calls but you can minimize delay by following these tips:

FIRST — Make a list now of the phone numbers (including area codes) of the people you plan to call. Get these, without charge, through your operator or by following instructions in your telephone directory for dialing direct. Do this now and avoid battling heavy holiday traffic just to get your numbers.

SECOND — Don't wait until Christmas Day itself, when circuits across Canada will be overloaded, to place all your calls. Spread them over the Christmas season.

Your family and friends will enjoy your calls just as much and you'll be more certain of getting through without delay.

REMEMBER — Most long distance calls cost less when you dial them yourself. Even less after 6 p.m. and all day Sunday.

So, give them a call for Christmas. No bothersome shopping, wrapping or mailing.

MB RESTORES $1 DIVIDEND

VANCOUVER (CP)—MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. directors Monday announced they were restoring the company dividend rate to the previous level of $1.

The company has so far in 1972 paid dividends of 90 cents a share.

The company announcement said an extra dividend of 10 cents a share, payable out of 1972 earnings, would be paid Jan. 15, 1973, to shareholders of record at the close of business on Dec. 29, 1972.

At the same time the directors decided to offer to redeem the outstanding redeemable preference shares of the company at their par value of $1 a share.

CTC Outlines Rules In Bell Rate Hearing

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada's newest bid for higher user charges will go before the Canadian transport commission Jan. 10, the commission confirmed Monday.

The decision was announced by E. J. Benson, commission chairman, after sessions with lawyers representing Bell Canada and the half-dozen governments or private organizations opposing the increases.

The session was called to arrange ground rules for the hearing, which is expected to last weeks.

The governments of Quebec and Ontario, provinces served by Bell, are main interveners in the process. Bell also serves parts of Labrador and the Northwest Territories.

The commission rejected a request by Quebec and the Association of Municipalities of Ontario to hear the two separate parts of the Bell proposal at the same time. Bell divided its application into A and B sections, the first covering increases for 1973, the second for the following year.

The company said the 1973 increases are needed just to retain, in the face of rising costs over which it has no control, the scale of earnings the commissin had in mind when ite allowed Bell rate increases that went into effect last June. The increases would develop $36 million more revenue if effective throughout 1973, Bell estimates.

Without a fast infusion of extra funds such as would be generated by the increases set out in section A, the company says earnings will drop and it will be unable to secure, at reasonable terms, the capital it needs for construction to keep its service functioning well.

The increases Bell wants for 1973, announced Nov. 10, include a flat five cents month for all residence and hotel telephones, higher charges on the initial period for long-distance calls and a 50-per-cent increase in most service charges.

In the latter category, cost for installation of a home telephone would to to $16.50 from the current $11.

For 1974, the company seeks wider rate changes designed to step up its rate of return, the profit it generates for each dollar invested in its business.

It proposes another service charge increase then, putting home installation up to $22, and an increase in all the basic monthly rates. These rates would go up 30 to 45 cents a month, depending on the size of the community.

Exchange Student Learns the Knack

HALIFAX (CP) — For a 16-year-old Mexican girl arriving in Canada on a one-year student exchange program, the first hurdles were learning the language and getting use to her first snowfall.

And then she had to acquire the knack of making beds and washing clothes.

At her home in Celaya, Mex., the family of Silvia Gomez Guzman employed four servants to look after the household chores. But during the exchange program sponsored by the Rotary Club, the visitor is expected to assume the same responsibilities as rich and the poor in Canada.

In Mexico, she says, the distinction is obvious.

When she arrived here in late August, Silvia said she only knew three sentences of English: "My name is Silvia Guzman. I am 16 years old. Don't ask me any questions."

But with the help of her host family and students in her Grade 12 class she is rapidly becoming more familiar with the language.

MORE FREEDOM

During her stay, Silvia will live for three months with four Canadian families and said that so far the trip has been "a good experience for knowledge."

There appears to be much more freedom here compared with the conservative society of Mexico and the young student said she welcomes the chance to make her own decisions.

Doing so many things for the first time was an "incredible sensation," she said, and she was particularly enthralled with the first snowstorm of the season.

"I wrote seven letters to Mexico that day. I just couldn't believe it."

A major difference, aside from the weather, said Silvia, is that she can't readily tell the difference between the

There are other calculators under $100 but none we know of with all the features of the

DIGI-matic 8

The incomparable DIGI-MATIC 8 is sold only by Sears

For under $100 we know of no other portable calculator that will give you office machine accuracy and convenience away from the office. The DIGI-MATIC 8 is the kind of personal-size calculator you've been waiting for. Fast, accurate, durable, attractive, the DIGI-MATIC 8 adds, subtracts, multiplies, divides and does mixed calculations anytime, anywhere. Instantly. Without any excuses. Here's why:

Floating decimal
Some portable calculators have a fixed decimal. This leads to small errors when you multiply or divide using a few decimal places, gross errors when working with many decimal places. The DIGI-MATIC 8 has a floating decimal. Which means it doesn't round figures off to one or two decimals. The decimal point goes where it has to go to give you the correct answer.

Constant key
Special constant key permits continuous multiplication or division.

CE key
Say you're working to a final total through a long set of calculations. And you make a mistake on the last entry. The CE key allows you to clear the wrong entry and put in the correct one. There's no need to start all over from the beginning.

Portable power counts
Many portable calculators offer you only minutes of portable calculating time. The DIGI-MATIC 8 offers you up to 3 hours. You see, some other calculators use small throw-away batteries. Like some toys. But the DIGI-MATIC 8 is powered by rechargeable ni-cad batteries (recharger included). You simply plug it in and while you're using it, the DIGI-MATIC 8 is recharging itself.

More

- Credit balance function allows you to get a minus read-out
- 8 digit read-out is in full-view when in use on a flat surface
- Overflow indicator tells you when total contains more than 8 digits
- Tough ABS plastic case; measures 5¾"x3", total weight is just 10 ozs.
- Cord and plug unit for recharging and for normal office use
- Attractive carrying case
- 1 year guarantee

Time for Decision on Tax Loss Selling

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

With less than two weeks of 1972 tax loss selling time left, some investment houses are urging their clients to take swift action, while others are warning against precipitate selling.

Consensus is that tax loss selling is an excellent idea but only under very special circumstances.

The conditions are:

1. Buying price and valuation day value are about the same.

2. There has been a considerable drop since that time.

3. The stock appears to be holding firm at the low price or perhaps heading lower — but certainly not heading up.

4. Other factors such as dividends and warrants are to be considered as well.

An ideal situation would be a stock purchased at $20 with a valuation day value of $19.50 and currently selling at $14.

It fits neatly with points one and two. But a check with the broker is vital to consider the stock's prospects over the next month (at least a 30-day wait is necessary between sale and buying back).

If the stock seems likely to edge upwards, more would be lost in investment value than gained by tax concessions.

Ideally the stock should be in the doldrums until at least February or it should not be sold, investment houses say.

The whole point of tax loss selling is to make the trades without losing any money except the cost of commissions.

For example, two investors buy the same number of shares of a company at $20. It has a valuation day value of $19.50 and this week the stock is at $14.

One man sells and buys back in February at $14. The other one just holds on.

A year later the price has gone to $20 again. Their situations are identical except that one has had the tax advantage of the loss (minus the commissions) while the other has not.

Tax write-offs are effective only when they involve paper losses and not real ones.

Tickled Tiger Not Tame

LONDON (AP) — The model who tickled a tiger won $25,000 damages today from the man who took her to the zoo.

Merilyn Trehearne, 22, testified she was told the tiger she tickled was tame.

Instead, she added, it mauled her arm and ruined her career as a model.

Judge Sir Joseph Catley said Mrs. Trehearne's arm now is grotesque and her career gone.

He ordered the damages paid by James Osborne, half-brother of the zoo's owner, John Aspinall. Aspinall, a joint defendant, was absolved from all blame, the judge said.

B.C. Mills Hike Price

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia's three newsprint producers have increased their selling prices by $5 a ton effective next March.

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. notified its customers prices for standard newsprint would increase March 1 to $164 a ton in the lower mainland and on Vancouver Island. Prices for the B.C. interior and Alberta will be $166 a ton.

The MB notification was followed by those of B.C. Forest Products Ltd. and Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., both of whom set identical rates but made the effective date March 15.

President R. G. Rogers of Crown Zellerbach said the increase was necessary because of rising costs of labor, distribution and materials.

"Profits are under continuing pressure and our return on investment — 4.2 per cent last year — is not satisfactory," he said.

The first boosts in price were announced in November by Anglo-Canadian Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd. and Consolidated Bathurst Ltd.

MYSTERY GAS IN WASHROOM FELLS WAITER

Michael Waldron, of Ronald Road, a waiter at Denny's Restaurant, was stricken early Sunday morning after being exposed to a mysterious gas in the restaurant's washroom.

A later search turned up several small fragments of a glass phial which had been dropped on the washroom floor.

Glass fragments were taken for examination by armed forces personnel who said today that identification of the gas was complicated by the small quantity available for analysis.

Waldron was released after 12 hours examination at Royal Jubilee Hospital Sunday. He has suffered nausea and irritation to the eyes.

Complex Hearing Friday

Central Saanich council gave three readings Monday to a sports complex land-use bylaw which calls for completion of the $1.3 million building on Mount Newton Crossroad by Aug. 31, 1973.

A public hearing will be held at 8 p.m. Friday in the municipal hall to discuss the privately-built complex which will house an Olympic-size swimming pool, skating arena and eight curling sheets.

The contract, which may be signed at a council meeting following the public hearing, binds the company, Western Recreational Resources Ltd., to commence work immediately.

Municipal Solicitor Rod MacDonald explained details of the agreement to council Monday and said that stipulations had been added to cover landscaping and grassing of parking areas not immediately required.

Sooke Plans Improved Schools

In the wake of 72 per cent voter approval for its $3.28 million school building referendum, Sooke School District has called for architects' sketch plans for $1¼ million worth of school improvements.

District superintendent Ernest Hyndman said today he is commissioning sketch plans for:

A $408,000 wing which would house a workshop, artroom, drafting room and other services in Edward Milne secondary school.

Transfer Decision Delayed

Greater Victoria school board failed to reach any decision Monday on the case of Willows principal Tom Curteis, who is appealing his transfer to another school.

The board has informed Curteis earlier that he would be moved to a new school next September, in line with recent board policy of moving principals every five years.

Curteis wrote to the board protesting the decision in his case because he plans to retire in three years.

A letter backing Curteis, signed by a majority of parents in the school, was also sent to the board and Curteis was given an appeal hearing.

In an in-camera session of the board Monday night decision on the appeal was reserved until the new year.

What can you say about Sony?

Particularly about their 17" portable colour TV? You could say something about the colour. Something like it's wild, fascinating and a completely new concept in the world of home entertainment. Or, you could say something technical. Like it's got a 100% solid state circuitry, new picture/pull control for adjustable colour, push knob in for maximum sharpness, pull out for a softer picture and all kinds of other ultra modern controls. You could also say it has all the standard features like UHF and diapole antennae and an external antenna connector. But, you really don't need to say all that because it's a Sony. And everyone knows that's the best kind of colour TV you can buy for the right price.

More than a million letters a day are being handled by the Victoria office, which hired 650 extra workers for the three-week rush period. Women at right stand in lines all day stacking envelopes ready to be stamped through cancelling machines, while dozens of other women wait to sort the stacks for destinations all over the world. Manpower Blitzes Bosses

On-the-Job-Training Program Attracts Few Takers

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Slow response of local businessmen to the federal government's 1973 training-on-the-job program has sparked a massive telephone and advertising campaign by the Victoria Manpower office.

Manpower assistant manager F. E. Schroeder said his office worked overtime last week phoning more than 500 employers in the city to promote the program.

So far 14 training contracts have been signed in the Victoria area out of 73 applications returned but not yet processed.

Deadline for applications is Dec. 31.

Schroeder said the Victoria office will have about $300,000 to spend on programs and should create about 100 jobs.

A total of $4.5 million is available in all of B.C. for jobs and 150 projects have been approved so far.

Under the program, which operated for the first time last year, employers hire and train workers in addition to their regular labor force, and Manpower pays 75 per cent of their salaries during the first half of their training and 50 per cent of the latter half.

Training programs may run six to 40 weeks and Manpower will not pay more than $118 a week.

Jobs in which there is already an abundance of skilled workers will not be subsidized.

Schroeder said the program should not be seen as subsidizing the regular operating costs of business.

We're accelerating business expansion," he said. "Small businesses especially are hesitant to add new employees to their operation.

"The cost of hiring a new person is so much greater than their productivity during the training period and the training takes other employees away from their jobs, further decreasing productivity.

"We're trying to assist them," Schroeder said, "during that expensive period."

He denied that Manpower was therefore supporting inefficient business.

The philosophy of the program is to create jobs as well as teach Canadians "to learn skills of continuing and transferable value," according to a Manpower fact sheet.

Schroeder admitted that it might happen that an employer fires the new trainee after a long subsidized training program, but added that the projects are well scrutinized by Manpower.

Employers must submit a plan for formal training of the new employees and officials check on progress throughout the program.

Co-ordinator S. G. Watson said the program is also designed to give young people on-the-job experience.

Classroom training, even in vocational schools, does not replace experience as a job-getting equalification, according to Watson.

The program is also seen as a way of getting university graduates into the job market.

Schroeder said the training scheme is part of an on-going government plan which will later include skills development and training for handicapped workers.

Last year 12,000 contracts hiring 42,000 workers across Canada were approved under the scheme.

Jobs ranged from mine electricians to knitters to oyster hatchery workers to carpenters.

Watson said in Victoria some of the jobs applied for this year include a veterinarian's helper, public relations consultant, automotive repair trainee and drive-in food outlet manager.

$10,000 Paid Out For Car Clean-Up

A clean-up of junked cars littering the countryside has netted more than 1,700 vehicles, Capital Regional District engineer Bill Gerry reported today.

The effort has cost local taxpayers $10,000, or about $6 per abandoned car, and a surplus of $2,000 in the budget is being used to round up derelict car bodies on Salt Spring Island.

The junked cars, assembled in a number of depots, will be crushed by a provincial government machine, probably in February, and recycled at a plant in Richmond.

Gerry said the project has been "pretty effective" at picking up abandoned autos from backyards, ravines, old roads and rights of way.

"After we have, through 1973, a continuing drive of this kind, we will have cleaned up the majority of this junk from the countryside," he said.

"The ideal solution is one permanent depot where people can bring cars and dump them without charge and once a year we can clean them up. It would save everyone a lot of money."

The crushed and baled cars will be shipped to Richmond, where they go through a shredding and separating operation. The ferrous material is then fed into a recovery smelter.

Gerry said the baled autos are sold to the Richmond company by the province, which used the income to defray the expense of crushing operations.

SSEU Opens Contract Talks With Quest for 15.6% Hike

The provincial Social Service Employees' Union in a letter to open contract negotiations with Victoria Family and Children's Service has proposed salary increases of up to 32.6 per cent for some members, in a one-year contract.

FCS executive director Gordon Wright, at the monthly board meeting Monday evening, said the opening proposals of the union would mean an over-all payroll increase of 15.6 per cent.

He told directors the union's approach is "novel" and proposes a monthly increase of $106 for every category. He called this a major adjustment which would drastically alter the differential between union categories.

Wright said the 32.6 per cent increase would apply to junior categories and senior positions would be increased by about 10 per cent.

The present contract expires Mar. 31, 1973, and Wright told the board he sees no obstacle to completion of negotiations by that time.

The opening proposal of the SSEU deals with a number of other points as well, he said. These include staff probation, tenure, vacations, leaves of absence, employee evaluation and performance reports, and mileage payments.

FCS directors went into closed session at the end of the regular meeting to discuss further the opening move of the union, and possibly to elect a negotiating committee.

Monday's FCS directors meeting was the first to be opened to press and public in the history of the organization. Open meetings are to continue for six months trial.

Wright, in announcing the opening of board meetings Nov. 30, said "the board took the position that as the Family and Children's Service operates a $3 million program of public social services on behalf of families and children in the Greater Victoria area, members of the public should have the opportunity to know more about the agency's programs, their planning and their operation."

All operating funds for FCS come from federal and provincial tax sources.

It operates seven neighborhood family counselling and child welfare teams, group homes, day care centres and intensive services for delinquent youth.

In other business Monday, FCS directors gave tentative approval for the purchase of a house at a basic price of $27,500 for conversion into a group home for foster children.

Two other such homes owned by FCS are already in operation, Wright said. The board has approved purchase of six in all, but this is only the third one specifically selected.

Wright said he has approached the provincial government for participation in the home purchases, but to date has had no reaction. At present, he indicated, financing for such projects is through legacy funds and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation facilities.

The board also received a report from Wright on a recent inspection by Ben Chudd, chairman of the professional standards committee of the British Columbia Association of Social Workers.

WRIGHT

Wright said the committee has approved an "A rating" for personnel practices at FCS. This is the highest rating given, he added.

Approval was also given for signing of a lease, at $400 per month plus any future increase in municipal taxes, for office space to accommodate a community team of FCS on Alston St., at the west end of the Pt. Ellice bridge.

NCO Electrocuted

A Canadian armed forces marine engineer was apparently electrocuted Monday when working on a piece of equipment in the galley of HMCS Chaudiere.

A post mortem was performed today on Cpl. John Dayley, 30, of 928 Dunsmuir.

A service spokesman said Dayley, father of a 10-month-old son, was discovered about noon and had apparently been electrocuted.

Cmdr. D. R. Donaldson, skipper of the Chaudiere, has ordered a board of inquiry, following a summary investigation carried out this morning.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre ordered the post mortem after having asked Esquimalt police to investigate the incident.

No-Strike Clause Asked For Water Board Workers

Ask The Times

Q. Can you tell me where I can contact a reputable psychic in Victoria?—W.L.

A. Contact the Vancouver Island Society for Psychical Research, 1746 Carrick Street.

Q. Could you please tell me the temperature of the water in Crystal Pool? T.O.

A. The large pool is 80 degrees and the wading and training pools are 85 degrees.

Greater Victoria Water Board moved Monday to try to avert any possibility of a strike by its union employees.

The water district will ask Local 598 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees if it will agree to a no-strike clause in the contract coming up for renewal, and also to binding arbitration on both parties.

If that approach fails, the district will urge the provincial government to pass legislation "outlawing strikes in the vital service of water supply," and to employ binding arbitration in such cases.

Water Commissioner Ron Upward told the board there was no immediate likelihood of strike action by employees, but the probability of that happening some day had to be faced.

If there was a strike, he said, the five supervisory personnel left could operate but not maintain the water supply system.

Board chairman, Mayor Peter Pollen of Victoria, commented that the threat of a strike affecting such a vital service, whether those involved were responsible or irresponsible, was like "holding a loaded shotgun to the head of the community."

Saanich Ald. William Noel said: "It gets to a pretty stage when a union can jeopardize the health of the whole district by a water strike."

PRECARIOUS PERCH of this sea-stranded bulldozer had Oak Bay residents wondering if a new form of amphibious craft was trying to make her way into Oak Bay Marina in Monday's storms. A combination of high tides and wind-lashed waves hid the fact that the machine was actually sitting on top of rocks which will form the base of a spur from Mary Tod Island. The spur and an extension of the breakwater at Turkey Head is being built to provide the marina with protection from southeasterly gales.

Canadian's Fall Wrecks Bid for a Skiing First

MADONNA DI CAMPIGLIO, Italy (UPI) — David Zwilling of Austria carved his way to victory in the World Cup giant slalom today, coming from third place after the first leg to move into the lead of the world cup competition.

Jim Hunter of Canada, 4-10ths of a second in front after the first leg, fell within sight of the finish line as Adolf Roesti of Switzerland took second place behind Zwilling's combined time of three minutes 42.99 seconds. Helmut Schmalzl of Italy twisted and scraped his way from fifth after the first heat to third in the final standings, ahead of France's Henri Duvillard.

The strong Austrian showing continued with Franz Klammer in fifth place, coming from seventh after the first run.

"There is only one way to win a race, and that is to go all out," Hunter said, scorning to baby his first-run lead.

But Canada's No. 1 skier managed to smile after the race despite the fact that he almost became the first male skier from the land of the Maple Leaf to win a World Cup race.

Hunter clocked one minute and 56.56 seconds in winning the first heat, with Roesti in second place and Zwilling third.

Hunter, 19, from Calgary, whose previous best World Cup result was a fourth place in the season's first giant slalom in France, said of his first-run lead: "That's amazing."

Nicknamed "Jungle Jim," Hunter, shaking his curly blond locks as he looked at the time, said the 4,855-foot course was "very long and awful icy."

Nine racers, including Italy's Gustavo Thoeni, fell as the 82 gates were not enough to slow them down on a course which former French team member Goerges Naudiut called "very technical."

Hunter, who joined the Canadian team three years ago, started from 28th place. "Jungle Jim" carved and skated his way down the season's last race before the Christmas break with the same kind of abandon which has turned him into one of the world's best young downhillers.

He said he likes to go fast and believes that "destiny is in the hands of God anyway."

At Saalbach, Austria, defending champion Annemarie Proell of Austria won her second World Cup downhill by more than two seconds over a French girl, Jacqueline Rouvier.

Miss Proell was clocked in one minute 29.58 seconds on a hard and winding trial measuring 2,430 metres with a drop of 458 metres. She was 2.22 seconds ahead of Miss Rougier, timed in 1:32.20.

Brigitte Totschnigg of Austria was third in 1:32.56 and Switzerland's Olympic champion, Marie Therese Nadig, fourth in 1:32.58.

Laurie Kreiner of Timmins, Ont., tied for ninth place with Traudl Treichl of West Germany, each clocking 1:33.24.

The victory netted Miss Proell 25 world cup points. Her leading total was 50 as she had previously won the opening downhill at Val d'Isere, France.

Football: Sneak Preview Of NFL Playoff Games

That portion of the population that otherwise would come down with a case of the screaming DT's this weekend and next fortunately may be saved from a complete attack of alcoholism by sitting in front of TV sets and watching football games.

No, the season isn't over, gals, it's just reaching its frenzy. It's the final countdown to Super Bowl time. And the eight teams you will see on the wide screen are the best of all. One team you won't see won't be there because it didn't know a good quarterback when it had one.

Minnesota Vikings aren't in, and they haven't been much since the 1969-70 season either. That's when Joe Kapp took them to the Super Bowl, where they lost, and where he also played out his option. That's a gimmick whereby a player can take 10 per cent less than his previous year's salary, then opt for a better deal the next.

The Vikes wouldn't buy Kapp's new terms and eventually he sold his services elsewhere, to New England Patriots.

They bought, Kapp signed, but the following year he was out because his contract wasn't a standard player's form, so Commissioner Pete Rozelle vetoed the pact.

That was exit Mr. Kapp. He went to Mount Shasta, Calif., made a movie, Climb an Angry Mountain, later opened a gin mill and eatery in Vancouver, delved into real estate, has been making more movies, and this fall suggested that he didn't give a hoot if he ever played football again. He hasn't.

So, there are other quarterbacks, and NFL teams, in this week's playoffs. And now from the oracle who gave you Saskatchewan in the Grey Cup, and wasn't proven wrong until the 14:59 mark of the final quarter, here's what to expect. (Jimmy the Greek take note.)

Oakland at Pittsburgh. The third highest scoring team (365) in the NFL against the club with the second best defensive record. Only Miami (171) has allowed fewer points than Pittsburgh Steelers (175). In quarterbacks, the veteran Daryle Lamonica is against an improving Terry Bradshaw; in placekickers, two of the best, George Blanda against Roy Gerela. If Oakland is underrated, it has surprising depth and the best final-quarter record in the league. The Steelers have the rookie of the year in Franco Harris. The game's in Pittsburgh. It could be the difference. The Steelers by four in what shapes up as a beaut.

Dallas at San Francisco: The Super Bowl champs against an inconsistent but dangerous group of '49ers. The Cowboys could be sleeping giants. Their record is better than that of the '49ers, but then they lost that biggie to the '49ers at home Thanksgiving Day. Frisco is just as unpredictable. They had the division crown for the asking, then blew one to the Rams. On Saturday they were on the way out, until veteran John Brodie in his first game in eight weeks, came to the rescue. Two touchdowns in the final minutes against the Vikes won it. Both are deep in quarterbacks, Roger Staubach is ready to spell of Craig Morton, or vice versa, and Steve Spurrier carried the '49ers when Brodie was hurt. Dallas by three.

Cleveland at Miami: The Browns are in tough, as Miami is deep in power and defence, have quarterback Bob Griese coming on again as a back-up for Earl Morrall. Jim Kiick can't even make the starting side, Mercury Morris has been playing that well, and Larry Csonka is just as bruising a runner as Larry Brown. The Browns have Mike Phipps at quarter and Leroy Kelly to carry the mail and if they don't show much else, they did win 10 games. Miami, however, is undefeated and will be after Sunday, but it will be closer than the Dolphins think. Miami by seven.

Green Bay-Washington: All the statistics point to Washington. Until Sunday the Redskins were second best in the league. If they faltered, Larry Brown didn't play. Here's the best runner in football. The 'Skins' defence is superior as well, and will have to be to stop the power running of Green Bay's two big backs, John Brockington and Macarthur Lane. Washington has the edge too, in experienced quarterbacks. Bill Kilmer backed up by Sonny Jurgenson as opposed to Green Bay's Scott Hunter, aided by rookie Jerry Tagge. Still, Chester Marcol of Green Bay will kick a field goal and win it for "The Pack," Green Bay by two.

Fill-In Does the Job As Iowa State Upset

Stevens, who saw action in only two regular-season games, lifted Tech to a 31-24 lead with 11:28 remaining with his third scoring pass of the night, a three-yard toss to Kevin McNamara. However, the Cyclones converted a late Stevens fumble into a touchdown on a five-yard pass from George Amundson to Ike Harris to close the margin to one point, but Amundson's attempt for victory with a two-point conversion failed when he threw out of the end zone.

Stevens also fired a nine-yard touchdown strike to Jim Robinson and a 22-yarder to Ron Healy.

Stevens became Tech's starting quarterback two days before its final regular-season game when McAshan, first black quarterback at a major school in the Deep South, was suspended for missing a practice.

Johnny Majors of Iowa State announced after his team lost the game that he will accept the head coaching job at the University of Pittsburgh.

Richest Feast For Pro Golfers

NEW YORK (AP) — The 1973 pro golf tour, opening Jan. 4 in Los Angeles, looms as the biggest and richest of all time.

Forty-four tournaments are scheduled and three others are being negotiated.

If these dates are filled, as expected, it will mark the largest number of events in history.

The prize money for the fixed 44 tournaments totals $7,069,649.

The three additional events would raise the aggregate to $8 million.

The 1972 tour had 46 major events, 20 satellites, four Caribbean tournaments and numerous pro-ams for a record $7,690,749.

A new $100,0000 tournament, the B.C. Open, will be staged at Endicott, N.Y., Sept. 20-23.

The Cleveland Open and the National Team Championship at Ligonier, Pa., have been dropped.

Eagles, Cards Waste No Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two low-flying National Football League birds, Philadelphia Eagles and St. Louis Cardinals, fired their head coaches Monday while eight more fortunate teams began dreaming of the Super Bowl.

Eddie Khayat was dropped by Philadelphia after a 2-11-1 season and, further clearing the decks, the Eagles also accepted the resignation of general manager Pete Retzlaff.

Bob Hollway was fired by St. Louis after a second straight 4-9-1 year with the Cardinals. A 24-23 victory Sunday over those same Eagles wasn't enough to save him.

All around the NFL, the coaching boat was rocking.

Tommy Prothro's status with Los Angeles Rams remained in limbo. Weeb Ewbank said he would retire after the 1973 season with New York Jets. And, New York Giants gave Alex Webster another one-year contract.

No word from New England Patriots. Phil Bengtson signed on a month ago as an interim coach when John Mazure was fired and the situation remained clouded for the lowly 3-11 Pats.

Eight somewhat happier NFL teams sketched game plans for Saturday and Sunday playoff showdowns.

Oakland, 10-3-1, plays at Pittsburgh, 11-3, Saturday and Cleveland Browns, 10-4, visit Miami Dolphins, 14-0, Sunday in American Conference match-ups.

In the National Conference, world champion Dallas, 10-4, will be at San Francisco, 8-5-1, Saturday, and Green Bay, 10-4, takes on the Redskins, 11-3, Sunday at Washington.

Hollway reacted with anger at his dismissal by Bill Bidwell, owner of the Cardinals, saying: "I'm a good football coach and a winner. I'll do well with any team I coach."

Support from Cardinal players was bittersweet.

"I really expected him to be back," said quarterback Jim Hart. "It's like taking a step backward."

However, running back Johnny Roland said "it wasn't an unknown fact that a lot of guys didn't take to his coaching philosophies."

St. Louis won is final two games to give Hollway consecutive seasons of 4-9-1 since taking over from another fired Cardinal leader, Charley Winner.

Ewbank, 66, has served New York in the dual job of head coach-general manager since the Titanas of the old American Football League were renamed the Jets in 1963.

"Next season will be my last as head coach," said Ewbank.

"I want to spend some time with my wife. She's a pretty good gal."

Across town, the Giants rewarded Webster for an 8-6 season, giving the former star halfback a fifth straight one-year deal.

Philadelphia owner Leonard Tose said Retzlaff, a former star wide receiver with the Eagles, submitted his resignation three weeks ago.

Khayat, 37, went to the Eagles owner 10 days ago and wanted to know where he stood.

The former placekicker-tackle was hired as Egale line coach in 1971 and was promoted to the headd job when Jerry Williams was dropped after an 0-3 beginning to the season.

Khayat applied an iron grip, ordering players to shave beards and mustaches and ordering some to get haircuts. It seemed to work as Philadelphia rallied for a 6-7-1 over-all record.

Nothing worked this year.

"I don't want to sound smart or glib," said Tose, "but I want a man who can take the present material plus players from the draft and make us a winner."

Retzlaff, 40, was hired four years ago when trucking executive Tose bought the team from financially-troubled Jerry Wolman for $16.5 million.

Retzlaff said at the time: "I'm going to run things my way. If this baby doesn't grow up, it means I haven't fed it right. It will be my fault."

Prothroe's second Rams team finished 6-7-1 losing the National Conference Western Division to San Francisco. The former UCLA coach is two years into a five-season deal.

Carroll Rosenbloom, who made pro football history by trading his Baltimore franchise for the Rams, said:

SKRIEN TOUTING RIDER ASSISTANT

REGINA (CP) — Dave Skrien, who announced his resignation as head coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday, says he thinks assistant coach John Payne should be the next coach of the Western Football Conference team.

Skrien recommended Payne, an assistant since 1971, when he spoke with club president Al Sangster during the weekend.

"We'll definitely consider John," Sangster said. "But it will take us a little while to formulate our ideas."

Other candidates mentioned as possible successors to Skrien include John Michels, an assistant with Minnesota Vikings of the National Football League, and Dick Monroe, assistant with Calgary Stampeders.

Saanich Drive Stalled by Gulls

League-leading Juan de Fuca Gulls nipped up-and-coming Saanich Block Brothers 7-6 Monday in a South Island Junior "B" Hockey League game at Juan de Fuca Arena.

Saanich, which upset second-place Victoria Nixons 5-3 Sunday, led 4-2 after two periods but the Gulls responded to the challenge with a five-goal outburst in the final five-goal outburst in the final 20 minutes.

Brad Maxwell, Kevin Schamehorn, Cam Kring, Brad Addision, Tom Tillotson and Kim Bowles replied for Saanich.

Spree in Second Wins for Bucks

Ingraham Buckaroos slammed in three second-period goals Monday night to drop JBAA Gulls 3-1 in a Victoria Intermediate Hockey League encounter at Memorial Arena.

Tom Allen scored the first two Buckaroo goals on passes from John Vassos and Gord Wickware added an unassisted single.

Mark Thomas scored for Gulls in the first period.

Ron Griffis played an outstanding game in the Ingraham net, making a total of 37 saves. Reg Wonnenberg played well for Gulls, making 29 stops before being sidelined in the third period with a leg injury. Backup goalie Ron Toffey finished the game with three saves.

Cook Out to Double His Pleasure

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

If there's happiness in scoring, Victoria Cougars' Dale Cook may "double his pleasure" in this Western Canada Junior Hockey League season.

Cougars run off game No. 30 tonight when they entertain New Westminster Bruins at Memorial Arena. A full schedule is 68, so that means the Cougars won't reach the halfway mark until Jan. 2 after a game with Vancouver Nats.

By then, and barring the unforseen, Cook possibly would have equalled last season's "pleasure."

Playing 63 games with Brandon and then Winnipeg Jets, Cook checked in with a 63-point season, including 27 goals.

As Victoria's captain, the 19-year-old winger needs only two more to match last year's goals total. And seven would enable Cook to match Don Morrison's 32, the season's high by anyone in Victoria's first tenure in the league.

"Cook has had a temendous first half," declared manager Eric Bishop on Monday. "Getting Cook for Reg Malinoski has to be the best deal I've ever made . . . and I think I've made a few deals since I've been in Victoria."

As welcome as it is, there is one aspect of Cook's pace that worries Bishop.

"I can see it getting to a point where we may possibly be expecting too much from Cook," said Bishop. "If he just does his thing and don't start pressing, then he could wind up with a 50-goal season."

Cook's 60 minutes in penalties also is a team high.

Kansas City Gets Another Extension on Its NHL Bid

CHICAGO (AP) — The National Hockey League Monday extended until Jan. 25 the deadline for a Kansas City sports group to satisfy requirements for an NHL franchise beginning in the 1974-75 season.

The NHL's finance committee received, from a group headed by Edwin G. Thompson, plans for construction of an acceptable arena on Union Station property in downtown Kansas City.

Thompson also submitted plans for an alternative site in the Kansas City general industrial district.

Kansas City and Washington, D.C., were granted conditional NHL franchises last June for the start of the 1974-75 season.

However, financial complications hit original plans of the Kansas City group when a county plan to finance building of a stadium was rejected by voters in a Nov. 7 referendum.

At a full meeting of the NHL governors Dec. 4-5, Kansas City was given until last weekend to present revised franchise plans.

After Monday's meeting, NHL board chairman Bruce Norris of Detroit and William Wirtz of Chicago, chairman of the finance committee, issued this statement concerning further extension of the Kansas City matter:

"We were advised that some details and transactions are yet to be completed and accordingly we have granted to Mr. Thompson's group an extension to Jan. 25, 1973, to furnish the National Hockey League with the necessary assurances that all details and transactions have been completed."

The committee indicated it probably would meet in New York shortly after the Jan. 25 deadline to act finally on the Kansas City franchise.

It has been reported that failure of Kansas City to meet franchise requirements would bring NHL consideration of Cincinnati, Cleveland, Indianapolis or Phoenix as an alternate.

Griffith Loses On Foul

PARIS (AP) — Jean-Claude Bouttier of France won a second shot at Carlos Monzon's middleweight boxing crown Monday when his foe, Emile Griffith of New York, was disqualified in the seventh round for hitting low.

The crowd screamed "scandal" and "robber" when referee Georges Gendre waved his arms over his head with a minute gone in the seventh round after Griffith had drilled a blow to Bouttier's mid-section.

The French fighter grabbed his middle and began moaning, "Oh, la la." Earlier in the round, Bouttier had turned to the crowd in agony after Griffith had landed a blow, indicating that the American's punch was low.

The referee said he was halting the fight because Griffith had been warned three times for fouling. The first infraction, the official said, came in the sixth round of the scheduled 12-round bout.

WALTHAM, Mass. (AP) — Chris Pina, on a one-day furlough from his life sentence at Norfolk Prison Colony, fought his first boxing bout Monday night, and scored a technical knockout at 1:40 of the fourth round over middleweight Jack Kirk of Lowell, Mass.

"When he stuck to what he was supposed to he was good," said his trainer, former middleweight champ Paul Pender, who operates a recreational program at Norfolk. "Sometimes he looked a little disoriented out there."

For Pina, 24, it was his first time outside the prison since he pleaded guilty to second degree murder in the beating death of a man in 1967.

Under the state's new program, certain prisoners are given limited furloughs, often to go home on weekends to visit families.

Pro Softball League Aims to Please Fans

TORONTO (CP) — The North American Softball League will tamper with current fastball rules to make the sport more entertaining.

The new professional league, encompassing teams in the eastern United States and Canada, gets under way next spring.

"We're going to make it profitable and exciting even if it means tampering with the rules at first," said Mitchell Litman, executive-director of Major League Softball Inc., who was in Toronto Monday to line up executive personnel for the city team.

"For instance," he continued, "the pitchers are dominating the game and we're planning to move the mound back either two or four feet.

"The fans don't want to watch 1-0 games . . . We have to get some hits and running into the game."

Litman said the league, with franchises in six cities and plans to add two more teams to open the three-month schedule, also will consider making the base paths longer and "we may put the best nine offensive players in the lineup when the team is batting and use the best nine defensive players when they're on the field."

He said a regional sport network in the U.S. has expressed interest in televising at least one game a week and that California groups have indicated interest in joining the league.

"We have already had overtures from six cities in California but we can't envision cross-country trips at this time. We're going to walk before we run."

The initial season, said Litman, will schedule weekend games only, with teams visiting cities to play Friday and Saturday nights and Sunday afternoons.

"So there is no need for players to uproot themselves from regular jobs. As for salaries, we don't expect them to be huge to start until the public is aware of the players individually and they become familiar figures."

He said pitchers might command as high as $3,000 for the 13 weekends and other players' salaries will range between $2,000 and $3,000.

Litman said officers of Major League Softball are recommending that owners not go after players with open books of blank cheques.

In addition to Toronto, franchises already have been assigned to Montreal, Washington, St. Louis, Mobile, Ala., and New Orleans.

Two more teams will be added from Memphis, Boston, Philadelphia and Charlotte, N.C., bids, with Philadelphia and Charlotte holding the inside track "since there are good stadiums available there."

'Get Tough' Policy Hits Ref-Checker

Officials of the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association who recently announced a "get tough" policy, have cracked down on a senior player for cross-checking a referee during a Western International Hockey League game on Dec. 5.

Ivan Temple of the BCHA announced in Victoria Monday that the BCHA membership of Eric Sutclife has been lifted until Dec. 23 and that the player with Cranbrook Royals will be required to post a $500 good behavior bond.

Should the bond not be posted, the "suspension" will be extended until April 30, 1973, Temple said.

Dodger To Play In Japan

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodger second baseman Jim Lefebvre has signed a lucrative three-year contract to play for Lotte Orions of the Japanese Baseball League, a spokesman for the club confirmed Monday.

The 29-year-old veteran, who was the National League Rookie of the Year in 1965, was reported to have made $40,000 with the Dodgers. Last year he played in only 70 games, most of them before the all-star break, batting .201.

The Dodgers also confirmed that his contract with the Orions would make him the highest paid player in Japanese baseball history.

Sport Lottery Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — The attorney'general's department has approved a province-wide sports lottery that would return 70 per cent of ticket sales to participating sports organizations.

The British Columbia Sports Federation, which will co-ordinate the fund-raising lottery program, said Monday it would start next month and would be called the "Sports Holiday Draw."

First-prize winner in the lottery will receive a trip for two to Rome plus $1,000 while the second-prize is a trip for two to Mexico plus $500. In addition, 12 winners will receive $100 each.

19 Picked for Totem Puck Trip

TRAIL (CP) — Officials have selected 19 players from the Western International Hockey League to form the British Columbia Totems — Canada's representatives in the Aherne Cup competition in Stockholm, Sweden.

The team will play its first game Dec. 28 in Finland and will leave Canada on Boxing Day on the flight to Europe.

Named to the team were seven players from Spokane Jets, six from Cranbrook Royals, four from Trail Smoke Eaters and two from Nelson Maple Leafs. A number of Kimberley Dynamiter players also were chosen, but they refused to try out with the team, giving financial reasons.

The seven Spokane players are goalie Dave Cox, defencemen Dwight Carruthers and John Thompson and forwards Vince Collins, Brian Harper, Bob Stoyko and Bob Trembecky.

Selected from Cranbrook were goalie Wayne Doll and forwards Bill Martin, Derek Spring, Geoff Powis, Eric Sutcliffe and Felix Lavallee.

Trail players named were defenceman Ken Uzeloc and forwards Wayne Florko, Gary Ferro and Doug Bently. From Nelson will come defencemen Barry Buchanan and Hugh Hooker. Norm Johnson of Spokane Jets will coach the team, to be managed by John Freer of Trail.

The Totems play their first game at Helsinki Dec. 28, then move on to Sweden for a Dec. 29 game against Aik at Johanneshov. They play a second game at Johanneshov Dec. 31 against Ejurgarden and then move to Leksand for a game Jan. 1.

On Jan. 2 the Canadians play at Gotland in an exhibition game and Jan. 4 play at Sodertalje. They meet Russia Jan. 6 at Johanneshov and then play an exhibition game Jan. 7 against an unnamed Swedish district team. The final game for the Canadians is Jan. 9 or 10 against a team as yet unnamed. They return to Canada Jan. 12 and to B.C. Jan. 13.

SWEDISH JUNIOR CLUB SLATED FOR B.C. TOUR

KAMLOOPS (CP) — The British Columbia Junior Hockey League has approved plans for a spring tour of cities in the league by the Swedish national junior team.

The Swedish team, which beat Russia for the European junior championship earlier this year, would arrive about March 17th to begin the series of exhibition games against BCJHL clubs.

An anonymous donor has agreed to put up the necessary $26,000 to guarantee the tour, which has been approved by the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association and the International Ice Hockey Federation.

Wayne Maki, Johnny Bench Released from Hospital

Times News Services

Left-winger Wayne Maki of Vancouver Canucks of the National Hockey League and Johnny Bench, star baseball slugger for Cincinnati Reds of the National League, both were released from hospital Monday.

Maki, 28, who underwent surgery Dec. 10 for removal of a brain tumor, was reported to be resting at his home in North Vancouver after being released from a New Westminster hospital.

His condition improved this past week after he was listed in satisfactory condition a few days after the operation.

Club officials have declined to comment on Maki's future with the Canucks.

Bench, 24, said he plans to remain at his Cincinnati apartment for an indefinite period, then go to Florida for "sunshine and relaxation."

He was operated on eight days ago to remove a benign lesion from his right lung.

Dr. George Ballou, the Cincinnati team physician, said the operation would cause no impairment of the physical skills that carried Bench to the league's most-valuable-player honors in 1970 and 1972.

HOCKEY TIPS

By Bobby Orr

The key to shooting is strong arms. And strong arms can be developed by a series of exercises.

For example, you can squeeze a rubber ball while watching television or while studying. It is simple things like this that help build your body. Keep repeating them and you will be pleasantly surprised at the results.

Young players should concentrate on the wrist shot first. The slap shot may look great on television but even Bobby Hull's wrist shot is his best shot. More goals are scored with a wrist shot than with all other types combined.

As a youngster, I practised my wrist shot in the basement, using a ball. Sometimes, it isn't possible to have much time on the ice in the cities due to tight schedules. That makes it even more important to practise where you can — in the basement or in the driveway. Our garage had a series of marks from my shots.

Try and perfect a low shot. This is the most difficult shot to handle by most goalies. Eddie Johnston, one of our goalies, tells me a low shot on the stick side is much tougher to handle than the hardest slap shot.

Before attempting a wrist shot, make sure your weight is on the front foot. Lean into the shot, keeping your head up. Don't forget to follow through.

Hockey is like all other sports. The follow through is important.

MISHAPS DOG BLUEBIRD

Blue Bird Cabs, 1001A Douglas, were in three accidents.

The toll began at 2:37 a.m. when a head-on collision at Oak Bay Avenue and Elgin caused $2,000 damage to the cab driven by Frank Murphy, 3181 Service, and a car driven by David Cameron, 2796 Cadboro Bay Road, There were no injuries.

The second mishap occurred in the driveway of James Bay Lodge at 336 Sincoe. Driver Mark Dubois put his gear shift in reverse instead of park and the vehicle went through an eight by six plate glass window. The cab ran over the driver's foot as he tried to stop it.

Three hours later, at Foul Bay and Fort, another Blue Bird cab was in a three-car collision. Damages to this taxi were estimated at $450. No one was hurt.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 27-year-old man was acquitted on a trafficking charge and given a suspended sentence and 18 months probation on a marijuana possession charge in provincial court Monday.

In passing sentence, Judge William Ostler told David John Aston that the Crown had given him a "significant break" in agreeing with Aston's defence counsel on a suspended sentence.

Aston had been arrested Sept. 26, with eight ounces of marijuana in the trunk of his car.

Defence counsel Donald Laughton argued that Aston had bought the marijuana for his own exclusive use, prior to his intended departure for Toronto.

Laughton said that the bag containing the half pound of marijuana was still unbroken three days after Aston had purchased the drug. He also said that his client had "emphatically" refused to sell any of the marijuana in his possession to a friend he knew well.

"There are no indices of trafficking here," said Laughton in his summing-up.

Three persons were each given suspended sentences and placed on six months probation for possession of marijuana by Judge William Ostler in provincial court Monday.

Clifford Hugh Kerr, 20, and Wayne Thomas Lopthien, 22, both of Work Point Barracks, pleaded guilty to possession of the drug in the 1100 block Wharf Sunday.

Rodney Rance Peterson, 22, of Vancouver, was apprehended in his car Saturday night with a bag of marijuana and two rolled "joints" in his possession.

Ronald Albert Arthur Fossey, 19, of 310 Langford, was fined $50, for possession of hashish Saturday night. Fossey was seated in a car, holding a hashpipe, when apprehended by police who found a small quantity of hashish on the car floor.

Franklin Dwayne Capostinsky, 22, of Kamloops, was fined $50 on a charge of wilful damage under $50 and ordered to pay $50 compensation to the owner of a car he damaged in the parking lot of the Tudor House Hotel Saturday night.

Canada Ford Hikes Prices Average $61

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. announced immediate increases Monday, averaging 1.4 per cent, in suggested list prices of its 1973-model cars and trucks.

Other major vehicle manufacturers announced increases earlier.

Ford said the increases range from $29 on a sub-compact to $190 on a luxury car and average $61 a unit across its entire line.

General Motors was the first to increase Canadian prices and prompted a request from Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie for reconsideration in an effort to narrow the gap between Canadian and United States prices. GM declined.

Ford said its increases provide only partial recovery of costs for added safety and emission equipment required by law.

"There is no provision for recovery of material, wage and other economic cost increases."

In Washington the United States Price Commission suspended Monday for an indefinite period the $107-per-car price increase requested by General Motors for its 1973 models.

The commission said it wanted more time to study data submitted by the firm as justification for the increase, which would be the second of this year for General Motors if approved.

General Motors filed for the increase Dec. 8, only seven days after the commission approved a $54-per-model increase covering new, stronger bumpers and exhaust control equipment ordered by the U.S. government.

BRITAIN'S HEATH A CARTOON NUT

LONDON — Prime Minister Edward Heath has another pastime besides sailing and music, watching Tom and Jerry cartoons.

The bachelor prime minister will be at the performance friends say, because he never would miss an opportunity of watching mouse-basher Tom and cat-batter Jerry go through their antics.

The disclosure didn't impress Labor MP William Price who tried — and failed — a few days ago to get Tom and Jerry cartoons banned from television because of their "appalling violence."

But, Price noted Monday night: "The kids will be safer watching Tom and Jerry than listening to Mr. Heath talk politics."

Teen-Age Guru's Passport Lifted

NEW DELHI — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government has lifted the passport of Maharaj Ji, the teen-age Indian guru who wants to dispense his "perfect knowledge" around the world.

Maharaj Ji is the spiritual leader of the Divine Light Mission, which claims 40,000 followers in the United States and tens of thousands of devotees in Europe and Australia. He claims five million Indian followers.

LAS VEGAS — Entertainer Eddie Fisher has sued the operator of a hotel here for $2.1 million, claiming that the hotel cut short a contract for 17 weeks after three weeks of performances. Fisher filed the suit in federal court against Caesars World Inc., operator of Caesars Palace.

TOKYO — Charlie Chaplin's classic silent film Modern Times is being held over for an indefinite run at Tokyo cinemas after setting box office records.

One moviehouse reported 193,000 customers in the four-week period to Dec. 15 paying $375,000 — a record sale for a four-week period by any motion picture in Japan.

TORONTO — A Toronto mother raising three children on $110 a week has won $65,000 in a municipal lottery.

"This is going to be the happiest Christmas ever," Cynthia Shaw said following notification that she was the first-place winner in a lottery to raise funds for a recreation centre in Nepean township near Ottawa.

"The money will give this family a security we haven't had before."

Mrs. Shaw has been struggling to raise her children on her salary as a secretary since she was divorced six years ago.

CRANSTON, R.I. — Jack Anderson says President Nixon is trying to stop Americans "from reading and me from publishing anything he doesn't want you to read."

Anderson said he expects no change is what he claimed was a pervasive effort by government to interfere with freedom of the press.

In a speech, Anderson said: "The men who govern here are just as determined as the men in the Kremlin to control the flow of information to the people, to manage the news."

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Many pioneer women "really didn't want to go West," accordin to Yale Prof. Howard Lamar.

Contrary to romantic notions of the stalwart pioneer's wife fostered by movies and television Westerns, Lamar said the typical woman "was more or less dragged there by her husand."

PAMPLONA, Spain — Manuel Lara, a tramp, went on a window-smashing spree on St. Nicholas Street so he would be jailed and get to spend Christmas in prison or a psychiatric hospital, police said today.

LONDON — Christmas shoppers gaped when a shapely girl shouting "I'm 21! I'm 21!" stripped nude and danced around the statue of Eros in Picadilly Circus.

NIXON NANNY TELLS ALL

By RONALD KESSLER
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — There's the Old Nixon and the New Nixon, Tricky Dick Nixon and now the Mountaintop Nixon. But according to a former babysitter for his family, there really is only one Nixon . . . and he is the same in the privacy of his home as he is on television.

That Nixon, says Clifford F. Moore, a gentle woman with crisp speech and a clear memory, has never been heard to argue with his wife and is as unflappable and pleasant sipping orange juice at the breakfast table as he is toasting Chairman Mao with Chinese liquor.

Mrs. Moore ought to know. For 10 years, she was the Nixon family's primary babysitter, spending an average of three days a week and sometimes more taking care of the Nixon daughters.

Mrs. Moore began working for th efamily in 1947, when Nixon was beginning his first term as a California congressman.

When she left the family in 1957, she says, Nixon was beginning his second term as vice-president.

In the 10 years she worked for the Nixons, Mrs. Moore said, she never heard them argue.

"They could laways solve their problems without arguments," she said. "I've never seen them unhappy or irritated or dissatisfied."

SAMURAI SWORD and ornate headgear were among the props used by Bob Hope Monday at his annual Christmas show in Tokyo. The comedian said earlier that this year's round-the-world trip entertaining troops will be his last.

Elford Withheld Facts On Rink Cost: Dowell

Ald. Shirley Dowell Monday night accused Mayor Frances Elford of withholding facts regarding costs of Oak Bay's proposed recreation complex.

Dowell was referring to statements made by the mayor election night in which she said the costs would be about $2 million.

She said the mayor had released figures that were discussed at an in-camera meeting but had omitted to say that this expenditure had been planned to be spread over a three-year period.

"If you were going to bring out an in-camera figure," she said, "you should have mentioned it was over a three-year period."

Elford said the figure included the cost of widening roads, work on Bowker Creek, parking facilities and other necessities.

"The $2 million figure was just a matter of addition," she said.

Dowell replied that she was anxious to see Oak Bay get a sports complex and using such high amounts could scare off voters.

Ald. Douglas Watts said, "I don't think a recreation centre is going to cost $2 million. After visiting the Columbian 4-Rinks in Burnaby I feel we can get an ice rink for a good deal less than what we figured."

He said expenses like road widening should not be directly linked with the cost of a sport centre.

Watts said he felt the municipality could get an ice arena and swimming pool for less than $1 million.

"Madam mayor, let's keep away from these big figures until we have things much better figured out."

Earlier in the meeting, Dowell had tackled the mayor on a report quoting Elford as saying that if Dowell and Ald. John Goult were defeated it would be easier to finance the centre through the sale of the Victoria Riding Academy site for highrise development.

Confronted by Goult on election night and by Dowell on Monday, the mayor denied she had made statements to this effect.

Told this again Monday, Dowell said the implications made had been damaging and the mayor should have corrected them.

"The fact that you didn't deny it — and you had a 10-day period in which to deny it — is damaging," she said.

APARTMENT ZONING PLEA REJECTED

An application to have seven lots on Chaucer and Byron rezoned from single family to apartments in order to build a 46-suite frame apartment was turned down by Oak Bay council Monday night.

The application was made by Erwin Brechert of Vista Homes.

Speaking against the rezoning, Ald. Douglas Watts said, "I'm not too enthusiastic about frame apartments. We should try, if we can, to have class A (noncumbustible material) construction."

Ald. Douglas McLelland noted that a previous application had been turned down because the developer had been unable to obtain four adjoining lots:

"I don't believe we should take up time on this when, in essence, we've been through this once before," he said.

Council voted Monday to delay further action on a bylaw which will tighten regulations for apartments between Willows and Uplands Parks and Estevan and Beach until its first meeting in January.

Ald. Shirley Dowell said she had received phone calls from several residents in the area, asking if they could have their properties rezoned back from apartments to single-family. The area has been zoned for apartments since 1927.

Mayor Frances Elford noted that any resident could have this done by applying to council and one property owner had already done this.

Residents will be informed of this before the January meeting.

The proposed bylaw will limit height, increase setbacks and require underground parking.

Another bylaw, that will stiffen laws governing fences around swimming pools was also delayed.

On the recommendation of McLelland it was decided to refer it back to "A" committee and obtain the opinion of municipal solicitor D. M. Gordon on whether the new requirements can be made retroactive.

One Site Taxed More

Only one Oak Bay property will receive an increase in assessment exceeding the 1973 limit of 10 per cent.

In a memo to council Monday night municipal assessor D. C. Wyatt said the property on the corner of Estevan and Cadboro Bay had been changed from single family to commercial zoning. This necessitated an increase in the land assessed value from $3,450 to $11,290. The amount was approved by the provincial assessment commissioner.

APARTMENT LIMIT EYED

Oak Bay council will hold a public hearing in January on a bylaw that will restrict further development of the Rudyard Kipling apartment on Beach.

The bylaw is designed to prevent the penthouse floor from being developed into a full floor.

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White told council Monday night that under existing regulations this could now be done, the developer still being able to keep within height regulations.

Thalidomide: $50M Asked

LONDON (Reuter) — Rebel shareholders of the giant Distillers company, which marketed the drug thalidomide in Britain, called Monday night for an extraordinary general meeting to try to force the firm to increase its compensation offer to $50 million for victims of the deforming drug.

Distillers last week announced plans for a $29.6 million trust fund to aid 342 children born with deformities after their mothers took the drug as a sedative during pregnancy.

Requested tax concessions would mean a net cost of only $12.5 million to the company.

The shareholders' group is led by David Mason, a London art dealer whose daughter is a thalidomide victim and who has been fighting in court for more compensation.

Family Suffocates

CAMPTON, Ky. (AP) — A family of five was found dead in one room of their three-room house near here Monday and an official said they died of suffocation from excessive heat from natural gas stoves. Coroner Lewis Porter said the parents and three children apparently died late Saturday night, but their bodies were not discovered until Monday.

Common Cold Drips On—And On

PARIS (Reuter) — No more measles or mumps, no more migraines, no more chronic depressions—that's one expert view of the health picture for the 1980s.

But the common cold will continue to bring misery every winter.

Doctors will have the necessary knowledge and technical skills to replace every part of the human body, with the exception of the central nervous system and the spinal cord, and they will have adopted the use of an artificial heart rather than heart transplants.

Prof. Eugene Aujaleu, a former executive committee president of the World Health Organization (WHO), says people will still be falling ill in 15 years' time—but the illnesses will be different.

The 69-year-old professor, now France's honorary director-general of health and medical research and a member of the Council of Europe's public health committee, makes these forecasts in a report published recently by the Council of Europe.

In general, he says, medical advances will be a mixed blessing—curing some diseases while others take their place.

Virus infections such as measles, German measles and mumps should all disappear, and there will be a lot less influenza.

Neurological complaints such as multiple sclerosis, epilepsy and migraine will all have effective antidotes, as will depressive and manic-depressive psychosis.

COULD DELAY DISEASES

Although preventive measures against some of the causes might be developed, this could merely result in the onset of heart diseases being delayed until further into old age, he writes.

Arterial hypertension, diabetes, and obesity may all be controlled—and it may even be possible to control the effects of tobacco.

The development of an efficient cigarette filter, better protection against air pollution and greater medical knowledge should all help to reduce the incidence of recurrent infections such as chronic bronchitis and a range of kilney diseases, he says.

But it is in the field of mental illness that Aujaleu's report strikes its most sombre note.

It foresees an inevitable increase in the incidence of neuroses and little progress towards effective treatment for schizophrenia or behavioral disorders.

On the subject of drug addiction and hereditary disease, Aujaleu is no more hopeful.

He warns that the use of addiction-forming drugs will become a far more important social problem than it is at present, and speculates on the use of contraceptive controls if it is found that drug addiction is hereditary.

PAROLE, JAIL LEAVES UNDER STUDY

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General Warren Allmand is studying a report that could lead to significant changes in the present system of granting leaves and paroles to prisoners.

He said Monday that the report by a study group headed by Superior Court Judge James Hugessen of Montreal was commissioned last June when the penitentiaries system was under heavy fire.

The minister said he is reading the report and added that "it is very possible" the government might revise the parole and temporary absence system.

There could be more tightening of the controversial leave system, he warned.

Allmand recently toured penitentiary and other facilities in the Kingston, Ont., area and in Alberta and British Columbia.

Speaking of his tour, he said a single common complaint was that penitentiary staffs are overworked.

Allmand said that only a small percentage of leaves granted to prisoners end up as failures.

Regulations on granting these leaves had been tightened last summer so that, for instance, they were not available to dangerous sexual offenders.

"I think we can go forward with a reform program in penitentiaries and a reform program in our penal system and also improve our security for the public," he said.

The minister said the public can be protected through better screening and better classification of prisoners so that "better risks go into the community."

On other matters, he said the aging B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster will have to be replaced, acknowledging that ministers have been saying that for some years.

A review of alternatives for replacements was on his desk but he could not say when a decision would be made.

He said B.C., where the prison population is rising as sharply as the general population, also needed a new medium security prison.

While accepting the system has some shortcomings, Mr. Allmand rejected a charge by Frank Howard, New Democrat MP from Skeena, that the whole system is in a mess.

FRENCH LEGAL COURT RULES

FREDERICTON (CP) — The appeals division of the New Brunswick Supreme Court ruled today that the federal and provincial governments have the constitutional authority to extend the use of French in the courts.

The court rejected a challenge of the federal and provincial Official Languages Act made last month by legal counsel for Mayor Leonard Jones of Moncton who claimed French and English were on equal footing only in federal and Quebec courts.

The language legislation was referred to the appeals division earlier this year by Justice Minister John Baxter after Jones objected to a request for a French-language trial for a university student charged with loitering on the mayor's property.

New Horizon Grants Get OK

OTTAWA (CP) — Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde announced today the first 78 grants under the federal government's New Horizons program for retired citizens.

The grants total $587,000 and will involve more than 10,000 people, he said. They range in size from $415 to $29,000 and average $7,000. All provinces and the Northwest Territories are represented.

Lalonde said the grants will be used for activities ranging from bands and orchestras to day-care centres and social clubs.

Mentioning some of the approved projects, Lalonde said that in Toronto a repertory group is being set up to use retired actors, writers and production staff.

In Calgary, senior citizens will visit schools to tell the pupils about pioneer life in Alberta.

In Quebec, a food co-operative is being established in an apartment residence for senior citizens to help keep food costs within reach.

Lalonde said, "This is only the beginning. We hope to approve many more applications for similar grants so that more and more Canadians over 65 will be able to contribute to their own well-being and to the life of their communities everywhere in Canada."

In the past, he said, the government has put strong emphasis on youth grants.

The New Horizons program would recognize "the people who have built our past and our present."

B.C. Sheriffs In Civil Service

All nine of British Columbia's sheriffs will be employed under the Civil Service Act when an order in council approved last week comes into effect.

At present, some sheriffs are paid through fees charged in their offices. The new move will bring all sheriffs and their staffs into the provincial government employment.

POLICE CAN BE FIRED

KUALA LUMPUR (AP) — Malaysian policemen have been warned that they can be fired for having too many wives. The inspector-general's office said some men with three or four wives had become inefficient because of family squabbles. Eighty per cent of Malaysian policemen are Moslems, allowed up to four wives at a time.

PUB PETITION SHORT ON NAMES

There will be no plebiscite to gain approval for licensing of beer parlors in Central Saanich at this time.

J. W. Smallwood, electoral officer, informed council Monday that a 344-name petition for a public house licence, submitted by Kenneth Geary of Brentwood Motel, falls short of the required 35 per cent of registered voters.

There are 3,300 names on the provincial voters list in Central Saanich and a minimum of 1,155 must sign a petition, he said.

The alternative, a request from council to the liquor control board for a plebiscite, was rejected by council members Monday.

Ald. Percy Lazarz said there is too much division of opinion in the municipality to warrant such a request at present.

In other business, council approved a seven per cent raise in 1973 salaries for municipal staff to cover cost-of-living increases.

Boys' Gov't Date Set

Men's liberation, the death penalty and abolition of the monarchy will be debated when the Older Boys' Parliament of British Columbia meets in the legislative chamber Dec. 27 to 31.

Eight of the 70 boys attending the 42nd session of the parliament will be from the Greater Victoria area.

They are Ken Callaghan, 2049 Allenby, Grant Clegg, 3913 Ansell Rd., Michael Crowe, 2437 Sooke Rd., Wesley Harcourt, 2855 Blackwood, Grey Jay, 2854 Ilene Terrace, Duncan McArthur, 1549 Pearl, Wallace McMorran, 5131 Cordova Bay Rd., and Donald Otteson, 607 Sedger.

Establishment of an Older Girls' Parliament of B.C. will be discussed, as will Camp Phoenix, a summer camp for underprivileged boys; House of Concord, a monthly activities night at a home for young offenders; Camp Reinton, a project carrying on work started with young boys at camp; and a parliamentary workshop for high schools in the Interior.

Biker, Hiker Space Favored For Cuthbert Holmes Area

When Cuthbert Holmes Park eventually develops there should be provision for trail bike riding, Saanich aldermen agreed Monday night.

Responding to a complaint that motorcyclists have taken over the undeveloped acreage near Tillicum Theatre, council supported a report from police chief Bob Peterson who requested that a senior officer investigate the land use.

It was found that the land lying below Trans-Canada Highway between Burnside and Admirals Road, bordering on Colquitz River, is "excellently suited to motorbike trail riding."

Peterson said there was value in keeping youngsters off streets with this type of vehicle and suggested multi-use of land where part of it may be set aside for bikers in future.

Ivan Sherlock, 3127 Admirals, had written to council stating the number of motorbike riders had increased to the point where it was no longer pleasant or safe to walk in the acreage.

He said he had been told in the spring by police that they would keep motorcycles off the property, which is owned partly by Saanich, by the provincial government and by a private operator.

After a summer-long absence from the city, Sherlock said he returned and found not only motorbikes but a jeep and truck being driven around the paths and fields.

"Is this land being set aside for machines or people?" Sherlock asked the council.

Bikes race along the paths with "complete disregard for pedestrians," he said.

As an owner of property along the river he said he had been approached by Saanich with a view to selling some of the land as greenbelt, a motive with which he agreed.

But he said he would alter his view if it meant that parkland was to benefit bikers.

Curtis said he concurred with the police, pointing out the land is not yet a park. "It's a piece of land with a sign on it that says it is set aside for one."

Not everyone likes motorbike riding, but it had become a popular sport, Curtis said.

Ald. William Noel noted motorcycles had been banned from Mt. Douglas Park and he said he could not "see a better place in the urban area" than at Cuthbert Holmes Park, "and I support it."

He said Sherlock should be advised that this was not a full status park and moved that council take no action.

Ald. Fred Severson agreed.

Ald. Alan Newberry said he favored provision for riding as long as bikers did not take over the area especially where children play.

Further endorsation was added by Ald. Leslie Passmore, who said consideration should be given to motorcycle riding when the area is developed as a provincial or municipal park.

LUM LEAVES COUNCIL

Greenhouse operator Ed Lum attended his final meeting as a member of Saanich council Monday, going out with the door left open a crack.

His fourth two-year term ends Dec. 31 and in a statement to council he said: "In a way I feel disappointed at leaving as I find it very interesting work . . . I may be back again in the future."

Lum said he felt his objects had been achieved during his tenure, in which he had seen Saanich "grow at a booming rate."

Mayor Hugh Curtis recalled having met Lum initially as an opposing candidate in a reeveship election, and gave him credit for his fairness, ability and industry.

"We met as adversaries and you leave with an indication that we will be very good friends," Curtis said.

He wished Lum and his wife Rose best wishes for the future and council applaused.

In other matters: Council awarded a $12,484 contract for 5,231 feet of curbs and gutters, 22 catch basins and minor concrete work to Norseman Construction for part of Gordon Head Road reconstruction. It was the lowest of four bids, the highest being one for $16,520 from Farmer Construction Ltd.

Municipal administrator John Tribe confirmed his retirement for Jan. 31, 1973, and reported a committee consisting of himself, the engineer, purchasing agent, and planner is studying a realignment of space at the municipal hall.

Tribe recommended placing a nominal sum in the 1973 budget for this work, and reassured aldermen there was "certainly no intention of adding to the building."

Council gave first reading to the muinicipality's first Noise Suppression Bylaw, the result of about a year's study and consideration of a draft proposal.

Ex-UN Deputy Dies

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — Jose Rolz-Bennett, former undersecretary-general of the United Nations, died Monday. He was 54. The diplomat had returned to Guatemala after undergoing surgery in New York to remove a brain tumor. Rolz-Bennett served as undersecretary from 1967 to 1971.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids...and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

School Intern Cost Hit

Some Greater Victoria school board trustees Monday night balked at the idea of paying an administration student $1,000 a month for a five-month so-called internship in the school district.

Trustee Philip said the $10,000 requested for two such "interns" from the University of Victoria graduate school of administration was "10,000 times as much as we spend for graduate students in any other area."

Backed by Trustee Peter Bunn, Ney proposed that only $5,000 be set aside for one student, and that the one student be specifically assigned to oversee the introduction of a revised physical education curriculum next school year.

The motion was defeated, as was a compromise motion by Trustee Carron Jameson calling for approval of the scheme in principle, subject to further discussions with the university.

Finally the split board decided to invite a member of the graduate school of education to address the board on the entire matter of "internships" for graduate students of both education and administration.

In other business, the board agreed to boost its per pupil allowance to G. R. Pearkes Clinic, a care centre for handicapped children, from $152 to $185.

Facilities committee chairman Bunn said the increase was "generous" but justified as part of a general revision of the situation.

The board agreed to call its new "community school" planned for Burnside and Acorn, Saanich Community Secondary School.

The new school, planned by a committee of citizens and trustees in collaboration with the municipality of Saanich, is designed to incorporate a community centre and a secondary school under the same roof.

Saanich Council Posts Assessed

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis is canvassing his aldermen for prospective committee appointments in 1973.

The early start will give him a chance to distribute the members of council as much as possible by their preferences and according to his assessment of their suitability for the duties of chairman on standing committees and as municipal representatives on Greater Victoria committees.

Responsibility for appointments is wholly that of the mayor, but Curtis said he prefers to seek out individual feeling toward the various posts before making his choices.

Council will hold its statutory first meeting of the year at 7:30 p.m., Jan. 8, at which committee appointments are usually made and a provisional budget introduced.

Curtis has virtually the same council from which to choose committees, the only newcomer being alderman-elect John McDonald, who said he was waiting for a full list of committees before stating any preferences.

The council is divided into two main groups — "A" covering fire and civil defence, finance-legislative, indoor recreation, and parks and outdoor recreation; "B" covering lands and housing, municipal planning, and public works.

In addition there are eight working and advisory committees responsible to council and the mayor's special committee on service and commercial land use which was to have reported recommendations this year.

Miscellaneous appointments cover another 22 areas of local and inter-municipal responsibility, including directors to the Capital Regional District board and hospital board.

No $200 For Aged In Alta.

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government will not follow the example of British Columbia which sought federal funds to raise the level of senior citizens' incomes, Premier Peter Lougheed said Monday.

What Alberta will do is try to give them a better deal with a revised housing policy next year, the premier told a news conference.

The policy would attempt to put shared-cost government housing on a consistent basis and would likely lead to revised rent schedules.

Lougheed said a suggestion that Alberta follow the British Columbia lead "sounds good on paper" but would help pensioners little because of accompanying rent increases in the western province.

Alberta would rather produce direct "tangible and specific benefits."

MP Complains

EDMONTON (CP) — Douglas Roche, Progressive Conservative MP for Edmonton-Strathcona, said the federal government played politics with 3,000 visitors — mostly from India — who wanted immigrant status in Canada.

He told a news conference the federal government overreacted to public opinion after the Oct. 30 general election and cut off the 3,000 visitors as a result.

Hogs for Japan

WINNIPEG (CP) — Agriculture Minister Samuel Uskiw has announced the Manitoba Hog Marketing Commission has arranged the sale of between 300,000 and 500,000 hogs to Japan.

He said the sale is worth $18 million to $30 million, depending on market fluctuations.

Move Resisted

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government is having difficulty persuading residents of the flats, a shack town near the Hudson Bay port of Churchill, to move into modern public housing units.

Premier Ed Schreyer said the government is conducting a promotional and educational campaign to get people now living in substandard housing to apply for accommodation in the new public housing units. A total of 39 such units are being constructed, at a cost slightly more than $1 million.

More Oil Cash

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government received $228,772.13 from the sale of petroleum and natural gas leases last week.

The highest single bid was from Great Northern Oil Ltd. which paid $59,348 for 320 acres in the Turner Valley area southwest of Calgary.

No Ottawa Grant

REGINA (CP) — The federal Department of Regional Economic Expansion again has balked at providing a $1 million grant for the proposed Romanian tractor assembly plant in Saskatoon.

Industry Minister Kim Thornson said Monday the federal department apparently doesn't think the venture will work and until the contrary can be proven, a DREE grant is unlikely.

$24 Tax Boost Seen

EDMONTON (CP) — A $93.2-million operating budget which would increase the average homeowner's 1973 tax bill by $24 has been presented to city council by city commissioners.

The budget proposals do not contain a detailed outline of how the money will be spent.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

The Anxiety State

Back in 1949, I read an article entitled "The Anxiety State from the Layman's Viewpoint" by Dr. R. C. Moehlig, of Detroit, Mich. I was so pleased with Dr. Moehlig's good description of the symptoms and mental feelings of an anxious person, that I have kept the article and it is on my desk today.

Dr. Moehlig wrote the article with the idea of helping physicians to show their patients that their nervous condition is understood, thus making a sympathetic bond between patient and physician. Such a bond of sympathy is very helpful in the treatment of patients.

Unfortunately, today with the shortness of many physicians' visits with patients, authorities tell me that little more can be done for some persons than to give them a prescription.

As Dr. Moehlig says so truly, "Every physician is in a minor sense a psychiatrist," or he should be. Dr. Will Mayo once said to me that every one of us specialists must be trained well enough in psychiatry to take care of our own "neuros."

Dr. Moehlig gives a description of the person in an anxiety state. He says there are numerous and varied symptoms. The patient may be able to remember the day when the anxiety began, often mental and physical fatigue preceded the onset, and the person feels as if he had entered into a different world.

With the anxiety come feelings of apprehension and fear. His mind is in a continual fog and he has trouble remembering things. He is tired during the day, and yet he has trouble sleeping at night. If he does sleep, it is a restless sleep, and he wakes feeling utterly exhausted. He dreads to face the approaching day.

More and more today, doctors are finding evidence that depression and anxiety and many other types of mental disturbances are due to chemical changes in the body, and this is why just talking about the distress is often not enough. There is also a need for drugs to helpthe person out of a depression or to calm him in an anxiety state.

Attica Revolt Survivors Charged

Washington Post

NEW YORK — The first 16 men indicted for the bloody 1971 revolt at Attica prison were all Attica inmates, the criminal proceedings revealed Monday.

Two were charged with the murder of a prison guard and one with the murder of another inmate.

The criminal investigation appeared to emphasize the responsibility of prisoners for the revolt. It thus differed dramatically from the report of the official New York State fact-finding commission, which emphasized the disregard for human life displayed by state officials and police in recapturing the prison.

State troopers and prison guards killed 32 inmates and 11 guards held as hostages in 15 minutes of wild shooting during the recapture.

Thirty-seven criminal indictments were handed up sealed on Friday by grand jury whose investigation was directed by Robert Fischer, deputy attorney general of New York state.

Eleven of the indictments were opened Monday naming 12 men. They were informed of the charges against them but were not formally arraigned because most did not have defence counsel. The Attica Defence Committee said another four had been identified.

Quinn was killed Sept. 11, 1971, two days after the revolt started and two days before the state attack on the prison.

Pernasalice, 20, had been at Attica while awaiting hearing on a charge of violating parole after serving two years of a four-year reformatory sentence for a joy ride on a motorcycle at the age of 16.

He was the only one of the 12 who appeared in court who was not brought from jail.

Pernasalice said he had been arrested at his parents' home in Camillus, N.Y. — a suburb of Syracuse — where he had been told to go to see his parole officer.

Hill also was charged with possession of a weapon and "promoting prison contraband," a charge that appeared frequently in the indictments.

Vernon Lafranque, charged with possession of a weapon and promotion of prison contraband, was brought to court from Auburn prison wearing wrist and ankle shackles.

Daniel Pochoda, a New York City lawyer who appeared for some of the defendants, asked that they be removed during Lafranque's court appearance. State Supreme Court Justice Carman Ball agreed after consulting the guards escorting Lafranque.

Pochada charged that Lafranque had been kept stripped in an isolation cell at Auburn after his indictment was handed up and asked Ball for a court order preventing such treatment.

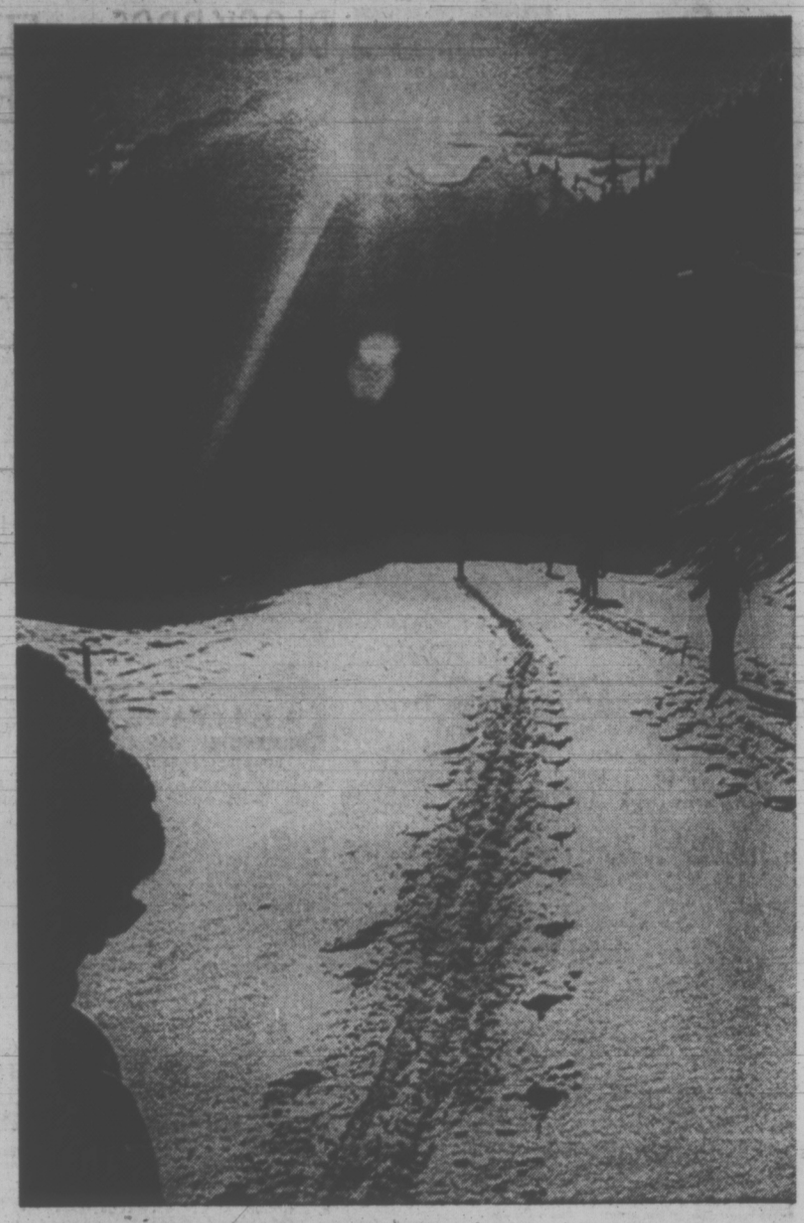
Ball refused pending a written application and consultation with the jail authorities.

Most of the arraignments were postponed until Jan. 15 and Jan. 16.

Attorney William Kunstler, who is due to appear for Pernasalice at prearraignment hearings, said in New York that he himself might be indicted because he had refused to answer 22 questions before the grand jury.

He was on the observer committee that tried to negotiate a settlement of the revolt.

David Rothenberg of the Fortune Society, a New York organization which helps former convicts, said there might be something unconstitutional in state officials being the prosecutors in the Attica case in which the state was implicated, and suggested that the case might have to be



SOVIETS LOWER GOALS

Washington Post

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union announced new economic targets for 1973 Monday night which suggested that ambitious plans to increase production of consumer goods have been revised sharply downward after a bad year in 1972.

The new statistics indicate that consumer output will rise 4.5 per cent, or just over half as much as originally planned for 1973, the third year of the current five-year plan.

The statistics show that over-all goals for the five-year plan can only be reached if the economy performs extraordinarily well during the next three years and it is possible that over-all performance will fall significantly below those targets.

Floor Price For Charters

OTTAWA (CP) — A floor price to protect Canadian air charter carriers competing for transatlantic flights with foreign carriers has been proposed by the Canadian transport Commission.

It may be included among new charter rules designed to clear up the chaotic air charter situation across the Atlantic.

The new regulations, promised in October, are likely to be announced late this week.

Boyle Steps Down

NEW YORK (AP) — Tony Boyle announced his resignation late Monday after 10 years as president of the independent United Mine Workers of America, meaning, in effect, that he will not contest the results of a special election that ousted him.

The announcement followed by three days Boyle's defeat in a government-ordered election that ended with victory for Arnold Miller, insurgent candidate for president of the 200,000-member union. It came as the union's board met here.

Boyle, 70, is appealing a five-year prison sentence and a $30,000 fine imposed June 27 after conviction on a federal charge of making illegal political contributions with union funds.

SECRECY SLAMMED

WASHINGTON POST

WASHINGTON — The house armed services committee complained Monday about the "incredible secrecy" the Pentagon imposed on the Lavelle case and said it therefore was justifiable to have "an uneasy feeling" about others being involved in the unauthorized bombings.

Maj. Gen. John Lavelle was fired as commander of the 7th Air Force in Vietnam for ordering bombing raids whether his planes were fired on or not — a violation of the rules existing at the time.

The 20-plus rule breaking raids took place between Nov. 7, 1971, and March 9, 1972.

The committee, in its report on the Lavelle case, said the defence department had refused to turn over requested documents bearing on the unauthorized raids.

Therefore, said the committee, it was difficult to make a conclusive judgment on whether anyone above Lavelle was culpable.

The probabilities, said the committee, range from "possible tacit approval of Lavelle's actions by his superiors to possible civilian direction of the bombings."

Pollen's Clamp on News Shocks, Dismays Curtis

A clamp on reporter access to Victoria city hall is an "unreasonable circus-like" development, according to Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis.

"I'm astonished," Curtis said after returning from a tour as chairman of a legislative committee on TV and broadcast coverage of other law-making assemblies.

"I read with amazement the circus-like goings-on in city hall," he added.

"I must express shock and dismay over (the manner of) news releases at city hall. There is no reason for that."

The mayor was referring to a policy approved by city council last week which curtails certain news coverage privileges at city hall. Instead of obtaining in-depth informationfrom civic officials, reporters are now required to submit their requests in writing to the city manager.

Curtis said there should be no restriction on officials answering questions from press or public, unless there are implications of council policy which only elected representatives may be qualified to discuss.

He said Pollen's action was unreasonable and made him wonder about who is running civic affaris.

"It is inevitable that a reporter seeking information slows you down from time to time. You just have to put up with it," Curtis said.

Pollen, when informed of the Saanich mayor's reaction, had no comment.

COCAINE NOW BIG OTTAWA WORRY

OTTAWA (CP) — Increases in the number of seizures of cocaine have federal health department officials worried.

"It's a very bad drug, highly addicting and highly dangerous," Dr. A. B. Morrison, head of the health department's health protection branch, said Monday.

"Clinically, its a central nervous system stimulant, but it has a tremendous psychological dependence, probably not exceeded by any other drug."

Some young people "on a nature kick," think that drugs from plants — cocaine comes from cocoa leaves — might not be as harmful as the chemicals, he said.

However, studies with rats have shown that they will tap at a trap door about 50 times for marijuana, a couple of thousand for heroin, but up to 10,000 times for cocaine.

Picked in its Prime

The more you know about whisky, the better for OFC 8-Year Old. The Prime Canadian.

For starters: New OFC 8-Year Old is aged a full 2 years longer than either Canadian Club or Seagram's V.O.

Thus, age alone, should make us better. But any good distiller will tell you, it takes more than time to make a whisky prime.

The truth about age

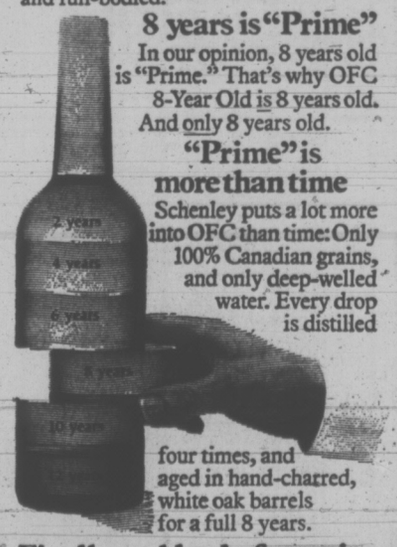
2-year Old Canadian rye is pale, harsh and unmatured. Around 12, it's darker and has begun to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between 2 and 12, at one point in time, Canadian whisky is in "The Prime of Life": golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied.

8 years is "Prime"

In our opinion, 8 years old is "Prime." That's why OFC 8-Year Old is 8 years old. And only 8 years old.

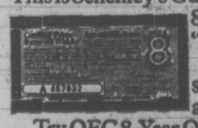
"Prime" is more than time

Schenley puts a lot more into OFC than time: Only 100% Canadian grains, and only deep-welled water. Every drop is distilled four times, and aged in hand-charred, white oak barrels for a full 8 years.



Finally we blend after aging

Why after? So that, despite differences from barrel to barrel, OFC never differs from bottle to bottle. Or glass to glass. 120 separate taste tests ensure it and each bottle carries this numbered back label. This is Schenley's Guarantee of "Prime" 8-Year Old Quality. "Prime Quality."



Thousands are switching to OFC, and taste is the reason. Try OFC 8-Year Old. We think you'll find it a very rewarding experience.

OFC

Little Cigar's Mildness 'Health Hazard'

The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A new, "mild" brand of little cigars is as dangerous to health as cigarettes just because it is so mild — and therefore easily inhaled — two medical researchers report.

They declined to name the brand whose smoke they found lowest in tar and nicotine and thus most readily inhalted.

But an August, 1972, Federal Trade Commission study named Winchester as lowest in tar of all little cigars tested, and lowest in nicotine among the big sellers. And the American Cancer Society in New York said: "We have identified the brand as Winchester. They have removed the chemicals that are uninhalable without removing the toxic contents."

"The new type of little cigar now coming into being is quite likely to be inhalable," said Dr. Ernest L. Wynder, pioneer in studies of smoking and health and one of the authors of the medical report.

This means, he said, that little cigars should be judged not in terms of the present rule, which exempts them from new health rules, but on their smoke and its inhalability.

In a separate, coincidental statement last week, George Washington University law Prof. John F. Banzhaf urged the FTC to plug the "unconscionable loopholes" that exempt little cigars from the rule banning TV cigarette commercials and ordering health warnings on cigarette packages and ads.

The American Public Health Association made a similar recommendation last month. It also urged an increase in the tax on little cigars. The cigar tax is only a fifth of that on cigarettes, about 25 cents less a package, because a cigarette by law is something wrapped only in paper, rather than a "cigar's" tobacco wrapper.

In their report in the weekly magazine Science, Drs. Dietrich Hoffman and Wynder — both working in the American Health Foundation's Health Research Institute in New York City—said that the difference in the rate at which cigar and cigarette smokers develop lung cancer is related to known differences in inhalation practices.

They therefore tested two major brands of little cigars, identified only as "A" and "B," as well as typical filter and non-filter cigarettes.

Little cigar "A" proved "unusually mild" in tar and nicotine, the factors which make most cigar smoke too strong for most smokers to inhale. In fact, it was comparable to the mildness of a filter cigarette.

Hasanen Seeking Judicial Recount

A judicial recount in the Dec. 9 Cowichan school board election has been applied for by third-running candidate Ken Hasanen.

Hasanen received 444 votes to Dave Haywood's 1,069 and Lorne Campbell's 1,036.

Returning officer Peter Hayward said today he had rejected an application for a recount last week.

"As far as I'm concerned it was not granted on the grounds asked for," Hayward said.

"The close vote is not grounds in itself," he explained, "there must be a high probability of error.

"But now he's applied for a judicial recount and that's nothing to do with me."

Hasanen said earlier his action was based on the Municipal Act that states a "credible witness" to a civic election may request a recount.

In a letter to the school board, Hasanen wrote, "I believe it to be the case that the returning officer, Mr. Peter Hayward, did not himself examine all the ballots cast in order to determine their validity in accepting or rejecting the ballots."

Two Injured In Crash

Two Colwood residents were taken to Victoria General Hospital Monday after their car went out of control on Esquimalt Road and sheared off a utility pole, Victoria police said.

Muriel Evans, 36, of 2276 Marlene, suffered severe cuts to the face and her husband, William, suffered head cuts and possible broken ribs. Both are in good condition.

Police said Evans lost control of the vehicle while travelling west on Esquimalt Road, 65 feet west of Harbour Road, and struck the pole on the north side of the street.

Damage was estimated at $1,000 to the car and $350 to the pole, police said.

Socreds Said 'Yes'—Neptune

Island Development Approval Sought

VANCOUVER (CP) — Neptune Estates Ltd. proceeded with plans to subdivide land it owns on North Pender Island only after receiving what it thought was approval from former municipal affairs minister Dan Campbell, Mr. Justice A. B. Macfarlane was told in British Columbia Supreme Court Monday.

Nepture seeks a court order requiring the Capital Regional District to approve its original subdivision plan or an amended plan submitted later.

The supreme court judge was told the proposed subdivision was stalled when the original plan was rejected and only the initial phase of a four-phase amended scheme approved, subject to certain changes.

Lawyer David Roberts, appearing for Neptune Estates, told the court that a letter from the municipal affairs minister would form an important part of the developer's quest for court approval of the subdivision plan.

The letter stated that certain subdivision requirements had come into effect but that these would not apply to developments which had already started.

Mr. Roberts said Neptune's Pender Island project fell into the latter category.

The lawyer told Mr. Justice Macfarlane that Neptune was finally advised that if it applied to the B.C. Public Utilities Commission for a certificate to install a water system on its property, and if the certificate was granted, that the proposed scheme would be approved.

He said Neptune was successful in obtaining the needed PUC certificate after much delay.

Yet at the time it received the PUC certificate it also received a letter from the regional district officer rejecting the plans. Mr. Roberts said the reason given was that the proposed subdivision was not in the public interest.

Mr. Roberts contended that if the question of public interest is to be raised now, Neptune should not have been told in effect it could go ahead. Instead, he stated, a public hearing on the issue should have been held.

The Vancouver lawyer then questioned the meaning of "public interest" in this context.

He contended that if the public interest is to be considered, it should apply to the interest of the local residents only.

The hearing continues.

They Talk It Up In the Hub City

Telephone lines out of Victoria are expected to be buzzing with 50,000 long distance calls to friends and family on Christmas Day.

But even at that, they can't match Nanaimo area residents for Christmas calls.

B.C. Telephone Co. estimates there will be 43,000 long-distance calls Christmas Day from Nanaimo, a much smaller city than Victoria.

Nanimo has always had a "high call pattern", B.C. Telephone public relations officer Glyn Jones said Monday.

Campbell River residents are expected to place 26,000 calls Dec. 25. Eighty operators will be on duty in Campbell River that day, 155 in Victoria and 108 in Nanaimo.

British Columbia residents are expected to place 519,675 calls within the 24 hours on Christmas Day.

B.C. Telephone is urging callers to check distant numbers ahead of time, to dial direct, and to consider calling a day or two before or after Christmas to be sure of getting through.

AL BAILEY SAYS:
It is better NOT to freeze smoked or cooked hams that have been cut. Why? Because processed hams contain much moisture, natural juices, as well as the pickling brine which is pumped into them during the curing process. When frozen, this moisture expands in small droplets throughout the meat. Then, when thawed, these droplets melt and drain away, leaving small holes and an undesirable dry and sponge-like texture.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MRS. N. WILSON
PEDDAR BAY MARINA
Winner of Our Weekly Free 25-lb. Freezer Pack

After the party, you could sleep at our place.

And that's just the beginning.

Let's be optimistic and assume you don't have an accident. Or hit any parked cars. Or speed. Let's assume you stay at the party longer than you planned and had three or four drinks—enough to drink to make you legally impaired. All in good fellowship. All without malice. And for some reason, you are stopped.

Here's what to expect:

1 Breathalizer Police officers are extremely adept at spotting impaired drivers. There are dozens of telltale clues. If you are suspected, you will be asked to submit to a breathalizer test. This is mandatory and refusal can result in serious charges. If you have consumed enough to give you a .08 reading, you can be charged with impaired driving.

2 Jail Very likely, you will be jailed overnight. For the average citizen, this is a terrifying experience. Impaired driving comes under the Criminal Code, and that is just how you will be treated. You will be fingerprinted, asked for alias', relieved of your belt, tie, shoelaces, and personal possessions, allowed one phone call, and be placed in a cell. In the morning, your breakfast will be slid under the bars of the cell door. You will find the night harrowing and have plenty of time to reflect. In the meantime, your wife and children will be worried, distressed and slightly mortified.

3 Fines The arresting officer's report, corroborated by your breathalizer reading, will normally result in a conviction. The number of convictions is increasing every year. Over 12,000 are expected in British Columbia alone this year. If the Judge lets you off with a $250 fine for the first offence, you can consider yourself lucky. For having accumulated ten penalty points, the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles will assess you a charge of $25.00 which will be used to pay for public information messages like the one you are now reading. Add to this the $50 to several hundred dollars you'll spend on a lawyer and you've dropped quite a bundle.

4 Suspension Even if you have never had so much as a parking ticket in thirty years of driving, you can expect to have your right to drive reviewed by the Superintendent of Motor-Vehicles. On his judgement and your driving record, your suspension may be one month, three months, six months, or even indefinitely.

5 Insurance The costs don't stop at fines and lawyers. When your insurance company hears all about it, your insurance premium will be surcharged. That means your insurance rates will soar until you can prove yourself a good risk again. That could take years if you have no more problems. And here's another point to ponder. Had you injured or killed someone while impaired, your liability coverage was void anyhow. Your insurance company will pay the claim, but they may demand repayment from you.

6 Publicity Criminal courts swarm with court reporters. In some smaller communities, your conviction will make front page news. They will list the details of your arrest, trial, conviction, breathalizer reading, fine and suspension. They will print all this, along with your name and address, for all your friends and business associates to read. It is the coup de grace you can expect about one week after the trial.

These are the hard cold facts of how a jovial evening can turn into a nightmare. The police have seen too many dead children to have much patience. The courts have heard too many tragedies to give you much mercy. And that's the way it is.

If you drink, don't drive

Group Trains Drug Workers

"As drug abuse approaches epidemic proportions, the need for effective community youth programs becomes critical.

"Many Canadian communities have no programs at all.

"Programs such as 'Drop-In' and 'Crisis Centres' are often staffed with highly motivated but inexperienced personnel.

"The need for trained workers is both great and imminent."

By KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

SALT SPRING IS. — The Federal Department of Health and Welfare agreed with the above statements made by Dr. Maureen Bendick in an application for a grant to help ease the drug problem.

It has since awarded the clinical psychologist $43,000 and her Community Training Centre—which aims to "demystify" the problem of drug abuse, especially in British Columbia—is slowly coming to life here on Welbury Point.

Six-Man Team

Although no major changes are apparent from the project's exterior, a six-man team is hard at work inside the building making up a residential training ground in the war against drug abuse.

In addition to its educational aims, CTC is attempting—under the direction of Bendick—to evaluate existing facilities to fight drug abuse in rural and urban B.C.

"We hope by this method to provide to rural communities the opportunity to educate a number of people within the community . . . who could then become a significant group for the development of services and education," she states in the application.

"In some cases we're telling rural communities not to accept technical solutions like free drug clinics, just because they've worked in urban centres," Bendick added.

Financed by a health education grant by the department's non-medical use of drugs directorate, CTC offers residential facilities for week or week-end long seminars.

Accommodation for 12-person groups is available at a cost of about $15 per person per week.

Sharon McCollough, a landed immigrant and former director of the Kamloops YWCA said CTC is open to three interest groups: those already trained in the fight against drug abuse; lay persons; and volunteers, or non-professional workers.

The program differs for each group.

"We're offering the facilities to the community to get together and re-evaluate their facilities and share and exchange ideas," she said.

"The centre is acting as a once-removed agency," added another worker, Dr. Guille Libresco, also a landed immigrant with 14 years experience as a counselling psychologist.

Libresco hastened to point out that although the workers—four of the six are landed immigrants—"are not Canadian, we left the States for political reasons ages before any grant was thought of."

Libresco explained the CTC workers became frustrated in dealing with the problem of drug abuse on a one-to-one basis.

Stimulate Results

"We felt something like CTC would stimulate more wide-spread results," she explained.

Her remarks were voiced in response to media criticism that workers, financed by a Canadian grant, were not, in fact, Canadians.

Carole Riis, a former counsellor at a free clinic, is also one of the resource persons. She said she was interested in fighting abuse—including alcohol—"because I was tired of treating the casualties instead of the problem."

"We want to shorten the time gap," Libresco said.

"Treating addicts on a one-to-one basis from the professionals' office, is time consuming, costly and inefficient and it doesn't solve the problem," she said.

"Through the CTC umbrella effect we hope to make people aware of the problems and de-mystify the whole thing."

"There's a place for experts," she continued. "But they come after the fact. People are the best experts. We're not producing mini-shrinks. It's our suggestion that they go back to their communities and look for the problem."

Workers say the problem isn't drugs or alcohol but an attitude that has caused the dependency.

Bendick said data compiled from seminars will be published and circulated to interested agencies across Canada.

Depending on the make-up of the visiting group, questionnaires, discussions, resource material and lectures on methods of setting up drug abuse clinics will be covered.

CTC also sees a co-ordinating role at the centre. After discussions with lay persons from any given area, workers can tell agency representatives where their facilities are lacking.

Groups from the Lower Mainland have already visited the centre, and later this year applications from Vancouver Island residents will be accepted.

Bendick said parents are included because "they are tragically and ill-informed about the factors . . . relating to drug abuse and they tend to grasp at simplistic solutions."

"We're trying to get at the problems in society that cause addiction. Helping them to re-evaluate themselves can help," Libresco agreed.

Although they have had many inquiries, CTC has not yet filled it's timetable. Since the centre was set up, three groups have attended seminars, including a parent group and a Mainland group of heroin addict workers.

Bendick said the location CTC pays $700 a month rent for the accommodation — was chosen because "we needed an intensive in-residence structure for the learning environment."

Other workers are Suzanne Gatch, a crisis centre worker experienced in educational programs; and Lynne Culham, the centre's secretary.

Although CTC does not want to become a direct service agency, a number of calls have been received from Island residents who want help. Bendick said "alcoholism continues to be the biggest problem."

Grass Roots Fight

Workers hope members from each community will return and discuss what they have learned making it a "real grass roots fight against drug abuse.

"It's no longer the case where the heroin pusher is standing at the street corner disguised with a big hat and dark glasses dealing his goods. He is the 15-year-old playing basketball and dealing to his friends on the school playground."

First Card Artist Unknown

CESKE BUDEJOVICE, Czechoslovakia (UPI) — Since 1949, when the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF), printed its first Christmas card, it has sold 697 million of them.

But the artist who started it all has never received one.

And although such big names as Pablo Picasso and Salvador Dali have followed in her footsteps, Mrs. Jitka Samkova Vejdova remains virtually unknown.

This suits her fine.

"I don't care for publicity because it didn't do my much good," said Mrs. Vejdova, a 32-year-old blonde whose cheerful painting of children dancing around a maypole was selected by UNICEF for its first painting.

She was seven years old at the time.

"People don't believe I got nothing out of it," said Mrs. Vejdova, now married with two children. "I never received a single crown (CENT) — not even a Christmas card.

"All I have to show for it is a photocopy of my original painting and a trip to Switzerland four years ago to attend the 25th anniversary celebrations of UNICEF," she said.

Children Sent Thanks

In 1949, Mrs. Vejdova was one of many Czech schoolchildren who sent their thanks in the form of paintings to UNICEF for providing milk to replace losses caused by Nazi slaughter of her village's dairy cattle.

She made her painting on glass because there was no paper.

Hers was chosen for a poster at UNICEF feeding centres throughout her homeland and later for the first UNICEF Christmas card.

Asked to describe her design, she said, "The picture expresses joy, by going round and round, and the wreath at the top of the maypole is to show that the line of children to help is endless."

Twenty-three years later, this is still true. One reason for the sale of UNICEF Christmas cards is to remind people and governments everywhere that there are still millions of children in desperate need of food and basic education. A second purpose is to raise funds to buy milk, medicine and textbooks to fill that need.

Modest Beginning

From a modest beginning — Mrs. Vejdova's design sold 4,000 copies the first season — total sales since 1949 topped 697 million this year, with an annual profit of $3 million.

UNICEF cards are also credited with having spread the custom of annual exchanges of Christmas-New Year greetings far beyond Europe and North America.

Asked about it now, Mrs. Vejdova's green eyes twinkle and she says with a smile: "It was all a children's game."

"Who knows?" she said. "Maybe this year someone will send me a UNICEF Christmas card."

Games Are Sexist

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Many toys on store shelves these days encourage aggression and sexism in children, say two psychologists at the University of Utah.

The two — Profs. Donna M. Gelfand and Donald P. Hartmann — said they have examined scores of toys to try to determine what effect they might have on a youngster.

"In a toy department tour . . . I found that a third to half of the merchandise consisted of aggressive toys — war games or guns," said Hartmann. "Not uncommon were rock 'em, sock 'em robots who were "turned on" to annihilate each other."

"Toys play a vital role in the child's development," said Gelfand. "They should encourage individuality rather than sexism — why must girls always receive nurse outfits and boys be given chemistry sets?"

Many toys also are inferior and unsafe, the researchers said.

"A number of toys banned by the Food and Drug Administration have not been removed from the shelves," said Gelfand. Parents must inform themselves — through such publications as "Consumer Reports" — about dangerous toys. Everyone should know enough to avoid uninspected electrical toys and toys made of glass or plastic that shatters."

Toys, says Hartmann, serve three functions in the growth of a child:

—They are sources of entertainment.

Children probably don't need expensive, sophisticated toys to properly develop social skills, Hartmann says.

"In a sense, you could socialize over a mud puddle as well as an electric train, but most parents prefer the train."

The psychologists — both parents — suggest buying toys that encourage creativity and inventiveness — such as arts and craft supplies, seed sprouting kits and pets, "fun for the whole family" games.

TOYS NEED SAFETY CHECK

Christmas is just around the corner and there are only a few shopping days left to choose toys for children on your lists.

The Canadian Toy Testing Council has come up with some advice for harried parents beset by offspring who have been enticed by Christmas toy advertising.

First of all, says the council, toys should be safe, durable and interesting for the child.

Before putting a toy in a child's hands, parents should check that it does all the things it is supposed to. Batteries should be in place and moving parts should function.

Federal safety standards and the Hazardous Products Act have improved the quality of toys appearing this year. The act provides standards for construction and material used in toys. However, parents should still watch for sharp edges and detachable parts small enough to find their way into tiny mouths.

Small Gifts Priceless

JELLY SIDE DOWN
nancy stahl

Whenever the children ask me what I would like for them to get me for Christmas, I invariably reply: "Make something for me."

A gift that they make themselves is priceless, a tiny bit of childhood love to hold in my hand whenever the world gives me an exceptionally uncalled-for bump.

Besides I am already up to here in "Evening in Paris" cologne.

In keeping with this philosophy every Christmas I knit something for the children. Since it has taken me the better part of twenty years to learn how to purl, I have not lived long enough yet to master the art of increasing, decreasing or turning a heel. Whatever I knit must be straight. Of necessity, their gifts are thus limited to a new dust jacket for "The Bobbsey Twins on the Farm," a loin cloth, or a scarf.

Unfortunately, I am never sure when to quit on a scarf and have been known to present a three-foot child with a scarf which, at sixteen feet, would make an ideal winding sheet.

Making absolutely sure of the correct length does take a bit away from the children's suspense; when I wrap a tape measure around their necks three times and fling each end jauntily over their shoulders, they know that they're not being fitted for ten-speed bicycles.

Of course, they always feign a most gratifying degree of surprise and delight on Christmas morning, exclaiming, "What a keen scarf. Puce is my favorite color!" and declaring fervently, "You shouldn't have!"

Not only do they wear the scarves all Christmas morning over their pajamas, but they insist upon wearing them to bed every night during Christmas vacation. Where they won't wear them is outside.

I suppose that I shouldn't expect them to, as they each own eight gorgeous Scottish mohair scarves with monograms and hand-tied fringe. And they never wear those either.

Experts have defined stress — emotional, mental and physical — as intense exertion. Most stress is harmful, but some types of stress are beneficial, like a brisk walk or pleasurable excitement.

What harms us is an accumulation of excessive stress without release. To avoid psychosomatic illnesses, we therefore should learn how to cope with extended emotional difficulties.

The 16-page Stress And Your Health helps you understand how stress undermines your well-being. It also offers invaluable advice for coping with and neutralizing excessive tension.

Searching Shoppers Cuts Irish Bombings

BELFAST (AP) — "It's a bit like shopping in a zoo," said the Belfast housewife out searching for Christmas presents.

She was searching and she was searched. Steel gates like those at a zoo or top-security factory enclose Belfast's main shopping streets.

Every one going in and out is searched by armed soldiers. Every shopping bag is emptied, every parcel examined.

The result has been to cut down the rate of bombings in downtown Belfast, previously a prime target in the Irish Republican Army's guerrilla war for a united Ireland.

The added security has brought business back into the city centre. Some big stores report takings are still way below normal, others claim a boom.

The manager of an internationally-known chain store said most children here will be getting new clothes this Christmas.

Toy guns are off the Belfast shopping list. One reason is that modern plastic guns are so close in appearance to the real thing that to carry them about is deadly dangerous. At least one child was shot dead this year, mistaken for a guerrilla gunman.

"Gun sales have been dropping for the last three years," said the store manager.

"It's partly a matter policy. We don't want trouble on our conscience. And it's partly a matter of demand. Most parents wouldn't buy."

Two big stores specializing in clothing confirmed the trend away from toys. They claimed record business despite the city's troubles.

A lighted Christmas tree stands outside city hall, where Queen Victoria's statue gazes down Royal Avenue.

Otherwise, Belfast has few signs of the approach of Christmas.

Down in Dublin, capital of the Republic, things are more relaxed despite recent bombings.

Hotels and restaurants have a lavish program of Christmas and New Year galas.

Fewer Houses

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of households in the country increased considerably between 1966 and 1971, but the number of people living in each dropped, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

In information gleaned from the census last year, the statistics bureau said the number of households rose 16.6 per cent to 6,041,300 in the five-year period.

But the average number of people living in each dropped to 3.1 from 3.4 people in 1966.

Most of the more than six million households — 4.75 million of them — had married couples as their heads. But the number of households with divorced heads — 112,665 in 1971 — more than doubled in every province for an average national increase of 179.8 per cent since 1966.

While most of the households contained families, the number without increased considerably to 1.1 million in 1971 from 804,064 in 1966.

Poorly Thawed Turkey Unsafe

OTTAWA (CP) — If you want to thaw poultry by letting it stand at room temperature, wrap it in a brown paper bag or cover it with a towel.

This prevents the outside of the poultry from thawing faster and getting warm before the inside thaws.

The current Dispatch, published by the educational services of the federal health and welfare department, contains handy hints on how to thaw, cook and store your holiday poultry safely.

It says poultry is a carrier of potentially harmful bacteria called salmonella. They are easily destroyed at recommended cooking temperatures, but sensible handling is also needed.

The safest way to thaw poultry is in the refrigerator or in cold water in a water-tight bag or container. If you want to cook it frozen, the cooking time should be 1½ times the normal.

If you buy fresh poultry, keep it in the coldest part of the refrigerator. Remove the store wrapping and cover the bird loosely with waxed paper or aluminum foil. The giblets should be removed and stored separately as they spoil rapidly. Cook the bird within two or three days.

Even though time is usually of the essence during the holidays, don't stuff a bird before you're ready to cook it. Stuffing cools slowly and is an ideal place for bacteria to grow.

Stuff any bird loosely for cooking to allow heat to penetrate quickly through the dressing. For safety's sake, a meat thermometer is recommended to determine the temperature in the centre of the stuffing, not just in the meat. The temperature must reach 165 degrees.

If you buy a cooked, stuffed turkey from a caterer, remove the stuffing and keep both turkey and stuffing hot until you are ready to serve.

If the bird is delivered well ahead of time, remove the stuffing and refrigerate both turkey and stuffing until it's time to reheat it. To reheat, cover the bird with aluminum foil and baste occasionally.

Put it in a 300- to 350-degree oven and heat until the meat thermometer reaches a temperature of at least 140.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Wed., Dec. 20, 1972

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 10): Full moon position now coincides with decisions made in connection with home, security, marriage and business partnerships. It may be difficult to face facts, but it is necessary. Private conference is due.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Forces tend to be scattered. You are tempted to make moves which bring greater flexibility. However, certain duties exist and really should not be ignored. Strive for balance. Close relative plays key role.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Money, actions based on impulse — these are emphasized. Realize necessity for completing what you start. Aries could figure prominently. One you took for granted may not take an aura of glamor.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Innovations prove successful. Strive to express what you feel. Others will relate to your style. Key now is individuality. Full moon position stresses personality, special relationships.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Indirect approach serves your purpose. Mean take ring road rather than straight path. One who seems above reproach may actually have plenty to hide. Know it and do some discreet inquiring.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Lunar position now coincides with analysis of what you want, what can be obtained. Social affair could lead to meaningful experiences. Know it and emerge from emotional shell. See and be seen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You can break through barriers of restriction. Key is to maintain steady pace. Be thorough, determined. Find ways of rebuilding, reinforcing. Contact one in authority. Bypass red tape. Sky is the limit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Change of attitude draws to you different persons and experiences. Look beyond the immediate. Welcome learning experience. Develop philosophy. Open mind — and lines of communication.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Adjustment in home, domestic area is indicated. Your voice can play important role. Talk softly but with authority. If interested in music, pursue study. Mate, partner talks money.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lie low. One in authority may be in mood to reorganize. Your position is enhanced if you are an apt pupil, observer. Obtain hint from Sagittarius message. Don't volunteer. What I required will come to you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You will have to work with material at hand. Promises of "something else" do not immediately materialize. Depend on your own resources. Take one step at a time. Shortcuts will not suffice.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finished rather than initiate project. Get message across to more persons. Deal with Aries, especially in financial area. Accent now is on creativity, romance, speculation. Don't play games where emotions are involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you move with deliberate speed. Means you actually set your own pace. Family situation dominated this past September. You are sensitive, receptive, perhaps cold on the outside but aking to a roarding furnace inside. January and October are likely to be significant for you in 1973.

dear abby

Friend on Spot

DEAR ABBY: A married couple I have known and liked for a long time have been having their problems. She has accused him of other women, and he's accused her of other men.

Well, Mary is going to leave George, only George doesn't know it yet. Mary told me in confidence, and of course I'm not going to say a word to George or to anybody else about this.

Mary plans to leave George a note which he will find when he comes home from work saying she has left him. My problem is that Mary wants me to drive her to the airport.

Mary is my best friend, and I hate to let her down, but what would you do if you were me? — In The Middle

DEAR IN: I'd try to persuade Mary to tell George she's leaving him. (He may drive her to the airport.) Stay out of it. If Mary decides to sneak away, let her provide her own transportation.

DEAR ABBY: I have read your column for years and now I have something I would like to see printed. I am a 19-year-old girl, and what I have to say concerns "names."

Many people, give their children cute or unusual names, which is all right if care is used, but it can be a real disaster.

I was baptized with a boy's name, "Peter," to be specific, and I would not wish it on my worst female enemy. Records got confused. I got kicked out of class by teachers who didn't believe I was who I said I was, and the police have even taken me down to the station under suspicion because they thought I was concealing my identity. It would be bad enough if I were mannish — but I am very feminine.

Some people say a name is not important, but I can tell you it is! A person's name affects intimately how he is seen by others and how he sees himself. It was difficult to think of myself as a girl with a name like Peter.

When I reached the age of 18 I had my name legally changed, even though I faced a great deal of opposition from my family. So, parents of the world, please don't handicap a boy with a girl's name or a girl with a boy's name. It's not fair. Ask the person who has one. — Bethany Lyn Brown (Would you believe, formerly, "Peter Lucille Josephine Brown?")

Pollution-Free Industry Grows

EDMONTON (CP) — The whirr of a movie camera panning over the Alberta landscape represents a new sound of money in the province.

The shooting of feature films has left more than $2 million in Alberta during the last year, and these crisp new bills arrived without the customary industrial smoke or depletion of scarce resources.

The inflow of dollars and the accompanying free tourist promotion for the province has enchanted the provincial government. So much so that, encouraged by past success in the movie world, the government sent a three-man delegation to Hollywood recently to bid for a few more roles in major feature films.

"We were very, very well received by senior people with the major studios," said Tom Vant, assistant deputy minister of planning and support services for the department of industry and commerce.

"We spoke to about 40 people, many of them directors, vice-presidents and producers, and most seemed quite interested in Alberta as a location for films."

AIM AT BIG STUDIOS

Mr. Vant was accompanied by C. N. Ross, director of the film and photographic branch for industry and commerce, and Les Kimber of Calgary, a member of the director's guild from private industry.

"Our purpose was to follow up on past films shot in the province and to try to develop a package approach which would encourage the major studios to come to Alberta for a film location," Mr. Vant said.

Alberta provided part of the location for Little Big Man, which starred Dustin Hoffman and Chief Dan George. The film contained a section shot on the Morley Indian reserve south of Calgary from November, 1969, to January, 1970.

Mr. Vant said the direct expenditure in Alberta for that film was more than $1 million, and it showed the film industry that work could be done successfully even at temperatures of 40 below zero.

Scenes for Walt Disney's production Old Hacksaw were shot in the Calgary area in 1971. Last spring a low-budget Canadian production, Cool Spring, was shot in the Lethbridge area.

Prime Cut, starring Lee Marvin and Gene Hackman, turned to the Alberta countryside for almost all of its outdoor scenes and by doing so left at least $1.5 million in the province, said Mr. Vant. The film was shot last summer.

LISTS PROSPECTS

"Another film is pretty well assured to come next spring to the Calgary area," he said.

"We also talked to a vice-president with a major studio who seemed almost convinced to shoot a mystery film around Banff shortly after Christmas."

The group also met with major television networks and Mr. Vant said there are possibilities of using Alberta in the production of television movies. Such films would require about 12 days shooting and would cost about $500,000 each.

"There is a possibility that we might also see a pilot film for a new television series shot here.

"If so, we could have a film being produced on a weekly basis which would greatly stimulate local employment."

He said the film industry's desire for new scenery and the province's generally lower prices and lack of sales tax stand in Alberta's favor.

You Can Now Assess Damages of Winter

A spell of milder weather is with us once again, giving home gardeners a chance to assess the winter vegetables still in good condition outdoors.

Plan to use whatever you now have growing, as main items for special meals over the long holiday season. There will be more than financial benefit; you will feel tremendous satisfaction too.

Just as important, you will be sharing the home grown freshness with visitors who perhaps have forgotten or never known this delight.

The frost and wind may have spoiled the Brussels sprouts or they may still be firm and sweet. Try two or three cooked before the day you want to serve them.

When you wash any of your green vegetables, do so as quickly as possible; shake out surplus moisture, then pat dry with a cotton or linen dish towel. They keep better (if this is necessary) in the refrigerator cooler if dried in this way.

Swiss chard looked horribly limp after the 10 degs. F. reading a while back but appears recovered now, promising enough pickings to make a bright fresh green vegetable in place of sprouts.

The kale won't be harmed at all, and the young leaves are almost as mild as young sprouts if these are lacking.

A dish of home-grown leeks with a dressing of butter (or yogurt) sprinkled with freshly grated nutmeg, is so good with roast duck that it will make you a reputation as a cook who really knows her onions!

With a drizzle of molasses or honey before serving, winter squash successfully competes with sweet potatoes at a much lower price, even if you have to buy it.

If you were one of the gardeners lucky enough to have apples this year, don't forget to use them at your holiday meals. You may have grapes, too. They make handsome centrepieces in bowls with red apples peeping through.

Add a few home-grown nuts, and you'll be the envy of all your guests.

"How do you grow all these things yourselves?" will be the question. Then you can have a wonderful time bragging about how easy it is.

All you have to do is dig and sow, cultivate, weed, and water, and presto! you have meals like this all year.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

A word that is a part of the vocabulary of bridge is "coffee-housing." It means indulging in unethical tactics, with the intent of either misleading the opponents or aiding partner.

The word had its origin in the coffee-houses of Europe, where card-playing was a way of life. These card games frequently featured conversational gambits designed to mislead one's adversaries. The term, "coffee-house bridge," thus became a synonym for legal, but unethical, gambits.

Although there is no written law against coffee-housing, its practitioners are frowned upon, with the ultimate penalty being ostracism. Today's deal features a classic example of coffee-housing. The ending, had an ironic twist with justice being served.

East-West vulnerable. South deals.

6 ◇	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

After winning the opening lead with his king of hearts, West continued with the heart queen, South ruffing. The ace and king of trumps then gathered in the outstanding pieces, after which declarer cashed the ace, king, and queen of clubs.

He next led the spade jack, and West fingered his singleton deuce, elevating it ever so much above the rest of his cards. He then lowered it back to its original position. After about 10 seconds, he finally played it. Without any doubt, it was a clear case of coffee-housing, since he knew all along that he would have to play it.

Declarer took the jack with dummy's king, after which he led the spade five. When East followed with a low spade, South finessed his nine successfully. When East asked South: "How come you finessed against me?" South answered: "It was automatic. I saw the spade queen in your hand."

I have it on good authority that South really didn't see the queen in East's hand, but he made his statement to demonstrate to East-West that there can be a counter-attack to coffee-housing. Actually, East, rather than West figured to have the spade queen, since East had been known to have started with exactly one diamond and one club. Hence East's length had to be in spades and hearts.

Birth Control Example Offered

TOKYO (AP) — To an Asian continent desperate to hold down its population growth, a Japanese official suggests the method that worked in Japan — condoms and abortions.

Japan's population growth rate dropped to 9.0 per 1,000 in 1957 from 19.9 in 1947, and Nobuo Shinozaki of the Institute of Population Problems in Japan's welfare ministry says he thinks it will work effectively in other Asian countries.

"However much money you dump, you cannot control the population growth in underdeveloped countries with oral pills and other contraceptive methods," Shinozaki says. "The pill is too complicated to use for the uneducated farmers." Peasants make up most of Asia's population.

"How can you expect them to see a doctor regularly for physical examinations and take the pill every day—even if it was given out free?

"And many of these countries cannot wait for educational improvement or economic development which will lessen the pressure of huge population," Shinozaki said in an interview.

"An ideal contraceptive," he added, "must be inexpensive, easy to use, safe, effective and unobjectionable to sexual activity.

"The condom is it . . ."

"Why not distribute condoms widely in the countries with serious population problems? And at the same time, send experienced doctors there to train local doctors and nurses in groups for abortion operations?" he asked.

"This way, I believe, we can solve the population problem in many underdeveloped countries in a matter of a few years."

Abortions, legalized in Japan soon after the Second World War, are believed to have exceeded the total number of live births for many years in this country.

Some 70 per cent of Japan's married couples use condoms, some combining them with other contraceptive methods such as the rhythm—or safe period—method, the intrauterine device and foaming tablets, officials say.

Municipal 'Wedding of Year' Becomes a Domestic Problem

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Five years ago when Kamloops merged with the town of North Kamloops, then-mayor Peter Wing called it "the wedding of the year" and a "union that will lead to great things."

Outside the new Kamloops, unorganized peripheral communities watched with unease, figuring that one day Kamloops would move to absorb them, willing or not, and on Kamloops' terms.

Two weeks ago, Kamloops announced plans to cut off these surrounding communities from city services "because serious consideration is not being given to amalgamation."

The neighboring municipalities are faced with loss of, or cutbacks in, services ranging from water and fire protection to welfare and ambulance service and residents even face restrictions on buying grave plots.

'GANGSTER TACTICS'

Kamloops Mayor Gordon Nicol said the city is not trying to force amalgamation. But Dufferin Mayor Roy Partridge, among others, says the city is trying to lean on the smaller communities in a way that recalls the bargaining tactics of gangster Al Capone — "a cement pair of pyjamas."

Partridge, who was to meet Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer Monday, says Kamloops is trying to force the provincial government to bring about amalgamation. But Gerry Anderson, NDP MLA for Kamloops, says Lorimer's department won't intervene, at least not "at an early date."

"Outlying municipalities are going to find out just how much Kamloops has been helping them financially and that some of the criticism of Kamloops has been unjustified," he said. "I say that as a resident of Brocklehurst," one of the cut-off communities.

What happened to Peter Wing's "great things"?

Most area planners and economists agree the two amalgamated communities got off to a bad start. The only immediate result of the merger was an increase in taxes that made amalgamation a dirty word.

Eight months after the "Wedding of the year" Kamloops administrator Ted Chace announced the birth of plans for a systematic take-over of the surrounding areas where residential development was taking place with little regard for community planning or provision of services.

The "Chace Report" sparked hostile reactions. The municipally unorganized community of Valleyview, with 3,200 residents on Kamloops' eastern flank, hurriedly became a town with its own mayor and four aldermen.

HIGHER TAXES

At a 1970 public hearing into the "future status of Greater Kamloops," set up by the then-municipal affairs minister Dan Campbell, representatives of outside communities agreed that amalgamation with the city would mean higher taxes.

"Our people live outside the city to get away from the burden of high taxes," was a frequently stated position of persons living in the outskirts.

After two dozen submissions, Campbell said: "Everybody's been telling me why they don't want to be part of the City of Kamloops, but none has come up with plans for the future."

In a detailed report, Kamloops predicted a multitude of "undesirable growth problems" if peripheral development was allowed to proceed unchecked. It added that people living outside city boundaries were nonetheless making "full use of city facilities, particularly recreation and sporting facilities, while not contributing to the upkeep."

The hearing ended with the then Kamloops MLA, Phil Gaglardi, criticising the city for its "parochial attitude." He said each community is "entitled to its own decision on future status and shouldn't be browbeaten by the city."

There was no immediate results from the public hearing.

Two weeks ago, with Kamloops taxpayers showing growing irritation at ever-rising taxes, Kamloops city council lowered the boom.

In a 16-point resolution unanimously approved by aldermen, council moved to cut off administrative services, restrict fire protection, terminate a metro policing system, stop the sale of water (except to the Kamloops Indian Reserve) and announced termination of a sewer agreement with the District of Dufferin. At the same time it announced rates for Brocklehurst and Valleyview sewage disposal would be increased in keeping with rising costs.

"The intent is not to force amalgamation," said Kamloops Mayor Gordon Nicol. "It's time we started paying attention to our own affairs as many people have suggested we should."

The neighboring communities are still trying to determine the implications and costs.

No Pomp, Ceremony Planned for ECM Entry

LONDON (CP) — Britain will slip into Europe on New Year's Day with neither pomp nor ceremony. No trumpets will sound in Brussels or Rome. Europeans will observe their traditional holiday and European Common Market offices will be shut.

For the many Britons still uneasy about the coming close association with the Germans, Italians, French, Belgians and Dutch, the day may pass almost painlessly. Immigration restrictions will ease out no armies of workers are waiting to move in or out of Europe.

British travellers will still have to show their passports at the customs gates. The government plans no distribution of national identity cards such as those issued among the Common Market partners. The only tiny joy on that day is that returning Britons may bring back a little more duty-free whisky and wine.

For some weeks there have been questions about how the increase of the six Common Market partners to nine will be marked.

Officials said the decision is to let the day go by with governments merely performing the ritual of depositing the articles of ratification.

HOLD CONCERTS

Two days after the event, Britain will launch its fanfare for Europe, mainly a series of concerts to include European performers.

The event feeling is quiet resignation—mixed with some resentment—that partnership with Europe is inevitable. The battle against entry is declining, though the Labor party has rejected the Socialist pleas of Europe and will boycott the European parliament.

Feb. 1 some Britons may begin to feel the first pain of entry as agricultural levies go into effect. Prices of some items will go up as the government collects a special duty on non-European imports.

But officials emphasize there will continue to be special treatment of products from Commonwealth sources during the five-year transitional period. Temporary exemptions from the duties are still being negotiated in Brussels.

Britain and her European partners will introduce a 20-percent mutual reduction of industrial tariffs April 1. These reductions will be extended annually until all tariffs among the partners are eliminated.

Prime Minister Heath predicts the result will be immense prosperity for Britain if only management and unions prepare for the opportunity. But some of the big unions are still hoping to sink their battle-axes into Heath's government.

Davis to Shuffle Marine, Fisheries

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis announced Monday he will reorganize his department Jan. 1, breaking it down into two primary divisions: fisheries and marine services and environmental services.

Under the reorganization, which reduces the department's complement of assistant deputy ministers by two, K. C. Lucas, 43, former assistant deputy minister for the environmental protection service, will become senior assistant deputy minister of fisheries and marine services.

Jean Lupien, 49, senior assistant deputy minister since the department was formed 18 months ago, will become senior assistant deputy minister of environmental services.

Mr. Lucas will be responsible for ocean-oriented activities such as oceanography and fisheries research, development and operations, while other elements of the department will come under Mr. Lupien's jurisdiction.

R. F. Shaw will remain deputy minister of the department as a whole.

Mean Thieves

ABERDEEN, Md. (AP) — About $12,000 worth of airline tickets and 25 bus tickets for soldiers planning on going home for the Christmas holiday have been carried off by burglars. The tickets, along with $647 in cash and about $180 worth of jewelry, were in a safe stolen by the thieves, a spokesman at the Aberdeen Proving Ground reported Monday.

Eye Disease Prevalent In Gaspe

MONTREAL (CP) — During a recent tour of the Gaspe Peninsula in eastern Quebec, 18 ophthalmologists and three nurses operating from a mobile eye-care unit found that 63.9 per cent of the 1,500 persons examined had some kind of eye disease.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind (CNIB) said about 40 per cent of those with diseased eyes were children.

The mobile unit, financed by the Toronto-area Lions Clubs of Weston and Parkdale and the Quebec social affairs department, was equipped with facilities for complete eye examinations and minor surgery.

Staff members were provided by the CNIB and the Quebec Association of Ophthamologists.

The CNIB reported the eye diseases included glaucoma, cataracts, strabismus (crossed eyes), and diseases of the retina.

CRACKDOWN URGED

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States government malpractice commission has urged periodic renewal of licensing of all doctors based on continued medical education, periodic re-examinations for specialists and tougher state procedures for disciplining incompetents.

The 21-member commission ended 16 months of study with a three-day session concluding Sunday.

The group, headed by Pittsburgh lawyer Wendell Freeland, said state licensing boards should include lay members, and their disciplinary hearings should be open to the public.

The commission urged steps to make malpractice insurance more effective. It suggested more states encourage arbitration and explore "non-faultbased" payment to he injured, somehing lik "non-faultbased" payment to the injured, something like no-fault auto insurance.

The commission accepted for inclusion in its final report a partial dissent by Dr. Charles Hoffman, president of the American Medical Association and a commission member.

Dr. Hoffman saw "the zealous performance" of lawyers as the root cause for the increasing number and cost of malpractice claims.

Colosseum Opened

ROME (Reuter) — Rome's ancient Colosseum, where gladiators once fought each other to the death, was partially reopened Monday in time for the Christmas rush of tourists after being closed for three months as a public danger. The 1,900-year-old Colosseum was closed for repairs last September after mortar decay caused by heavy rains brought huge stone blocks crashing to the ground.

Auto-Wrecking Business Booms

EDMONTON (CP) — Earl Fraser has a photographic memory when it comes to his rusting metal.

He knows where everything is. "You just have to keep on top of it," he said, surveying his eight-acre collection. "Believe me. If I've got an engine around here worth $300, I know where it is."

Mr. Fraser is in the auto salvage business—a business he has built up from one car in 1964.

"I know where the lemons are, too," he said with some disgust while pointing to a 1969 foreign car. "I paid $300 for that one and haven't sold a thing off it but a tire."

Mr. Fraser estimated that the land on which his operation sits is worth roughly $64,000. And the more than 1,000 car bodies in various stages of strip represent a large investment.

Business is good, but he indicated there is still room for improvement.

"We depend very heavily on insurance companies both for old damaged units and for resale of parts."

Dealers such as he usually bid on insurance company writeoffs and resell various parts to replace those damaged or worn out in less serious wrecks, Mr. Fraser said.

"But some of the insurance companies are selling their customers factory replacements now where a used item such as we might have in stock would do."

It can cost up $600 to buy a replacement door for a late model car with electric windows, he said. "We might have the same thing in stock, in perfect condition, for about $75."

"When we appraise a unit we are judging not just the amount of parts that can be salvaged from it, but the demand for those parts," he continued.

"We charge about 35 per cent of the list price for the same parts as you would buy new in the store, depending of course on its condition."

Profits from the business are almost totally dependent on the amount of work the proprietor cares to put into it, Mr. Fraser said.

Russians Now Aware Of Overfish Dangers

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Soviet Union's attitude towards the Pacific coast fishery is showing signs of improvement, a Canadian fisheries official said Monday.

Keith Ketchen, back after two weeks of talks with Russians are displaying more of a siansa re displaying more of a sense of responsibility to fish stocks than they have done in the past.

Ketchen, assistant director of the Nanaimo biological station, and scientists Jurgen Westrheim and Cliff Forrester exchanged statistics and views on the state of the fishery and agreed to carry out further joint research.

"The discussions were friendly and both sides came away feeling they had accomplished something in the study of fish resources," he said.

Ketchen said the Russians now are fishing primarily for hake off the Pacific Coast, taking a total of about 150,000 tons annually.

He said American and Canadian fishermen do little fishing for hake, a member of the cod family, because of its soft flesh. The Russians are able to make use of it because they have the facilities to fillet and freeze it at sea.

"When they first hit the coast they were taking tens of thousands of tons," Ketchen said.

"Now they have agreed — at least at my level — that they should show caution at further exploitation of these stocks and allow them to recover a bit."

'An Oversight'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two non-status Indians, Terry Miller and Art Heline, have been appointed to the provincial government's advisory committee to the First Citizen's Fund.

An earlier omission of non-status Indians produced a sharp reaction from the B.C. Association of Non-Status Indians. The association's concern was taken up by a number of NDP backbenchers.

Deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace said the oversight was not deliberate — "it was just something that happened."

He said a non-status Indian — one who does not live on a reserve and is not registered as an Indian by the federal government — was on the previous committee.

Jet Runs Off Runway

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Air Canada DC-9 bound for Edmonton ran off the runway at Vancouver International Monday when the captain cancelled takeoff.

The jet ploughed into soft ground at the end of the runway and none of the 61 passengers was injured.

Man Kills Twins

RECIFE (Reuter) — Brazilian woodcutter Manuel Ferreira da Silva killed his identical twin brother in a machete fight for impersonating him and dating the girl he hoped to marry. Manuel and his brother Severino were so alike even relatives sometimes had difficulty in telling them apart. Severino, 35, died in hospital.

SANTA JETS NORTH

LOWER POST (CP) — Santa Claus came again to the kids at the Lower Post Indian residential school this week—by air with a big bag of toys.

Santa came into this community 1,000 miles north of Vancouver aboard a CP Air jet. But nobody really cared how he got here, just as long as he returns again to the Lower Post school.

Actually, Santa is a member of the Prince George Lions Club named Al Thompson. Bringing toys to the children at Lower Post has been a tradition for as long as most of the kids remember—even longer, a total of 15 years.

And the children—from 15 different Indian tribes in B.C. and the Yukon—welcomed him with a Christmas pageant, and songs, and eyes as big as saucers as the presents were distributed.

Disaster Area

SURREY (CP) — Mayor Bill Vander Zalm, who says the Surrey area "appears vulnerable to disaster," has asked Ottawa and Victoria to help the municipality maintain a permanent emergency preparedness.

The mayor said he has suggested to federal Environment Minister Jack Davis and provincial Resources Minister Bob Williams that the two senior governments share with Surrey the cost of assigning one member of the municipality's engineering staff to a preparedness role.

Surrey's beaches were hit by an oil spill last summer and hundreds of acres of farm land were flooded last month when a dike broke on Mud Bay. Similar salt water flooding occurred in the 1950s.

Compensation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Mrs. Mine Mukai, 78, of Vancouver, would receive an award of $537 under the British Columbia Criminal Injuries Act. She was injured Aug. 22 in a purse-snatching incident.

Body in Camper

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — The body of a man who died more than two weeks ago was found in a camper truck in a towing company's storage yard here. A police spokesman said the man apparently was drinking in the camper in a store's parking lot sometime before Dec. 6. Empty liquor bottles were found in the truck. The camper was towed off the lot Dec. 6 because it was blocking snow removal, but no one looked inside. A passerby glanced into the truck and discovered the body.

Complaint Rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister William King, a former locomotive engineer, has rejected a complaint by the United Steelworkers of America about exhaust fumes from CP Rail locomotives at the Cominco smelter at Trail.

In a letter to the union King said the diesels in question have been emitting gas for about 50 years and "it would seem somewhat unusual to me that the matter would precipitate the threat of a wildcat strike at this particular point in time."

More Roadblocks

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police are setting up more roadblocks to check for impaired motorists in the wake of ever-mounting drinking driver offences in the city. A spokesman said that in the first 18 days of December, 598 drinking drivers had been caught.

Manitoba City Registers Lowest Average Income

By PAUL JACKSON
Timed Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Residents of Portage La Prairie, Man., have the lowest average income of any Canadian city surveyed in a list of 99 cities produced by the federal national revenue department.

Out of the list of 99 ciities the Manitoba city ranks 99th with its taxable residents having an average income in the 1970 taxation year of $4,832.

If Portage La Prairie residents feel like having a tendency to take some consolation in the fact by believing they must also pay the lowest amount of federal income tax then they had better think again — the residents of Victoriaville, Que., who rank number 89th in order of average income hold that status.

The average income in Victoriaville in 1970 was $5,638 and the average tax bill was $505.

Average 1970 tax bill for taxable residents of Portage La Prairie that year was $506.

The statistics, released in the publication Inside Taxation 1972 show that residents of the small Quebec community of Sept-Iles have the highest average income at $8,102. Their average federal tax bill was $864 in 1970.

Residents of Toronto had an average income of $7,122 in 1970. Average tax bill was $1,034. The city ranks ninth in the list.

In Western Canada, Alberni, B.C., appears to have the wealthiest average taxable citizens. Alberni ranks seventh on the 99-city list with an average income of $7,238 in 1970. The average tax bill was $921.

Other major Western Canadian cities:

Victoria, B.C., 51st. Average income, $6,266. Average tax, $794.

Red Deer, Alta., 66th. Average income, $6,043. Average tax, $727.

Medicine Hat, Alta., 80th. average income, $5,850. Average tax bill, $678.

A number of smaller centres throughout the West had much higher average incomes in 1970 than the major cities.

For example, the British Columbia capital of Victoria and the province's largest city of Vancouver are both bettered by cities other than Alberni.

Victoria, at 51st position, is bettered by Prince Rupert, 14th; Kamloops, 24th; Trail-Rossland, 26; Nanaimo, 36th; and Vernon, 39th.

The national capital of Ottawa, where all the tax money goes at least to be counted and where a large bulk of the citizens are paid by the taxpayers from coast to coast, comes out at 5th place in the list.

Average income in Ottawa is $7,450. Average tax bill is $1,078.

Spaceship Splashes Down Safely

Times News Services

ABOARD USS TICONDEROGA — The last men of Apollo landed safely in the South Pacific today with the moon prize they sought and a treasure of souvenirs marking the end of an era in which man conquered the moon.

The aircraft carrier Ticonderoga stood by to retrieve the astronauts and start them on the way home to Houston Thursday to join their families and friends for the Christmas holidays.

The moon explorers slashed into upper fringes of earth's atmosphere travelling 6.8 miles a second and decelerated quickly to a gentle parachute landing in just 13 minutes. It may be decades before men fly that fast again.

Only two minor problems troubled the mission's last phases before splashdown. A big pair of scissors, lost in the spacecraft a few days ago, could not be found and Evans' headset — which he uses to communicate with ground control — was faulty.

Evans, who has been taking nose drops for congestion, was advised by mission control doctors to take a decongestant pill before he retired and another after breakfast.

"It might clear your ears before final descent," he was told.

On their last night in space the astronauts held a televised news conference, answering 13 questions relayed from reporters by Mission Control.

During the program, geologist Schmitt said that while on the moon he and Cernan sampled "a broad spectrum of lunar history" and "increased the perspective for the future of mankind in the solar system."

For the rest of the evening, the astronauts did little talking though Cernan before retiring took note of earth growing closer before them.

"The earth is sure starting to get big," said Cernan.

We Won't Bow Hanoi Vows

Times News Services

The Communist world reacted angrily today to U.S. President Nixon's resumed bombing of heavily-populated areas of North Vietnam, with some Eastern-bloc diplomats in London also predicting that the action could lead to a slow-down of the thaw in relations between Washington, Moscow and Peking.

But they said they did not anticipate a freeze in this process of improving relations.

One direct result of the latest developments in the Vietnam conflict might be a delay in the projected Washington visit of Soviet Communist Party chairman Leonid Brezhnev, they said.

In Moscow the Soviet Union condemned the renewed air strikes as a move to pressure Hanoi into a peace settlement and warned that Kremlin leaders are "giving the most serious consideration" to the situation.

"This particular decision of Washington flagrantly disagrees with numerous protestations made by the U.S. leaders about their wish to seek mutually acceptable solutions for the remaining unco-ordinated problems.

"No pretexts, invented in a bid to justify the brutal bombing, can hide the fact that we are faced with new aggressive actions which the U.S.A. is taking against a sovereign state."

North Vietnam's permanent peace negotiator accused Henry Kissinger today of "deliberately distorting the truth" in his report on the stalled peace talks.

The Hanoi negotiator, Xuan Thuy, told a news conference it was not North Vietnam but the United States that blocked agreement by demanding no fewer than 126 changes in the accord drafted in October.

Thuy said Hanoi is considering boycotting future peace negotiations because of the "shameless acts of war escalation."

"Every Christmas Mr. Nixon voices concern for prisoners, but every Christmas he bombs North Vietnam and for this reason the prisoners are not liberated," Thuy said.

Meanwhile, hundreds of U.S. planes including B-52 bombers pounded the Hanoi-Haiphong region of North Vietnam with the heaviest raids of the war Monday night and again today.

The North Vietnamese government, however, said President Nixon's attempt to bomb it into submission would not force it to accept Washington's peace terms.

Hanoi said six U.S. planes were shot down, incluling three B-52s and a number of pilots captured.

It charged that nearly 100 civilians were killed at attacks on Hanoi and its su-

IT DOESN'T MATTER AFTER YOU'RE 65

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — A Harvard University health expert said today that cigarette smokers who have reached age 65 might as well keep on smoking — they will not prolong their lives by stopping.

Dr. Carl C. Seltzer, senior research associate at the Harvard school of public health in Boston, said persons who stop smoking after 65 appear to gain no additional living time.

Seltzer based his conclusions on an analysis of the death rates of elderly British doctors over a 12-year period from 1953 to 1965.

B.C. May Lose Auto Plants

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Nissan Motors has called a news conference for noon Wednesday in Vancouver to officially announce an indefinite delay in plans to open a Datsun car assembly plant in British Columbia.

Earlier Hiraki Miki, president of Nissan Motors Canada Ltd., had said the assembly plant would be constructed in B.C. during 1973.

However, a company spokesman in Vancouver said it would not happen in 1973 and possibly not at all.

The company statement followed an announcement from Tokyo that the company is considering plants in Alberta and Ontario ahead of B.C.

The Vancouver spokesman said a news conference had been called for Wednesday to outline the company's position but the gist of the announcement would be "an indefinite delay, a long delay."

The decision is a severe blow for the provincial government which has counted heavily on new Japanese manufacturing plants as a showcase to attract other investment to the province.

After becoming premier he had talks with Miki of Nissan (Datsun) on the same topic.

There has been no action from Toyota and now the Datsun project seems to have been abandoned.

In Tokyo, Seishi Kato, executive vice-president of Toyota said revaluation of the yen had hurt sales in North America in 1972 and a further upward revaluation could increase car prices and cut sales even further.

The company hopes to increase sales in Canada, Indonesia and Latin America in 1973 and will hold the price to its present level in hopes of retaining the 280,000 sales it made in the U.S. in 1972. Sales in 1971 had been 390,000 vehicles.

Barrett said Monday he wants to speak to representatives of Nissan before he comments on the reports that the firm has no definite plans for establishing an assembly plant in B.C.

CHILD-BEATING BIG PROBLEM

VANCOUVER (CP) — A report on the incidence of child-beating in the province and recommendations on how to reduce the numbers will be made public in the new year, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Monday.

"Child-beating has become one hell of a problem," he said. "One has to be careful that the solutions to prevent it are not worse than the actions."

Duty-Free Liquor For Airport

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced today the government has approved establishment of a duty-free liquor store at the Vancouver International Airport.

He said the store should be operative early in the New Year.

FRANTIC FOR MEAT

SEATTLE (AP) — Stripped bare by frantic weekend shoppers, many meat counters remained empty Monday as beef prices increased as much as 30 cents a pound in Seattle and Spokane.

"They were taking it as quick as we put it up," one Seattle meatcutter said, "and some got a little hostile when they couldn't get what they wanted."

In Spokane, one store warned customers over a loudspeaker to keep an eye on their shopping carts because some people were snatching meat packages before others got to the checkout stands.

Many meat counters unable to replenish beef supplies by Monday were filling in with pork and poultry, prices of which have not gone up.

"They'll probably be next," said one disgruntled shopper.

Meant industry spokesmen attributed the boost at the retail level to higher auction prices paid by packers, higher feed costs, a scarcity of cattle, and general inflation.

In Seattle Monday, rib steak was priced at $1.59 a pound, up from $1.45; ground beef at 75 cents a pound from 69 cents, and New York cut steak up from $2.49 to $2.79.

Today at one major Victoria meat market, equivalent prices are $1.29 for rib steak, 69 cents for ground beef and $2.50 for New York cut steak.

Scotch: Booze or Barley?

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Britain and France clashed today over scotch whisky and its role in the enlarged European Common Market.

France said whisky is alcohol; Britain said it is "processed agricultural goods." Millions of dollars rides on the outcome.

Canada, which will be affected by the outcome, kept watch from the sidelines.

The terms of entry obligate Britain's whisky distillers to replace much of the 750,000 tons of grain they buy now from the United States and Canada with Common Market grain — mostly from France.

Britain argued today that the Common Market grain is more expensive. France objected. The French have long urged the market to form an "alcohol policy," which would enable France to dispose of surplus wine. Britain said the matter could be handled perfectly well by treating whisky as "processed agricultural goods," under the existing farm policy.

Post Workers To Vote Jan. 3

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers will vote Jan. 3 on contract recommendations of a conciliation board set up to settle their dispute with the post office, leaders of the Council of Postal Unions said today.

The workers are being urged by their national leaders to reject the conciliation proposals, despite a recommendation for acceptance by the union nominee on the board that prepared the study.

Union nominee William Walsh and the chairman of the three-man board, Owen Shime, signed a majority report which recommended an increase in wages to the 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions of about 65 cents an hour, spread over a contract ending Dec. 31, 1974.

The report, along with a dissenting opinion by government nominee Bruce Stewart, was made public Monday.

National union leaders said they were recommending that the workers turn down the report.

Local union reaction to the recommendations was mixed.

A spokesman for the Vancouver council of Postal unions said there was little in the report outside of the monetary offer and that Vancouver members are interested in safeguards against automation and a shorter work week.

The Vancouver postal unions represent 1,200 clerks and 900 letter carriers. A mass meeting will be called once copies of the report are received.

The union spokesman said there is no immediate prospect of a strike on the West Coast, although the unions have the legal right to leave their jobs Thursday. A strike vote has yet to be held.

Montreal leaders opposed acceptance of the recommendations, and Guy Morisette, local letter carrier president, calling the report stupid.

Canada Telescope . . . In Hawaii!

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — It now seems almost certain that Canadian astronomers will get their first federally-financed optical telescope in more than half a century. But the telescope will be located on Hawaii, not in Canada.

The federal government has informed the National Research Council that it can begin negotiations with French officials on a proposed joint Canadian-French telescope to be built by 1977 on the main island of Hawaii.

Under the proposal, Canada would pay half of the cost of the $16.8 million, 150-inch telescope, France the other half. The two countries would also share 50-50 the estimated $1-million-a-year operating costs.

The telescope would be located on the top of Mauna Kea, at an elevation of 13,800 feet. The site is considered to be one of the best in the world, especially for infra-red observations. Canadian and French astronomers would be able to see most of the less-explored and therefore more exciting southern sky.

An official of the NRC, in confirming the government decision made late last week, said that negotiations between officials of NRC and the Centre National de Recherche Scientifique, CNRS, of France would begin "as soon as possible in the New Year," most likely in January.

Meanwhile, an earlier proposal by Canadian astronomers for an all-Canadian, $18 million telescope, to be located somewhere at a prime observing site in the southern hemisphere, has been effectively struck dead by the latest government decision.

Earlier this year, the government had rejected the all-Canadian proposal, for the time being, and indicated that it preferred the joint Canada-France proposal.

The main drawback of the Hawaii site is that it is located north of the equator, therefore preventing astronomers from seeing the lower 30 degrees of the southern sky. the proposed all-Canadian telescope would have been located in the southern hemisphere, perhaps in Chile or South Africa, providing a view of the total southern sky, with all of its still-undiscovered astronomical "goodies."

On the other hand, the France-Canada project effectively gives Canadian astronomers as much viewing time as they would have obtained with the ill-fated Queen Elizabeth II telescope, at half the cost. The QE II was supposed to be located on Mt. Kobeau in B.C. and was cancelled by the federal government in 1968, in part as a result of controversy within the scientific community about the merits of the Canadian site.

CANADIANS TRIP ON AUSSIE LAWS

SYDNEY (UPI) — Canadian and New Zealand migrants commit crimes at twice the rate of native-born Australians, according to a survey released today.

British immigrants are about as law abiding as the local population, while Asian and African migrants have the lowest crime rate.

The survey carried out by Ronald Francis, senior tutor in criminology at Macquarie University Sydney, is published in the latest issue of the Australian and New Zealand Journal of Criminology.

It analyses the crime rate and prison admission in the states of New South Wales and the Australian capital territory.

Prison admission rates in 1966 were: 217.9 in 100,000 for people born in New South Wales, but 512 for New Zealanders, 429.7 for Canadians, 345.2 for Europeans and 89.6 for Africans and Asians.

Francis said today he could not explain why the crime rate was so high among New Zealanders and Canadians.

"I would like to find out if the crime rate among Australians who go to New Zealand or Canada is as high," Francis said.

"If so, this would support the theory that many criminals drift from one country to another."

WORRIED GENTLEMAN above seems to be wondering what will happen to his Christmas message in the oceans of mail flowing through the post office this week. More than a million letters a day are being handled by the Victoria office, which hired 650 extra workers for the three-week rush period. Women at right stand in lines all day stacking envelopes ready to be stamped through cancelling machines, while dozens of other women wait to sort the stacks for destinations all over the world. The number of postmen has also been doubled throughout the city. If you haven't mailed your Christmas cards yet it's probably too late — the deadline for local mailing was today.

His card is just one in a million handled every day

On-the-Job-Training Program Attracts Few Takers

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

Slow response of local businessmen to the federal government's 1973 training-on-the-job program has sparked a massive telephone and advertising campaign by the Victoria Manpower office.

Manpower assistant manager F. E. Schroeder said his office worked overtime last week phoning more than 500 employers in the city to promote the program.

So far 14 training contracts have been signed in the Victoria area out of 73 applications returned but not yet processed.

Deadline for applications is Dec. 31.

Schroeder said the Victoria office will have about $300,000 to spend on programs and should create about 100 jobs.

A total of $4.5 million is available in all of B.C. for jobs and 150 projects have been approved so far.

Under the program, which operated for the first time last year, employers hire and train workers in addition to their regular labor force, and Manpower pays 75 per cent of their salaries during the first half of their training and 50 per cent of the latter half.

Training programs may run six to 40 weeks and Manpower will not pay more than $118 a week.

Jobs in which there is already an abundance of skilled workers will not be subsidized.

Schroeder said the program should not be seen as subsidizing the regular operating costs of business.

We're accelerating business expansion," he said. "Small businesses especially are hesitant to add new employees to their operation.

"The cost of hiring a new person is so much greater than their productivity during the training period and the training takes other employees away from their jobs, further decreasing productivity.

"We're trying to assist them," Schroeder said, "during that expensive period."

He denied that Manpower was therefore supporting inefficient business.

The philosophy of the program is to create jobs as well as teach Canadians "to learn skills of continuing and transferable value," according to a Manpower fact sheet.

Schroeder admitted that it might happen that an employer fires the new trainee after a long subsidized training program, but added that the projects are well scrutinize projects are well scrutinized by Manpower.

Employers must submit a plan for formal training of the new employees and officials check on progress throughout the program.

Co-ordinator S. G. Watson said the program is also designed to give young people on-the-job experience.

Classroom training, even in vocational schools, does not replace experience as a job-getting equalification, according to Watson.

The program is also seen as a way of getting university graduates into the job market.

Schroeder said the training scheme is part of an on-going government plan which will later include skills development and training for handicapped workers.

Last year 12,000 contracts hiring 42,000 workers across Canada were approved under the scheme.

Jobs ranged from mine electricians to knitters to oyster hatchery workers to carpenters.

Watson said in Victoria some of the jobs applied for this year include a veterinarian's helper, public relations consultant, automotive repair trainee and drive-in food outlet manager.

$10,000 Paid Out For Car Clean-Up

A cleanup of junked cars littering the countryside has netted more than 1,700 vehicles, Capital Regional District engineer Bill Berry reported today.

The effort has cost local taxpayers $10,000, or about $6 per abandoned car, and a surplus of $2,000 in the budget is being used to round up derelict car bodies on Salt Spring Island.

The junked cars, assembled in a number of depots, will be crushed by a provincial government machine, probably in February, and recycled at a plant in Richmond.

Gerry said the project has been "pretty effective" at picking up abandoned autos from backyards, ravines, old roads and rights of way.

"After we have, through 1973, a continuing drive of this kind, we will have cleaned up the majority of this junk from the countryside," he said.

"The ideal solution is one permanent depot where people can bring cars and dump them without charge and once a year we can clean them up. It would save everyone a lot of money."

The crushed and baled cars will be shipped to Richmond, where they go through a shredding and separating operation. The ferrous material is then fed into a recovery smelter.

Gerry said the baled autos are sold to the Richmond company by the province, which used the income to defray the expense of crushing operations.

SSEU Opens Contract Talks With Quest for 15.6% Hike

The provincial Social Service Employees' Union in a letter to open contract negotiations with Victoria Family and Children's Service has proposed salary increases of up to 32.6 per cent for some members, in a one-year contract.

FCS executive director Gordon Wright, at the monthly board meeting Monday evening, said the opening proposals of the union would mean an over-all payroll increase of 15.6 per cent.

He told directors the union's approach is "novel" and proposes a monthly increase of $106 for every category. He called this a major adjustment which would drastically alter the differential between union categories.

Wright said the 32.6 per cent increase would apply to junior categories and senior positions would be increased by about 10 per cent.

The present contract expires Mar. 31, 1973, and Wright told the board he sees no obstacle to completion of negotiations by that time.

The opening proposal of the SSEU deals with a number of other points as well, he said. These include staff probation, tenure, vacations, leaves of absence, employee evaluation and performance reports, and mileagle payments.

FCS directors went into closed session at the end of the regular meeting to discuss further the opening move of the union, and possibly to elect a negotiating committee.

Monday's FCS directors meeting was the first to be opened to press and public in the history of the organization. Open meetings are to continue for six months trial.

Wright, in announcing the opening of board meetings Nov. 30, said "the board took the position that as the Family and Children's Service operates a $3 million program of public social services on behalf of families and children in the Greater Victoria area, members of the public should have the opportunity to know more about the agency's programs, their planning and their operation."

All operating funds for FCS come from federal and provincial tax sources.

It operates seven neighborhood family counselling and child welfare teams, group homes, day care centres and intensive services for delinquent youth.

In other business Monday, FCS directors gave tentative approval for the purchase of a house at a basic price of $27,500 for conversion into a group home for foster children.

Two other such homes owned by FCS are already in operation, Wright said. The board has approved purchase of six in all, but this is only the third one specifically selected.

Wright said he has approached the provincial government for participation in the home purchases, but to date has had no reaction. At present, he indicated, financing for such projects is through legacy funds and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation facilities.

The board also received a report from Wright on a recent inspection by Ben Chudd, chairman of the professional standards committee of the British Columbia Association of Social Workers.

WRIGHT

Wright said the committee has approved an "A rating" for personnel practices at FCS. This is the highest rating given, he added.

Approval was also given for signing of a lease, at $400 per month plus any future increase in municipal taxes, for office space to accommodate a community team of FCS on Alston St., at the west end of the Pt. Ellice bridge.

NCO Electrocuted

A Canadian armed forces marine engineer was apparently electrocuted Monday when working on a piece of equipment in the galley of HMCS Chaudiere.

A post mortem was performed today on Cpl. John Dayley, 30, of 928 Dunsmuir.

A service spokesman said Dayley, father of a 10-month-old son, was discovered about noon and had apparently been electrocuted.

Cmdr. D. R. Donaldson, skipper of the Chaudiere, has ordered a board of inquiry, following a summary investigation carried out this morning.

No-Strike Clause Asked For Water Board Workers

Greater Victoria Water Board moved Monday to try to avert any possibility of a strike by its union employees.

The water district will ask Local 598 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees if it will agree to a no-strike clause in the contract coming up for renewal, and also to binding arbitration on both parties.

If that approach fails, the district will urge the provincial government to pass legislation "outlawing strikes in the vital service of water supply," and to employ binding arbitration in such cases.

Water Commissioner Ron Upward told the board there was no immediate likelihood of strike action by employees, but the probability of that happening some day had to be faced.

If there was a strike, he said, the five supervisory personnel left could operate but not maintain the water supply system.

Board chairman, Mayor Peter Pollen of Victoria, commented that the threat of a strike affecting such a vital service, whether those involved were responsible or irresponsible, was like "holding a loaded shotgun to the head of the community."

Saanich Ald. William Noel said: "It gets to a pretty stage when a union can jeopardize the health of the whole district by a water strike."

PRECARIOUS PERCH of this sea-stranded bulldozer had Oak Bay residents wondering if a new form of amphibious craft was trying to make her way into Oak Bay Marina in Monday's storms. A combination of high tides and wind-lashed waves hid the fact that the machine was actually sitting on top of rocks which will form the base of a spur from Mary Tod Island. The spur and an extension of the breakwater at Turkey Head is being built to provide the marina with protection from southeasterly gales.

No $200 For Aged In Alta.

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government will not follow the example of British Columbia which sought federal funds to raise the level of senior citizens' incomes, Premier Peter Lougheed said Monday.

What Alberta will do is try to give them a better deal with a revised housing policy next year, the premier told a news conference.

The policy would attempt to put shared-cost government housing on a consistent basis and would likely lead to revised rent schedules.

Lougheed said a suggestion that Alberta follow the British Columbia lead "sounds good on paper" but would help pensioners little because of accompanying rent increases in the western province.

Alberta would rather produce direct "tangible and specific benefits."

MP Complains

EDMONTON (CP) — Douglas Roche, Progressive Conservative MP for Edmonton-Strathcona, said the federal government played politics with 3,000 visitors — mostly from India — who wanted immigrant status in Canada.

He told a news conference the federal government overreacted to public opinion after the Oct. 30 general election and cut off the 3,000 visitors as a result.

Hogs for Japan

WINNIPEG (CP) — Agriculture Minister Samuel Uskiw has announced the Manitoba Hog Marketing Commission has arranged the sale of between 300,000 and 500,000 hogs to Japan.

He said the sale is worth $18 million to $30 million, depending on market fluctuations.

Move Resisted

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Manitoba government is having difficulty persuading residents of the flats, a shack town near the Hudson Bay port of Churchill, to move into modern public housing units.

Premier Ed Schreyer said the government is conducting a promotional and educational campaign to get people now living in substandard housing to apply for accommodation in the new public housing units. A total of 39 such units are being constructed, at a cost slightly more than $1 million.

More Oil Cash

CALGARY (CP) — The Alberta government received $228,772.13 from the sale of petroleum and natural gas leases last week.

The highest single bid was from Great Northern Oil Ltd. which paid $59,348 for 320 acres in the Turner Valley area southwest of Calgary.

No Ottawa Grant

REGINA (CP) — The federal Department of Regional Economic Expansion again has balked at providing a $1 million grant for the proposed Romanian tractor assembly plant in Saskatoon.

Industry Minister Kim Thornson said Monday the federal department apparently doesn't think the venture will work and until the contrary can be proven, a DREE grant is unlikely.

$24 Tax Boost Seen

EDMONTON (CP) — A $93.2-million operating budget which would increase the average homeowner's 1973 tax bill by $24 has been presented to city council by city commissioners.

The budget proposals do not contain a detailed outline of how the money will be spent.

Spaceship Splashes Down Safely

Times News Services

ABOARD USS TICONDEROGA — The last men of Apollo landed safely in the South Pacific today with the moon prize they sought and a treasure of souvenirs marking the end of an era in which man conquered the moon.

The aircraft carrier Ticonderoga stood by to retrieve the astronauts and start them on the way home to Houston Thursday to join their families and friends for the Christmas holidays.

The moon explorers slashed into upper fringes of earth's atmosphere travelling 6,8 miles a second and decelerated quickly to a gentle parachute landing in just 13 minutes. It may be decades before men fly that fast again.

Only two minor problems troubled the mission's last phases before splashdown. A big pair of scissors, lost in the spacecraft a few days ago, could not be found and Evans' headset — which he uses to communicate with ground control — was faulty.

Evans, who has been taking nose drops for congestion, was advised by mission control doctors to take a decongestant pill before he retired and another after breakfast.

"It might clear your ears before final descent," he was told.

On their last night in space the astronauts held a televised news conference, answering 13 questions relayed from reporters by Mission Control.

During the program, geologist Schmitt said that while on the moon he and Cernan sampled "a broad spectrum of lunar history" and "increased the perspective for the future of mankind in the solar system."

For the rest of the evening, the astronauts did little talking though Cernan before retiring took note of earth growing closer before them.

"The earth is sure starting to get big," said Cernan.

We Won't Bow Hanoi Vows

Times News Services

The Communist world reacted angrily today to U.S. President Nixon's resumed bombing of heavily-populated areas of North Vietnam, with some Eastern-bloc diplomats in London also predicting that the action could lead to a slow-down of the thaw in relations between Washington, Moscow and Peking.

But they said they did not anticipate a freeze in this process of improving relations.

One direct result of the latest developments in the Vietnam conflict might be a delay in the projected Washington visit of Soviet Communist Party chairman Leonid Brezhnev, they said.

In Moscow the Soviet Union condemned the renewed air strikes as a move to pressure Hanoi into a peace settlement and warned that Kremlin leaders are "giving the most serious consideration" to the situation.

"This particular decision of Washington flagrantly disagrees with numerous protestations made by the U.S. leaders about their wish to seek mutually acceptable solutions for the remaining unco-ordinated problems.

"No pretexts, invented in a bid to justify the brutal bombing, can hide the fact that we are faced with new aggressive actions which the U.S.A. is taking against a sovereign state."

North Vietnam's permanent peace negotiator accused Henry Kissinger today of "deliberately distorting the truth" in his report on the stalled peace talks.

The Hanoi negotiator, Xuan Thuy, told a news conference it was not North Vietnam but the United States that blocked agreement by demanding no fewer than 126 changes in the accord drafted in October.

Thuy said Hanoi is considering boycotting future peace negotiations because of the "shameless acts of war escalation."

"Every Christmas Mr. Nixon voices concern for prisoners, but every Christmas he bombs North Vietnam and for this reason the prisoners are not liberated," Thuy said.

Meanwhile, hundreds of U.S. planes including B-52 bombers pounded the Hanoi-Haiphong region of North Vietnam with the heaviest raids of the war Monday night and again today.

The North Vietnamese government, however, said President Nixon's attempt to bomb it into submission would not force it to accept Washington's peace terms.

Hanoi said six U.S. planes were shot down, incluling three B-52s and a number of pilots captured.

It charged that nearly 100 civilians were killed at attacks on Hanoi and its su-

IT DOESN'T MATTER AFTER YOU'RE 65

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI) — A Harvard University health expert said today that cigarette smokers who have reached age 65 might as well keep on smoking — they will not prolong their lives by stopping.

Dr. Carl C. Seltzer, senior research associate at the Harvard school of public health in Boston, said persons who stop smoking after 65 appear to gain no additional living time.

Seltzer based his conclusions on an analysis of the death rates of elderly British doctors over a 12-year period from 1953 to 1965.

B.C. May Lose Auto Plants

By AL FORREST

Nissan Motors has called a news conference for noon Wednesday in Vancouver to officially announce an indefinite delay in plans to open a Datsun car assembly plant in British Columbia.

Earlier Hiraki Miki, president of Nissan Motors Canada Ltd., had said the assembly plant would be constructed in B.C. during 1973.

However, a company spokesman in Vancouver said it would not happen in 1973 and possibly not at all.

The company statement followed an announcement from Tokyo that the company is considering plants in Alberta and Ontario ahead of B.C.

The Vancouver spokesman said a news conference had been called for Wednesday to outline the company's position but the gist of the announcement would be "an indefinite delay, a long delay."

The decision is a severe blow for the provincial government which has counted heavily on new Japanese manufacturing plants as a showcase to attract other investment to the province.

After becoming premier he had talks with Miki of Nissan (Datsun) on the same topic.

There has been no action from Toyota and now the Datsun project seems to have been abandoned.

In Tokyo, Seishi Kato, executive vice-president of Toyota, said revaluation of the yen had hurt sales in North America in 1972 and a further upward revaluation could increase car prices and cut sales even further.

The company hopes to increase sales in Canada, Indonesia and Latin America in 1973 and will hold the price to its present level in hopes of retaining the 280,000 sales it made in the U.S. in 1972. Sales in 1971 had been 390,000 vehicles.

Barrett said Monday he wants to speak to representatives of Nissan before he comments on the reports that the firm has no definite plans for establishing an assembly plant in B.C.

CHILD-BEATING BIG PROBLEM

VANCOUVER (CP) — A report on the incidence of child-beating in the province and recommendations on how to reduce the numbers will be made public in the new year, Health Minister Dennis Cocke said Monday.

"Child-beating has become one hell of a problem," he said. "One has to be careful that the solutions to prevent it are not worse than the actions."

Duty-Free Liquor For Airport

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald announced today the government has approved establishment of a duty-free liquor store at the Vancouver International Airport.

He said the store should be operative early in the New Year.

FRANTIC FOR MEAT

SEATTLE (AP) — Stripped bare by frantic weekend shoppers, many meat counters remained empty Monday as beef prices increased as much as 30 cents a pound in Seattle and Spokane.

"They were taking it as quick as we put it up," one Seattle meatcutter said, "and some got a little hostile when they couldn't get what they wanted."

In Spokane, one store warned customers over a loudspeaker to keep an eye on their shopping carts because some people were snatching meat packages before others got to the checkout stands.

Many meat counters unable to replenish beef supplies by Monday were filling in with pork and poultry, prices of which have not gone up.

"They'll probably be next," said one disgruntled shopper.

Meat industry spokesmen attributed the boost at the retail level to higher auction prices paid by packers, higher feed costs, a scarcity of cattle, and general inflation.

In Seattle Monday, rib steak was priced at $1.59 a pound, up from $1.45; ground beef at 75 cents a pound from 69 cents, and New York cut steak up from $2.49 to $2.79.

Today at one major Victoria meat market, equivalent prices are $1.29 for rib steak, 69 cents for ground beef and $2.50 for New York cut steak.

Scotch: Booze or Barley?

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Britain and France clashed today over scotch whisky and its role in the enlarged European Common Market.

France said whisky is alcohol; Britain said it is "processed agricultural goods." Millions of dollars rides on the outcome.

Canada, which will be affected by the outcome, kept watch from the sidelines.

The terms of entry obligate Britain's whisky distillers to replace much of the 750,000 tons of grain they buy now from the United States and Canada with Common Market grain — mostly from France.

Britain argued today that the Common Market grain is more expensive. France objected. The French have long urged the market to form an "alcohol policy," which would enable France to dispose of surplus wine. Britain said the matter could be handled perfectly well by treating whisky as "processed agricultural goods," under the existing farm policy.

Post Workers To Vote Jan. 3

OTTAWA (CP) — Postal workers will vote Jan. 3 on contract recommendations of a conciliation board set up to settle their dispute with the post office, leaders of the Council of Postal Unions said today.

The workers are being urged by their national leaders to reject the conciliation proposals, despite a recommendation for acceptance by the union nominee on the board that prepared the study.

Union nominee William Walsh and the chairman of the three-man board, Owen Shime, signed a majority report which recommended an increase in wages to the 28,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions of about 65 cents an hour, spread over a contract ending Dec. 31, 1974.

The report, along with a dissenting opinion by government nominee Bruce Stewart, was made public Monday.

National union leaders said they were recommending that the workers turn down the report.

Local union reaction to the recommendations was mixed.

A spokesman for the Vancouver council of Postal unions said there was little in the report outside of the monetary offer and that Vancouver members are interested in safeguards against automation and a shorter work week.

The Vancouver postal unions represent 1,200 clerks and 900 letter carriers. A mass meeting will be called once copies of the report are received.

The union spokesman said there is no immediate prospect of a strike on the West Coast, although the unions have the legal right to leave their jobs Thursday. A strike vote has yet to be held.

Montreal leaders opposed acceptance of the recommendations, and Guy Morisette, local letter carrier president, calling the report stupid.

CANADIANS TRIP ON AUSSIE LAWS

SYDNEY (UPI) — Canadian and New Zealand migrants commit crimes at twice the rate of native-born Australians, according to a survey released today.

British immigrants are about as law abiding as the local population, while Asian and African migrants have the lowest crime rate.

The survey carried out by Ronald Francis, senior tutor in criminology at Macquarie University Sydney, is published in the latest issue of the Australian and New Zealand Journal of Criminology.

It analyses the crime rate and prison admission in the states of New South Wales and the Australian capital territory.

Prison admission rates in 1966 were: 217.9 in 100,000 for people born in New South Wales, but 512 for New Zealanders, 429.7 for Canadians, 345.2 for Europeans and 89.6 for Africans and Asians.

Francis said today he could not explain why the crime rate was so high among New Zealanders and Canadians.

"I would like to find out if the crime rate among Australians who go to New Zealand or Canada is as high," Francis said.

"If so, this would support the theory that many criminals drift from one country to another."

Canada Telescope . . . In Hawaii!

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — It now seems almost certain that Canadian astronomers will get their first federally-financed optical telescope in more than half a century. But the telescope will be located in Hawaii, not in Canada.

The federal government has informed the National Research Council that it can begin negotiations with French officials on a proposed joint Canadian-French telescope to be built by 1977 on the main island of Hawaii.

Under the proposal, Canada would pay half of the cost of the $16.8 million, 150-inch telescope, France the other half. The two countries would also share 50-50 the estimated $1-million-a-year operating costs.

The telescope would be located on the top of Mauna Kea, at an elevation of 13,800 feet. The site is considered to be one of the best in the world, especially for infra-red observations. Canadian and French astronomers would be able to see most of the less-explored and therefore more exciting southern sky.

An official of the NRC, in confirming the government decision made late last week, said that negotiations between officials of NRC and the Centre National de Recherche Scientifique, CNRS, of France would begin "as soon as possible in the New Year," most likely in January.

Meanwhile, an earlier proposal by Canadian astronomers for an all-Canadian, $18 million telescope, to be located somewhere at a prime observing site in the southern hemisphere, has been effectively struck dead by the latest government decision.

Earlier this year, the government had rejected the all-Canadian proposal, for the time being, and indicated that it preferred the joint Canada-France proposal.

The main drawback of the Hawaii site is that it is located north of the equator, therefore preventing astronomers from seeing the lower 30 degrees of the southern sky. The proposed all-Canadian telescope would have been located in the southern hemisphere, perhaps in Chile or South Africa, providing a view of the total southern sky, with all of its still-undiscovered astronomical "goodies."

On the other hand, the France-Canada project effectively gives Canadian astronomers as much viewing time as they would have obtained with the ill-fated Queen Elizabeth II telescope, at half the cost. The QE II was supposed to be located on Mt. Kobeau in B.C. and was cancelled by the federal government in 1968, in part as a result of controversy within the scientific community about the merits of the Canadian site.
